IT WAS mentioned here yesterday the Italian flyer, Bernardi, would go after the three-kilometer record, held by an American officer, and get it. Bernardi did go after it and got it. His average was about 252 miles an hour, covering the course four times.

THIS is a good thing for the United States. In some way the government of this country must be made to realize flying is a reality, and that the airplane, invented in America, really flies. Bernardi, flying under the administration's nose at Norfolk, may help to make known the fact that flying is real.

GEORGE STERLING, brilliant poet, killed himself with poison, having written "Deeper into the darkness can I peer than most, yet find the darkness still beyond."

HE HAS looked, perhaps, a little deeper than usual now, and we ought to wonder what he saw. But we don't wonder, or care much. Nature keeps us so busy with little things that we forget we are all going to live until the time comes, and then, usually, we are too weak to care.

IF YOU want to know about property and the future ask Herbert Hoover. He continually travels about the country and actually sees what he looks at. As secretary of commerce he has full business information, and he says that 1927 should at least equal, if not surpass 1925 and 1926. If the country will attend to business, instead of guessing about future conditions, there will be nothing to worry about.

THE Westinghouse Co. has built an electric locomotive to pull 200 freight cars, a load of 10,000 tons, not counting the cars. At a tenth of the expense, with no costly unkeep of road beds, rails and equipment, a canal tug will haul 10,000 tons on 10 barges. Europe builds canals and utilizes cheap transportation.

MRS. FRANCES DELARUE weighed 200 pounds, a year ago, and decided the weight must come off. It did. Now she weighs 98 pounds, and the doctors say she is too weak to stand an operation required by her emaciated condition. She may die.

THOUSANDS of young girls are starving themselves almost as dangerously without any 200 weight as an excuse. For this and other foolishness among young people, the fathers and mothers are responsible, not the foolish children of this foolish age.

STOLEN ROADSTER IS RECOVERED

A Ford roadster, 1926 model, belonging to William Kind, 951 Ephraim street, stolen while parked on Washington street, last night, was found today in a field near the road between Calcutta and Cannon's Mills. One wheel on the car was demolished.

A Chevrolet coupe, belonging to James McNutt of the McNutt Printing company, was stolen near the corner of Sixth street and Broadway, last night. The license number was 246-918.

RUMANIAN KING, SERIOUSLY ILL, AWAITS RETURN OF HIS QUEEN

Bucharest Reports His Condition is Alarming.

CALL SPECIALIST

Her Majesty Will Sail on Berengaria November 24.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 20.—While official statements continue to declare that the condition of King Ferdinand is not serious, reports were current today that the king's illness has taken a more serious turn.

A French specialist who had been in attendance upon the king and who had departed for Paris, is reported to have been recalled by telegraph.

The queen of Jugo-Slavia, daughter of the king, who had planned to return to Belgrade today, has cancelled her plans and will remain with her father.

The court is anxiously awaiting the return of Queen Marie from the United States.

Cable From Daughter.

ABOARD QUEEN MARIE SPECIAL TRAIN (in West Virginia enroute to New York), Nov. 20.—Queen Marie of Rumania, who started out so gaily a month ago for her tour of America, returns to New York today a tired and worried woman. The 10,000 mile transcontinental trip with its internal bickerings, not entirely subsided, the reported illness of King Ferdinand, the collapse of Princess Ileana through over-exertion, and the strenuous program of banquets and receptions, have taken their toll. Dark circles underline the eyes of her majesty and the vivacity for which she is famous is diminished.

The royal train arrives in Jersey City at 4:35 o'clock this afternoon. Her majesty immediately will motor to Tuxedo, N. Y., where she will rest at the home of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City bank, until she sails on the liner Berengaria November 24, for home.

Queen Marie admitted today that she had received no official request from her government to return home. She stated through the "observation car spokesman." that conflicting reports of King Ferdinand's health had made her decide to sail as soon as possible.

Her majesty received a cable from Queen Marie of Serbia, her daughter today, which read: "Paper better. Don't be anxious."

Tour Shenandoah Valley.

A farewell dinner was given Queen Marie in the dining car last night. "I wish to thank you for a very happy journey," said her majesty to Col. John H. Carroll, official host to the queen. "This train has become like a home to us. Our hearts are sad tonight at the thought of leaving America."

Among the guests were Judge Robert W. Bingham, publisher of the Courier-Jaurnal and Times of Louisville, Ky.

Her majesty distributed pictures of herself and presented Col. Carroll with a cigarette case. Col. Walter V. Shipley also received a cigarette case.

Spanish-American War Vet Jumps 555 Feet To Death

Screaming in Spanish, "Let Us Go," He Leaps From Top of Washington Monument Near White House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. — A discouraged and apparently unbalanced veteran of the Spanish-American war committed suicide dramatically today by leaping from the top of the Washington monument, which towers 555 feet. He was identified later as Henry C. Anderson, an inmate of the U. S. Soldiers' Home here.

With a shout of "vamos," Spanish for "away" or "let us go," Anderson made the fatal leap from the north side of the shaft, facing the White House. The screams were heard by guards and a small party of tourists, but no one actually saw him dive into space.

COUNTY SCOUT EXECUTIVE WILSON RESIGNS; C. E. FELTON FILLS PLACE

"Chief" Relinquishes Work Because of Business Interests in Florida —Lisbon Man is Temporary Appointee.

Resignation of Harry Wilson, Columbiana County Boy Scout executive for the last year, has been accepted by the county council, it developed today. C. E. Felton, Lisbon scoutmaster, has been named acting executive.

Wilson, who went to Florida, where he has "business interests," about a week ago, sent his written resignation to the county council meeting in Lisbon Thursday night. The scout office in the Betz building here has been closed until Wilson's successor has been named.

Wilson came to East Liverpool after the county organization was formed. Prior to that he had been stationed in Salem. He conducted the Scout camp at Lake Placentia, near North Georgetown, last summer.

At a reorganization meeting of the county council, Rev. Peter W. Macauley, pastor of the Lisbon Presbyterian church, was elected chairman to succeed I. F. Mellinger, Leetonia. Attorney W. S. Stevenson, of East Liverpool, was re-elected first vice-president; Dr. R. R. Bode, East Liverpool, second vice-president, and Probate Judge Lodge Riddle, Lisbon, third vice-president. Frank Gardner, East Liverpool, was re-elected treasurer.

A committee was appointed to name a county "chief."

SENATE SLUSH FUND COMMITTEE TURNS SPOTLIGHT ON MISSOURI

Charges of Fraud, Ballot Stuffing and Corruption in Senator Reed's Home State.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The senate slush fund committee, which spent the summer under the direction of Senator James A. Reed, (D) of Missouri, investigating senatorial primaries from one end of the country to the other, was asked today to turn its spotlight upon the recent senatorial election in Reed's home state.

Charges of fraud, ballot stuffing, corruption and the use of a slush fund, variously estimated at from $250,000 to $750,000, were made against the Democratic machine in Kansas City in a written appeal to the committee for a federal inquiry into the Democratic victory of Harry Bam Hawes. The request was made by a man who signed himself H. R. Walmsley.

The charges went right to Reed's front door as he waged a vigorous campaign for the election of Hawes. They did not involve either Reed or Hawes, however, in the use of the alleged slush fund.

The appeal for a senate investigation was sent to Senator George W. Norris, Republican of Nebraska, leader of the insurgent bloc, who immediately turned it over to members of the committee. Copies of the charges, it was learned, also were sent by Walmsley to Senator George Wharton Pepper, Republican of Pennsylvania, Senator-elect Frank R. Smith, Republican, of Illinois, and Senator-elect William S. Vare, Republican, of Pennsylvania, all of whom were concerned in previous fund inquiries.

W. D. Manley, Head of Defunct Trust Company Chain, Awaits Fate After He is Declared Sane.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 20.—The case of W. D. Manley, former president of the defunct Bankers Trust company chain, was in the hands of a jury today.

The jury took one ballot after it received the case early this morning and then when to bed, deciding to wait until later to consider the verdict.

Manley was tried on the first of 18 indictments against him, that of "fraudulent insolvency." He was accused of being responsible for the collapse of 83 chain banks in Florida and Georgia.

The banker pleaded insanity, but after a trial lasting more than a week, he was declared sane by a jury.

Justice McKenna is 83 years old.

Mrs. Eva Wenz, of Buffalo, N. Y., a recent bride, suffered lacerations to her face and other minor injuries when the car in which she and her husband were driving struck a telephone pole at the end of the concrete road east of Smith's Ferry late last night.

Mrs. Menz and her husband, who were married about 10 days ago, were on their way to Chester for a visit with the bride's brother, Rev. W. J. McKnight, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church. Mr. Wenz, who was driving the car, said he was blinded by the headlight of an approaching street car.

Mrs. Wenz was removed to the City hospital where she was attended by Dr. R. J. Marshall. Her husband was not hurt. The car was badly damaged.

OFFERS ALIBI IN HALL-MILLS CRIME TRIAL AT SOMERVILLE

Widow's Brother Says He Was Not in De Russey's Lane.

58 MILES AWAY.

Declares He Was Fishing at Home in Lavallette, N. J.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

COURTHOUSE, SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 20.—Henry Stevens, one of three defendants accused of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Eleanor Mills, denied on the witness stand today, while testifying in his own behalf, that he "had directly or indirectly" participated in the double murder. He asserted he was not in De Russey's lane on the night of the crime, Sept. 14, 1922.

Denies Pistol Use in 25 Years.

His alibi was that he was fishing at his home in LaVallette, 58 miles away at the approximate time of the murder. He said he stayed in his home in LaVallette that night and that he did not leave it until he was informed by a telegram from a relative notifying him of the death of the Rev. Hall.

Stevens, a ruddy faced outdoors man and a "crack-shot" with a rifle, testified he had not fired a revolver for 25 years. It was a .32 calibre automatic that was used in the killing.

The witness talked in an assured manner and was self-possessed on the stand. His direct examination had taken one hour and eighteen minutes. He was then taken over by Prosecutor Alexander Simpson for cross-examination.

Defendant Cross-Examined.

Cross-examining Henry Stevens, the prosecutor asked him if Willie Stevens was his "full brother." The witness said yes.

"Do you know the Church of the South has no record of his birth?"

"No."

"Do you swear he is a son of your mother and not a mulatto?"

"Yes."

Simpson shot several questions at the witness who insisted he didn't know anything about automatic pistols.

"I never once fired an automatic," the witness said.

"It would take a pretty good marksman to put three bullets in a woman's head in the dark?" Simpson asked.

"It would depend on distance?"

"Say six feet. It would take a pretty good marksman?"

"I wouldn't think it would take a marksman at all."

Witness Slightly Ruffled.

Simpson asked the witness if he know the time the shots were fired that killed Mrs. Mills. Stevens said he did not.

"Then," demanded Simpson, "Why did you tell Captain Harry Walsh you were on the beach at LaValette at 10:30, so as to put yourself on the

NINE ARE KNOWN DEAD AND 40 INJURED, TOLL EXACTED BY EXPLOSION ON NORWEGIAN OIL TANKER AT BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 20.—Eight horribly mutilated bodies had been recovered this morning from the smoldering ruins of the Norwegian oil tanker Mantilla, another man died from burns and from eight to a dozen workmen believed to have been aboard have not yet been accounted for by rescuers and firemen gingerly poking about the ship in momentary fear of another explosion.

Irana Herason, a member of the crew, died today.

The exact death list may never be known. Officials do not know how many of the missing were aboard the boat when the blast came, and has rendered difficult an accurate check. The injured numbered 40, and a few of these are so seriously hurt their deaths are expected.

Gas Caused Blast.

The explosion is believed to have been caused by gas generated in one of the ship's storage tanks.

The Mantilla has been in drydock at Sparrows Point for several weeks, undergoing repairs. She was to have gone into the service of the Mexican Petroleum company, on Monday. W. Wilhelmson, Ponberg, Norway is the owner.

The big tanker was alive with workmen at the time of the explosion. Burning oil was scattered over a wide area and firemen had to fight for hours to prevent the spread of a serious conflagration. They had to work carefully, too, in momentary expectation of a second blast from another tank.

Ship Blown Apart.

Capt. Nils Danielsen, commanding the Mantilla, said the ship was literally blown apart. He was on the dock when the explosion occurred.

"The air was full of flying steel and burning oil," said Capt. Danielsen. "Men were running around with their clothing afire, screaming with pain. I saw several with arms blown off. It was the most terrible thing I ever saw."

An accurate casualty list will not be possible until some time today when officials complete a check-up of the injured who were rushed to hospitals by every available automobile.

ABOARD QUEEN MARIE SPECIAL TRAIN (in West Virginia enroute to New York), Nov. 20.—Queen Marie of Rumania, who started out so gaily a month ago for her tour of America, returns to New York today a tired and worried woman. The 10,000 mile transcontinental trip with its internal bickerings, not entirely subsided, the reported illness of King Ferdinand, the collapse of Princess Ileana through over-exertion, and the strenuous program of banquets and receptions, have taken their toll. Dark circles underline the eyes of her majesty and the vivacity for which she is famous is diminished.

The royal train arrives in Jersey City at 4:35 o'clock this afternoon. Her majesty immediately will motor to Tuxedo, N. Y., where she will rest at the home of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City bank, until she sails on the liner Berengaria November 24, for home.

Queen Marie admitted today that she had received no official request from her government to return home. She stated through the "observation car spokesman," that conflicting reports of King Ferdinand's health had made her decide to sail as soon as possible.

Her majesty received a cable from Queen Marie of Serbia, her daughter today, which read: "Paper better. Don't be anxious."

Tour Shenandoah Valley.

A farewell dinner was given Queen Marie in the dining car last night. "I wish to thank you for a very happy journey," said her majesty to Col. John H. Carroll, official host to the queen. "This train has become like a home to us. Our hearts are sad tonight at the thought of leaving America."

Among the guests were Judge Robert W. Bingham, publisher of the Courier-Jaurnal and Times of Louisville, Ky.

Her majesty distributed pictures of herself and presented Col. Carroll with a cigarette case. Col. Walter V Shipley also received a cigarette case.

Spanish-American War Vet Jumps 555 Feet To Death

Screaming in Spanish, "Let Us Go," He Leaps From Top of Washington Monument Near White House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. — A discouraged and apparently unbalanced veteran of the Spanish-American war committed suicide dramatically today by leaping from the top of the Washington monument, which towers 555 feet. He was identified later as Henry C. Anderson, an inmate of the U. S. Soldiers' Home here.

With a shout of "vamos," Spanish for "away" or "let us go," Anderson made the fatal leap from the north side of the shaft, facing the White House. The screams were heard by guards and a small party of tourists, but no one actually saw him dive into space.

COUNTY SCOUT EXECUTIVE WILSON RESIGNS; C. E. FELTON FILLS PLACE

"Chief" Relinquishes Work Because of Business Interests in Florida —Lisbon Man is Temporary Appointee.

Resignation of Harry Wilson, Columbiana County Boy Scout executive for the last year, has been accepted by the county council, it developed today. C. E. Felton, Lisbon scoutmaster, has been named acting executive.

Wilson, who went to Florida, where he has "business interests," about a week ago, sent his written resignation to the county council meeting in Lisbon Thursday night. The scout office in the Betz building here has been closed until Wilson's successor has been named.

Wilson came to East Liverpool after the county organization was formed. Prior to that he had been stationed in Salem. He conducted the Scout camp at Lake Placentia, near North Georgetown, last summer.

At a reorganization meeting of the county council, Rev. Peter W. Macauley, pastor of the Lisbon Presbyterian church, was elected chairman to succeed I. F. Mellinger, Leetonia. Attorney W. S. Stevenson, of East Liverpool, was re-elected first vice-president; Dr. R. R. Bode, East Liverpool, second vice-president, and Probate Judge Lodge Riddle, Lisbon, third vice-president. Frank Gardner, East Liverpool, was re-elected treasurer.

A committee was appointed to name a county "chief."

SENATE SLUSH FUND COMMITTEE TURNS SPOTLIGHT ON MISSOURI

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The senate slush fund committee, which spent the summer under the direction of Senator James A. Reed, (D) of Missouri, investigating senatorial primaries from one end of the country to the other, was asked today to turn its spotlight upon the recent senatorial election in Reed's home state.

Charges of fraud, ballot stuffing, corruption, and the use of a slush fund, variously estimated at from $250,000 to $750,000, were made against the Democratic machine in Kansas City in a written appeal to the committee for a federal inquiry into the Democratic victory of Harry Bam Hawes. The request was made by a man who signed himself H. R. Walmsley.

The charges went right to Reed's front door as he waged a vigorous campaign for the election of Hawes. They did not involve either Reed or Hawes, however, in the use of the alleged slush fund.

The appeal for a senate investigation was sent to Senator George W. Norris, Republican of Nebraska, leader of the insurgent bloc, who immediately turned it over to members of the committee. Copies of the charges, it was learned, also were sent by Walmsley to Senator George Wharton Pepper, Republican of Pennsylvania, Senator-elect Frank R. Smith, Republican, of Illinois, and Senator-elect William S. Vare, Republican, of Pennsylvania, all of whom were concerned in previous fund inquiries.

JURY IN GEORGIA BANK FAILURE CAST BALLOTS, THEN GOES TO BED

W. D. Manley, Head of Defunct Trust Company Chain, Awaits Fate After He is Declared Sane.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 20.—The case of W. D. Manley, former president of the defunct Bankers Trust company chain, was in the hands of a jury today.

The jury took one ballot after it received the case early this morning and then when to bed, deciding to wait until later to consider the verdict.

Manley was tried on the first of 18 indictments against him, that of "fraudulent insolvency." He was accused of being responsible for the collapse of 83 chain banks in Florida and Georgia.

The banker pleaded insanity, but after a trial lasting more than a week, he was declared sane by a jury.

Mrs. Eva Wenz, of Buffalo, N. Y., a recent bride, suffered lacerations to her face and other minor injuries when the car in which she and her husband were driving struck a telephone pole at the end of the concrete road east of Smith's Ferry late last night.

Mrs. Menz and her husband, who were married about 10 days ago, were on their way to Chester for a visit with the bride's brother, Rev. W. J. McKnight, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church. Mr. Wenz, who was driving the car, said he was blinded by the headlight of an approaching street car.

Mrs. Wenz was removed to the City hospital where she was attended by Dr. R. J. Marshall. Her husband was not hurt. The car was badly damaged.

OFFERS ALIBI IN HALL-MILLS CRIME TRIAL AT SOMERVILLE

58 MILES AWAY

Declares He Was Fishing at Home in Lavallette, N. J.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

COURTHOUSE, SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 20.—Henry Stevens, one of three defendants accused of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Eleanor Mills, denied on the witness stand today, while testifying in his own behalf, that he "had directly or indirectly" participated in the double murder. He asserted he was not in De Russey's lane on the night of the crime, Sept. 14, 1922.

Denies Pistol Use in 25 Years.

His alibi was that he was fishing at his home in LaVallette, 58 miles away at the approximate time of the murder. He said he stayed in his home in LaVallette that night and that he did not leave it until he was informed by a telegram from a relative notifying him of the death of the Rev. Hall.

Stevens, a ruddy faced outdoors man and a "crack-shot" with a rifle, testified he had not fired a revolver for 25 years. It was a .32 calibre automatic that was used in the killing.

The witness talked in an assured manner and was self-possessed on the stand. His direct examination had taken one hour and eighteen minutes. He was then taken over by Prosecutor Alexander Simpson for cross-examination.

Defendant Cross-Examined.

Cross-examining Henry Stevens, the prosecutor asked him if Willis Stevens was his "full brother." The witness said yes.

"Do you know the Church of the South has no record of his birth?"

"No."

"Do you swear he is a son of your mother and not a mulatto?"

"Yes."

Simpson shot several questions at the witness who insisted he didn't know anything about automatic pistols.

"I never once fired an automatic," the witness said.

"It would take a pretty good marksman to put three bullets in a woman's head in the dark?" Simpson asked.

"It would depend on distance?"

"Say six feet. It would take a pretty good marksman?"

"I wouldn't think it would take a marksman at all."

Witness Slightly Ruffled.

Simpson asked the witness if he know the time the shots were fired that killed Mrs. Mills. Stevens said he did not.

"Then," demanded Simpson, "Why did you tell Captain Harry Walsh you were on the beach at LaValette at 10:30, so as to put yourself on the

NINE ARE KNOWN DEAD AND 40 INJURED, TOLL EXACTED BY EXPLOSION ON NORWEGIAN OIL TANKER AT BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 20.—Eight horribly mutilated bodies had been recovered this morning from the smoldering ruins of the Norwegian oil tanker Mantilla, another man died from burns and from eight to a dozen workmen believed to have been aboard have not yet been accounted for by rescuers and firemen gingerly poking about the ship in momentary fear of another explosion.

Irana Herason, a member of the crew, died today.

The exact death list may never be known. Officials do not know how many of the missing were aboard the boat when the blast came, and has rendered difficult an accurate check. The injured numbered 40, and a few of these are so seriously hurt their deaths are expected.

Gas Caused Blast.

The explosion is believed to have been caused by gas generated in one of the ship's storage tanks.

The Mantilla has been in drydock at Sparrows Point for several weeks, undergoing repairs. She was to have gone into the service of the Mexican Petroleum company, on Monday. W. Wilhelmson, Ponberg, Norway is the owner.

The big tanker was alive with workmen at the time of the explosion. Burning oil was scattered over a wide area and firemen had to fight for hours to prevent the spread of a serious conflagration. They had to work carefully, too, in momentary expectation of a second blast from another tank.

Ship Blown Apart.

Capt. Nils Danielsen, commanding the Mantilla, said the ship was literally blown apart. He was on the dock when the explosion occurred.

"The air was full of flying steel and burning oil," said Capt. Danielsen. "Men were running around with their clothing afire, screaming with pain. I saw several with arms blown off. It was the most terrible thing I ever saw."

An accurate casualty list will not be possible until some time today when officials complete a check-up of the injured who were rushed to hospitals by every available automobile.

PLAN GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY PROGRAM DEC. 5

W. C. T. U. Will Sponsor Observance of Day in Ohio.

AID FOR ORPHANS

Movement in Behalf of Children in Near East.

Observance of Golden Rule Sunday, December 5, will have the ardent sponsorship of the Ohio Women's Christian Temperance union, according to announcement from Columbus headquarters of the organization.

The support of young people's societies in all communities will be sought by the W. C. T. U. women in pledging observance of the day in behalf of the orphan tots of the Near East. A letter issued by Mrs. Florence D. Richard, president of the temperance organization, and Mrs H. D. Van Kirk, secretary, asks local unions to take an active part in the campaign.

In a recent overseas tour, Mrs. Richard met the Bible land tots face to face, returning to America with an enthusiastic appreciation of this country's colossal child welfare task. In becoming sponsor for Golden Rule Sunday the W. C. T. U. has departed from its custom of gathering its funds for its own work, Mrs. Richard explains, for the child need of Bible lands is too urgent to be ignored by red-blooded women.

"They have as much right to love, happiness and laughter as your own children in your home,' says the president in speaking of the Near East orphans. "Their parents are dead. They are not asking for much—only a bit of bread and a place to sleep. There are more of them than the Near East Relief has funds to care for. 'Faith without works is dead.'"

"It is hoped that all local unions in Ohio will respond in their usual splendid spirit and in remembrance of the needy little children, says Mrs. Richard in a letter to the W. C. T. U. membership.

AID FOR ORPHANS

Movement in Behalf of Children in Near East.

Observance of Golden Rule Sunday, December 5, will have the ardent sponsorship of the Ohio Women's Christian Temperance union, according to announcement from Columbus headquarters of the organization.

The support of young people's societies in all communities will be sought by the W. C. T. U. women in pledging observance of the day in behalf of the orphan tots of the Near East. A letter issued by Mrs. Florence D. Richard, president of the temperance organization, and Mrs. H. D. Van Kirk, secretary, asks local unions to take an active part in the campaign.

In a recent overseas tour, Mrs. Richard met the Bible land tots face to face, returning to America with an enthusiastic appreciation of this country's colossal child welfare task. In becoming sponsor for Golden Rule Sunday the W. C. T. U. has departed from its custom of gathering its funds for its own work. Mrs. Richard explains, for the child need of Bible lands is too urgent to be ignored by red-blooded women.

"They have as much right to love, happiness and laughter as your own children in your home,' says the president in speaking of the Near East orphans. "Their parents are dead. They are not asking for much—only a bit of bread and a place to sleep. There are more of them than the Near East Relief has funds to care for. 'Faith without works is dead.'"

"It is hoped that all local unions in Ohio will respond in their usual splendid spirit and in remembrance of the needy little children, says Mrs. Richard in a letter to the W. C. T. U membership.

ASKS CHILDREN TO SEND DOLLS TO JAPANESE

Council of Churches Urges Demonstration of Good Will.

LEADER NAMED

Appeal to Sunday Schools and Other Organizations.

An invitation to the children of East Liverpool to participate this fall in a nation-wide demonstration of good will for Japan by sending thousands of "doll messengers of friendship" to that country was brought here today by Rev. H. E. Beckler, field secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches.

He came to confer with local church leaders in the interest of the program. Plans are under way to organize a local committee of church women to secure the participation of Sunday school classes, public school groups, neighborhood groups and various church and social organizations of children.

Mrs. C. R. Reese, Ambrose avenue, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, will have charge of the work here.

Buy and Dress a Doll.

Each group taking part, Beckler explained, will buy and dress a doll, write a good will message to go with it and send it off after a farewell reception to join with those of thousands of other children on the long journey to Japan.

Arriving in Japan, the American dolls will be distributed to all parts of the country through the public schools, with the official co-operation of the government, and each of them will go into a Japanese home at the time of the national "Festival of Dolls" on March 3.

This festival is the great national home holiday of the Japanese, when attention is centered on the family life and when the children hold a prominence in the household similar to that of American children at Christmas time. Ancestral doll treasures handed down in the family for generations are placed on display at this time. The American dolls will take their place in these collections, to stand in future years as a reminder of the good will of the mass of the American people for those of Japan.

Message of Good Will.

"The value of the doll messengers as a force for world peace will thus be twofold." Beckler pointed out. "They will carry the message of good will to the Japanese not only now but for year after year in the future, and in addition they will afford an opportunity for acquainting American children with the Japanese and giving them an understanding of the fine qualities of that nation."

The national movement to send doll messengers to Japan is led by the Committee on World Friendship Among Children, which is allied with the Federal Council of Churches. In Ohio the Woman's Committee of the Ohio Council of Churches has assumed full responsibility for the undertaking and is seeking to organize county committees throughout the state.

Each doll that goes to Japan will carry a passport. The passport fee is one cent and the cost of the transportation ticket which must be provided for each is 99 cents. New and attractively dressed dolls are to be sent.

Ministers and other local church leaders have been provided with detailed information about the project and others desiring such information can obtain it by writing to the Ohio Council of Churches, 415 Outlook building, Columbus, Beckler said.

But—He "Felt No Better For That"

A man from Nebraska tells this: "For three nights I was kept awake by a bothersome persistent cough, and so were others of the family; and I felt no better for that. The very first doses of Foley's Honey and Tar relieved me and in two days' time my cough was entirely gone." Think of the saving of distress to himself and others, had he taken Foley's Honey and Tar Compound at the start. It pays to keep it on hand. The large family size is a real economical buy. Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

Hapsburg Castle for Sale to American; Duke Needs Money

SALZBURG.—The finest of the Hapsburg castles is for sale and preferably to an American. The castle is Hohenwerfen, near here, belonging to the Archduke Eugene of Hapsburg and has been placed on the market because the war-ruined Hapsburg has not enough money to make the needed repairs on his estate.

Like all of the Royal house, the Archduke Eugene lost his properties in the former Austrian domain, now Czecho-Slovakia, Italy, Roumania and Jugo-Slavia. These confiscated estates were the most rumenerative of Archduke and at present he finds himself with only Hohenwerfen, his summer seat, in his possession and no income.

The castle is the most beautiful and one of the most historical in the country. It commands the finest position in the beautiful country surrounding Salzburg, and dates in parts to the tenth century when the early Hapsburgs were yet only seeking to gain a foothold in the land they later ruled for six centuries.

The Archduke must have money and is making efforts to dispose of the relics, paintings and furniture if he cannot find anyone in America rich enough to buy his castle.

Bats can reduce to a minimum the havoc wrought on the apple crops by the coddling moth.

Warm Comfort in Every Room With the Improved Anchor Hot-Blast Heater

Wherever heating stoves are used the Anchor Hot Blast proves its superiority—proves that in downright efficiency, in convenience, in actual economy, it is without an equal.

This superiority is not an accident, but is the result of many years of practical and scientific heating stove manufacture and practical tests.

The features of construction the Anchor Hot Blast Heater meet every requirement of heating-stove efficiency and long-time service. Highest quality materials, expert workmanship and scientific design combine to give a heating result unequalled in this type of heater.

The Anchor Hot Blast will burn any fuel—hard coal, soft coal, lignite wood or coke, giving a uniform heat under perfect control, and slow economical combustion. Because ofthe hot-blast feature, the gases from soft coal are completely burned, making a ton of soft coal equal to a tonor more of expensive hard coal.

Careful attention has been applied to every detail of construction. And it is mounted absolutely airtight and remains airtight, because these details have been perfected and made practical.

In addition to a fine appearance that will ast the life of the stove, the Anchor Hot Blast offers real home comfort and a saving of 25 per cent on your fuel bill.

Study these construction features. Know that your Anchor Hot Blast will save its cost out of the coal bin and pay dividends for years to come in warm home comfort and satisfaction.

Buy Christmas Seals

With the closing of the tenth annual Red Cross roll call, in which East Liverpool is participating, on Thanksgiving Day, the Christmas seal campaign will be launched in Ohio. And during the following month, people of the Buckeye state will see three carolers singing every day, everywhere, for they are painted on the 1926 message of health.

These carolers are garbed in scarlet cowls and tights, and bright yellow jerkins—the costume of minstrels. One touches the strings of a lute; another sounds the clear notes of a trumpet, and between them a third holds a show-white shield bearing the double-barred cross, world-wide emblem of the tuberculosis association.

Symbolical, indeed, of the purpose of the Christmas seal is the use of the minstrels on the Yuletide seal, for the magic word is derived from the old Latin noun, "minister," which means "one who serves." And the Christmas seals do serve in the campaign to reduce the white plague toll.

Since the fight against the disease, through the sale of Christmas seals, the tuberculosis death rate in Ohio has been cut in half. The state rate per 100,000 population for 1925 was 76.1 as compared with 150.7 in 1910.

The sale of the penny messages of health and Christmas cheer provide the funds for carrying on the fight against the malady.

Federal Taxes

There is a great deal of confused argument and temper over what shall be done with that United States treasury surplus. As far as the public is concerned, there is little to get excited about.

It is pleasant to have a surplus of $250,000,000 or $300,000,000 accumulating in this fiscal year. It is substantial evidence of national prosperity. And it will be pleasant to have it applied to any legitimate purpose.

If it is applied to a reduction of the national debt, that will put the nation just that much ahead and, by reducing the interest payments, make less taxes necessary hereafter. If it is returned to the taxpayers in the form of a rebate this year or next year, why, that will be pleasant for the people who get it. As long as congress doesn't start right in to spend the surplus foolishly, just because it is burning a hole in the governmental pocket, nobody will have any serious kick coming.

The really important thing, however, is to keep on reducing taxes to whatever extent the accumulating surpluses show it is possible, collecting from year to year only the amount for operating the government thriftily and paying off the national debt systematically. And as matters stand, there is pretty general agreement that the next place for a slash is in the coroporation income taxes, which were raised last year when personal taxes were lowered.

That will benefit immediately a lot of corporations which possibly can afford the taxes. But they, as well as individual taxpayers, have a reduction coming to them, and indirectly everybody should benefit by such procedure. As matters stand, the high corporation taxes are simply passed along to the public in high prices.

First American Cathedral

We are rapidly getting acquainted, nowadays, with a lot of Ameican pioneers formerly overlooked or diregarded. The latest revelation brings truly remakable news of one of the famous old Norse explorers, Eric the Red.

It was long known that Eric had headed a colony of Norsemen who settled in Greenland and had explored a large part of the Atlantic coast, but the extent of the Greenland settlement was not realized. Dr. Noerland, who has been conducting archeological researches in that forbidding northern land, has returned to Copenhagen with an account of a regular city built by those old Norsemen at Ivigo. He has discovered the foundation of a large cathedral and many other buildings, among them a bishop's palace of red sandstone that is said to have covered five and a half acres.

Think of a Christian cathedral in America in the twelfth century. We shall have to revise some of our historical ideas and give due credit to pioneers far earlier and more daring than our own New England and Virginian settlers.

Modern Saints

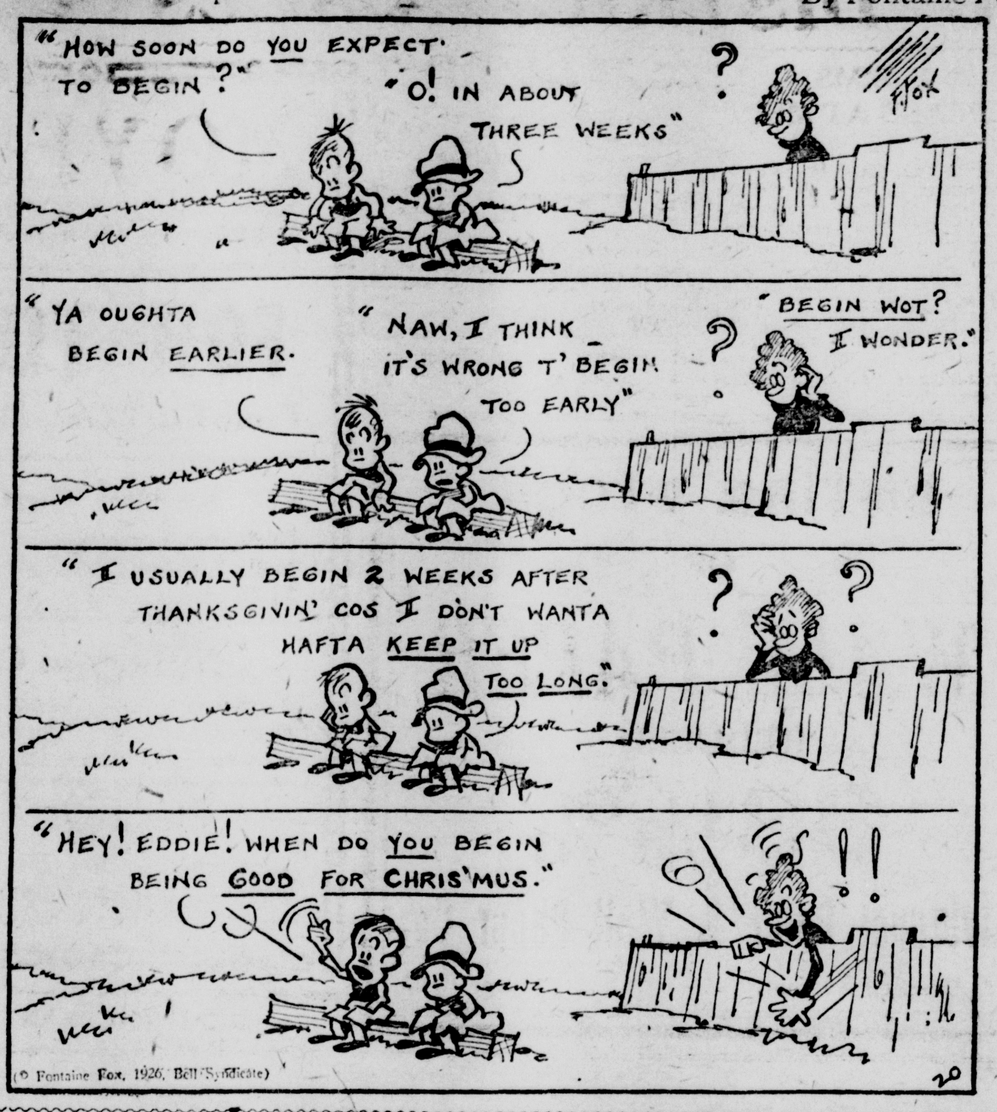

A Swiss peasant has got himself into trouble. He was wealthy, as his class reckons wealth. He wanted to rid himself of his property for the sake of heavenly riches. So he gave his farm to his brother and distributed his money, amounting to $10,000, among the poor, and planned to earn enough for his simple wants as an insurance agent.

Thereupon a local orphan asylum asked the court to appoint somebody to look after him, on the ground that his actions showed him to be mentally deranged and in danger of becoming a public charge.

When Leo Tolstoy likewise sought salvation in voluntary poverty, people said he was in need of a guardian.

Long ago St. Francis of Assisi set the historic example for that sort of procedure, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness. He became a notable example for the ages. But the present generation looks at such things differently.

My Favorite Stories

By IRVIN S. COBB

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

One of my older favorites—I may have repeated it here in this column deals with the man who met a man. And the first man said to the second man: "Is your wife entertaining this winter?" And the second man replied briefly but bitterly: "Not very."

Now there bobs up an elaboration of this popular theme which in my opinion also deserves a place in our symposium.

A haggard-looking individual encounters an acquaintance on the street. The following dialogue then ensues:

'So you were at the meeting of the Civic Improvement Forum yesterday? My wife was there. Did she speak?

"Well, I don't know your wife, but there was one tall, slender lady with a very intent expression who arose—"

"That must have been my wife. Go on."

"She arose and said she could not find the words to express her feelings."

"That couldn't have been my wife!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—It has been estimated that 10,000 women in Manhattan have permanently despoiled natural beauty by tampering with their hair. The efforts of blondes and brunettes to change with the season exacted this alarming toll.

A coiffure expert is also authority for the statement that several thousand women are now wearing wigs to "hide scars of vanity." In these instances the chemical process has shorn the hair of gloss and left it brittle and unmanageable.

In every gathering are "dyehards" who are paying the price — henna turning to stagnant green, straw blonde dark at the roots and gray, the sickly stain of walnut juice. Hair dressers defend their art by saying the victims were inexpertly treated. Whatever the cause, results are ghastly.

Under brilliant and penetrating lights are to be found young women of amazing beauty with hair revealing several grotesque shades. In some instances the damage can never be remedied and in others it will take years to blot out the transformation.

There are innumerable ladies of the stage who have found themselves jobless because of the appearance of their hair under spotlights. And several producers have banned blondined and hennaed choristers from the ensemble.

Following the prevalent idea last summer that gentlemen preferred blondes it is recorded several thousand provocative ladies whose habitat was the moist dales of Broadway appeared in sudden and peroxided splendor almost over night.

They seemed impressed with the notion like attracted like—gold would bring gold. Now they are trying to unscramble the result with no great success. As one lady of the evening expressed it: "I certainly dealt myself a mess of misery when I tried to outsmart nature."

I am told New York street cleaners are called "White Wings" because they express the energetic spirit of a popular song in the Nineties: "White wings—they never grow weary."

Five years ago a New Yorker married a beautiful and prominent girl. Every day since he has received a post card in the same hand reading, "How's the bride?" The cards are rarely mailed from the same station and often they come from distant cities and far away countries. At first he considered it a mere joke of friends but the insistance has caused him annoyances and I was told he had offered a $10,000 reward to the private detective agency solving the mystery. While the writer is disobeying no law, he is proving a provoking nuisance.

Today a man and his wife came to call. He had been a bricklayer who had given up his trade to devote his efforts to winning a $5,000 short-story prize. There is no particular reason why a bricklayer cannot write—but it happened this one couldn't. His manuscript was painfully ungrammatic and plotless and while he explained the high light of his story his faithful wife beamed and nodded her approval. They were already making plans for a trip to Europe with the prize and it required a more courageous person than I to tell them their hope was futile. I know they left me with a little lump in my throat.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Three Months of Disasters.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 20.—Early in August the American Red Cross made the announcement that for the first time in many years of disaster relief work a fiscal year had ended on June 30, without the occurrence of a major disaster. Seemingly coming almost as a direct challenge to this boast the month of August ushered in a series of disasters, until now it is said that never before in the history of the Red Cross has there been visited upon the North American continent such a disaster period.

The first wrath of the elements struck along the South Atlantic and Gulf Coasts when one or two vessels disappeared mysteriously from the ocean's face, and others scurried to the nearest harbors. And then on August 27, a hurricane struck Terrebone Parish, Louisiana. Twenty-two persons were killed in Houma, crops were destroyed, and scores of buildings were demolished. The economic loss was estimated at approximately $5,000,000. Four hundred families were homeless and were in dire need of the help which was immediately rushed to the spot by the Red Cross. The stricken ones were fed, clothed, and housed, and general vaccinating was carried on in cooperation with the state board of health in an attempt to forestall a possible outbreak of typhoid.

In the meantime the waters of the Illinois river were rising and on September 8, they overflowed their banks at Jacksonville, Illinois, flooding the homes of 135 families. Local chapters of the Red Cross in nearby communities hurried relief and the nation's organizations advanced funds to assist in the work.

A few days later a call for help came from Eastern Kansas where a flood had centered at Burlington putting the business district of that town under several feet of water. There 90 families were affected and in the rural districts more than 200 families, the economic loss being placed at $2,000,000.

The Florida Hurricane.

Then followed the greatest disaster of all—the one which left a nation stunned and brought to ruins many "shining palaces built upon the sands." The Florida hurricane shook the country, both because of the amount of havoc wrough and because the losses touched people from practically every section. This catastrophe left 20,000 families homeless, killed nearly 400 persons, and injured 6375.

Practically everyone is familiar by this time with the relief work done by the Red Cross, as well as by other agencies in Florida. The Red Cross alone sent approximately 400 workers to aid during the emergency. These included not only doctors and nurses, but experienced case workers, accountants, and clerks. It is said that not since the great San Francisco earthquake and fire in 1906 has the organization been called upon to face a relief task of such magnitude.

The official records show that in the week from October 2 to October 9, in Florida, the Red Cross gave medical and nursing aid to 113,200 persons, many of whom were inoculated against infectious diseases; that food was distributed to 6,500 persons and clothing to 4,650. In addition, materials for the repair of homes were furnished to 3,000 families and tents erected to house 1,900 homeless persons.

This was all in addition to the work necessary to carry on the permanent progress of rehabilitation.

The Red Cross health workers, the local doctors, and the local health officials of the devastated area are proud of the fact that, in the face of conditions ideal for the appearance of virulent epidemics, excellent health conditions have existed throughout the hurricane zone. In most communities the number of cases of contagious diseases has actually been smaller than usual. An outstanding achievement is represented by the absence of tetanus and other complications among the thousands injured. There was but one tetanus case and that was a mild one which responded quickly to threatment.

The fact that it was necessary to concentrate such a large number of Red Cross workers in the Florida devastated area has not deterred that organization from rendering efficient aid in other districts where it has been needed. Floods have continued in various sections of the Middle West and in Sioux City 300 cases were reported as needing help, while in the Hawarden area 200 were aided. Most of this work was very efficiently handled by chapter workers.

Another Illinois Flood.

Later in September the Illinois again became unruly and the waters rose, steadily inundating the country for miles, until suddenly the levees broke, and the havoc was complete. The mid-western branch office of the American Red Cross stated that the flood situation in the Illinois river valley was a very serious one and represented the largest flood operation which that office had been called upon to handle. It was conservatively estimated that 2,000 families were affected in the valley and along the Mississipi river between Alton and Quincy, Illinois.

But nature was still on the rampage. Sandusky, Ohio, had a tornado late in September, and in October Wagoner county, Oklahoma, had a similar visitor, with the added complication of a flood. In Alaska a series of fires broke out, destroying four villages in one section, two in another.

Buy Christmas Seals

With the closing of the tenth annual Red Cross roll call, in which East Liverpool is participating, on Thanksgiving Day, the Christmas seal campaign will be launched in Ohio. And during the following month, people of the Buckeye state will see three carolers singing every day, everywhere, for they are painted on the 1926 message of health.

These carolers are garbed in scarlet cowls and tights, and bright yellow jerkins—the costume of minstrels. One touches the strings of a lute; another sounds the clear notes of a trumpet, and between them a third holds a show-white shield bearing the double-barred cross, world-wide emblem of the tuberculosis association.

Symbolical, indeed, of the purpose of the Christmas seal is the use of the minstrels on the Yuletide seal, for the magic word is derived from the old Latin noun, "minister," which means "one who serves." And the Christmas seals do serve in the campaign to reduce the white plague toll.

Since the fight against the disease, through the sale of Christmas seals, the tuberculosis death rate in Ohio has been cut in half. The state rate per 100,000 population for 1925 was 76.1 as compared with 150.7 in 1910.

The sale of the penny messages of health and Christmas cheer provide the funds for carrying on the fight against the malady.

Federal Taxes

There is a great deal of confused argument and temper over what shall be done with that United States treasury surplus. As far as the public is concerned, there is little to get excited about.

It is pleasant to have a surplus of $250,000,000 or $300,000,000 accumulating in this fiscal year. It is substantial evidence of national prosperity. And it will be pleasant to have it applied to any legitimate purpose.

If it is applied to a reduction of the national debt, that will put the nation just that much ahead and, by reducing the interest payments, make less taxes necessary hereafter. If it is returned to the taxpayers in the form of a rebate this year or next year, why, that will be pleasant for the people who get it. As long as congress doesn't start right in to spend the surplus foolishly, just because it is burning a hole in the governmental pocket, nobody will have any serious kick coming.

The really important thing, however, is to keep on reducing taxes to whatever extent the accumulating surpluses show it is possible, collecting from year to year only the amount for operating the government thriftily and paying off the national debt systematically. And as matters stand, there is pretty general agreement that the next place for a slash is in the coroporation income taxes, which were raised last year when personal taxes were lowered.

That will benefit immediately a lot of corporations which possibly can afford the taxes. But they, as well as individual taxpayers, have a reduction coming to them, and indirectly everybody should benefit by such procedure. As matters stand, the high corporation taxes are simply passed along to the public in high prices.

First American Cathedral

We are rapidly getting acquainted, nowadays, with a lot of Ameican pioneers formerly overlooked or diregarded. The latest revelation brings truly remakable news of one of the famous old Norse explorers, Eric the Red.

It was long known that Eric had headed a colony of Norsemen who settled in Greenland and had explored a large part of the Atlantic coast, but the extent of the Greenland settlement was not realized. Dr. Noerland, who has been conducting archeological researches in that forbidding northern land, has returned to Copenhagen with an account of a regular city built by those old Norsemen at Ivigo. He has discovered the foundation of a large cathedral and many other buildings, among them a bishop's palace of red sandstone that is said to have covered five and a half acres.

Think of a Christian cathedral in America in the twelfth century. We shall have to revise some of our historical ideas and give due credit to pioneers far earlier and more daring than our own New England and Virginian settlers.

Modern Saints

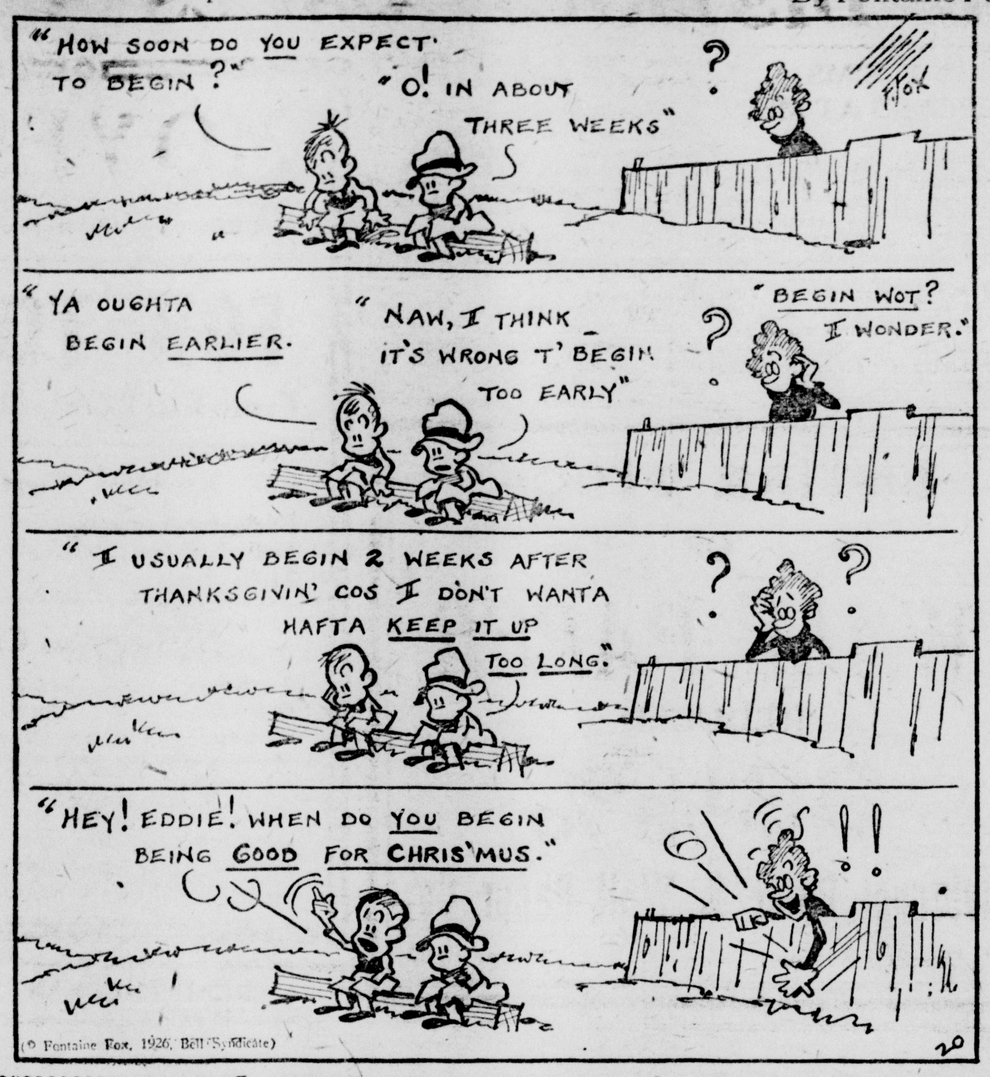

A Swiss peasant has got himself into trouble. He was wealthy, as his class reckons wealth. He wanted to rid himself of his property for the sake of heavenly riches. So he gave his farm to his brother and distributed his money, amounting to $10,000, among the poor, and planned to earn enough for his simple wants as an insurance agent.

Thereupon a local orphan asylum asked the court to appoint somebody to look after him, on the ground that his actions showed him to be mentally deranged and in danger of becoming a public charge.

When Leo Tolstoy likewise sought salvation in voluntary poverty, people said he was in need of a guardian.

Long ago St. Francis of Assisi set the historic example for that sort of procedure, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness. He became a notable example for the ages. But the present generation looks at such things differently.

My Favorite Stories

By IRVIN S. COBB

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

One of my older favorites—I may have repeated it here in this column deals with the man who met a man. And the first man said to the second man: "Is your wife entertaining this winter?" And the second man replied briefly but bitterly: "Not very."

Now there bobs up an elaboration of this popular theme which in my opinion also deserves a place in our symposium.

A haggard-looking individual encounters an acquaintance on the street. The following dialogue then ensues:

'So you were at the meeting of the Civic Improvement Forum yesterday? My wife was there. Did she speak?

"Well, I don't know your wife, but there was one tall, slender lady with a very intent expression who arose—"

"That must have been my wife. Go on."

"She arose and said she could not find the words to express her feelings."

"That couldn't have been my wife!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—It has been estimated that 10,000 women in Manhattan have permanently despoiled natural beauty by tampering with their hair. The efforts of blondes and brunettes to change with the season exacted this alarming toll.

A coiffure expert is also authority for the statement that several thousand women are now wearing wigs to "hide scars of vanity." In these instances the chemical process has shorn the hair of gloss and left it brittle and unmanageable.

In every gathering are "dyehards" who are paying the price — henna turning to stagnant green, straw blonde dark at the roots and gray, the sickly stain of walnut juice. Hair dressers defend their art by saying the victims were inexpertly treated. Whatever the cause, results are ghastly.

Under brilliant and penetrating lights are to be found young women of amazing beauty with hair revealing several grotesque shades. In some instances the damage can never be remedied and in others it will take years to blot out the transformation.

There are innumerable ladies of the stage who have found themselves jobless because of the appearance of their hair under spotlights. And several producers have banned blondined and hennaed choristers from the ensemble.

Following the prevalent idea last summer that gentlemen preferred blondes it is recorded several thousand provocative ladies whose habitat was the moist dales of Broadway appeared in sudden and peroxided splendor almost over night.

They seemed impressed with the notion like attracted like—gold would bring gold. Now they are trying to unscramble the result with no great success. As one lady of the evening expressed it: "I certainly dealt myself a mess of misery when I tried to outsmart nature."

I am told New York street cleaners are called "White Wings" because they express the energetic spirit of a popular song in the Nineties: "White wings—they never grow weary."

Five years ago a New Yorker married a beautiful and prominent girl. Every day since he has received a post card in the same hand reading, "How's the bride?" The cards are rarely mailed from the same station and often they come from distant cities and far away countries. At first he considered it a mere joke of friends but the insistance has caused him annoyances and I was told he had offered a $10,000 reward to the private detective agency solving the mystery. While the writer is disobeying no law, he is proving a provoking nuisance.

Today a man and his wife came to call. He had been a bricklayer who had given up his trade to devote his efforts to winning a $5,000 short-story prize. There is no particular reason why a bricklayer cannot write—but it happened this one couldn't. His manuscript was painfully ungrammatic and plotless and while he explained the high light of his story his faithful wife beamed and nodded her approval. They were already making plans for a trip to Europe with the prize and it required a more courageous person than I to tell them their hope was futile. I know they left me with a little lump in my throat.

In memory of our daughter, Mildred, who died one year ago today, Nov. 19, 1925:

When the evening shades are falling
and we are sitting all alone
To our hearts there come a longing
If she only would come home.
We think of her in silence,
No eye can see us weep
And many a tear is shed
While others are asleep.
More and more each day we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But little do they know the sorrow
That lies within our heart concealed.

DAMAGE VERDICT IS RETURNED

A verdict of $2,006.30 for the plaintiff was returned by the jury in the case of E. C. Ray of Green township, against John C. Boyd of near Hookstown, in the Beaver county courts Thursday. The suit which was tried before Judge William A. McConnel started last Friday afternoon, occupying the greater part of five days.

The suit for damages brought by Mr. Ray grew out of an alleged false representation of the value of the goods and fixtures in a store in Hookstown, formerly owned by the defendant, Mr. Boyd, and traded by him to Ray for a farm in Greene township. According to the terms of the contract between the two men, most of which was oral, Ray was to pay $1,500 for the store building and $10,000 for the stock and fixtures. Mr. Boyd was to pay Mr. Ray $6,000 for the farm. The livestock and machinery was to be paid for according to the appraisement, which amounted to $2,757.70. The store goods and fixtures were also to be appraised, but the deal was closed before the appraisement had been completed, according to witnesses. When the appraisement was finished the goods and fixtures were found to be worth only approximately $5,700.

Ray alleged that Boyd misrepresented the value of the stock in the store, and sued him for damages. The defendant claimed that he never told Ray that the value of goods was $10,000 or over.

According to witnesses, Ray took possession of the store, on September 4, and the inventory of the stockwas not completed until about September 12.

DOCTOR'S MURDER CHARGED TO FEUD

Activity in politics may have resulted in the murder of Dr. Diego Delfino, 51, in Brooke county, Wednesday night. Sheriff Robert M. Lowe and Coroner J. B. Wilkinshaw yesterday made public that they are working at present under this belief.

Bits of evidence have been uncovered, one of which was that Dr. Delfino had written his own obituary and had a body guard with him almost constantly. This man, known only as Tony, came to the physician's home ten minutes after Delfino started on the fatal automobile ride with a stranger who shot him six times as he drove along the river highway. The sheriff stated that it has been learned that Delfino was an organizer for an Italian political and secret society known as the Sons of Garibaldi and standing in favor of Mussolini. Bills for telegraph and cable tolls found in his office indicated that he kept in close touch with organizers throughout the world.

He is said to have received large envelopes of registered mail from Italy. In 1918, while a resident of Columbus, he was sent by the governor of Ohio to Italy in connection with affairs out of the World War. In 1924 he was made a chevalier of the sovereign military order of Constantini and St. George.

IN MEMORIUM.

In memory of our daughter, Mildred, who died one year ago today, Nov. 19, 1925:

When the evening shades are falling
and we are sitting all alone
To our hearts there come a longing
If she only would come home.
We think of her in silence,
No eye can see us weep
And many a tear is shed
While others are asleep.
More and more each day we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But little do they know the sorrow
That lies within our heart concealed.

DAMAGE VERDICT IS RETURNED

A verdict of $2,006.30 for the plaintiff was returned by the jury in the case of E. C. Ray of Green township, against John C. Boyd of near Hookstown, in the Beaver county courts Thursday. The suit which was tried before Judge William A. McConnel started last Friday afternoon, occupying the greater part of five days.

The suit for damages brought by Mr. Ray grew out of an alleged false representation of the value of the goods and fixtures in a store in Hookstown, formerly owned by the defendant, Mr. Boyd, and traded by him to Ray for a farm in Greene township. According to the terms of the contract between the two men, most of which was oral, Ray was to pay $1,500 for the store building and $10,000 for the stock and fixtures. Mr. Boyd was to pay Mr. Ray $6,000 for the farm. The livestock and machinery was to be paid for according to the appraisement, which amounted to $2,757.70. The store goods and fixtures were also to be appraised, but the deal was closed before the appraisement had been completed, according to witnesses. When the appraisement was finished the goods and fixtures were found to be worth only approximately $5,700.

Ray alleged that Boyd misrepresented the value of the stock in the store, and sued him for damages. The defendant claimed that he never told Ray that the value of goods was $10,000 or over.

According to witnesses, Ray took possession of the store, on September 4. and the inventory of the stockwas not completed until about September 12.

DOCTOR'S MURDER CHARGED TO FEUD

Activity in politics may have resulted in the murder of Dr. Diego Delfino, 51, in Brooke county, Wednesday night. Sheriff Robert M. Lowe and Coroner J. B. Wilkinshaw yesterday made public that they are working at present under this belief.

Bits of evidence have been uncovered, one of which was that Dr. Delfino had written his own obituary and had a body guard with him almost constantly. This man, known only as Tony, came to the physician's home ten minutes after Delfino started on the fatal automobile ride with a stranger who shot him six times as he drove along the river highway. The sheriff stated that it has been learned that Delfino was an organizer for an Italian political and secret society known as the Sons of Garibaldi and standing in favor of Mussolini. Bills for telegraph and cable tolls found in his office indicated that he kept in close touch with organizers throughout the world.

He is said to have received large envelopes of registered mail from Italy. In 1918, while a resident of Columbus, he was sent by the governor of Ohio to Italy in connection with affairs out of the World War. In 1924 he was made a chevalier of the sovereign military order of Constantini and St. George.

Appealing for city-wide aid in raising the mercy fund, Mayor W. L. Fogo today issued the following proclamation:

"On Sunday, November 21, the Boy Scouts of Wellsville will volunteer their service for the annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross.

"Every man, woman and child should welcome this opportunity to express approval and lend moral and financial support to an organization which stands ever ready to extend a helping hand to the unfortunate in our community, in the nation, and over the world.

"The American Red Cross has been called the nation's Mother of Mercy. It is well named. Its charter from congress designates it as the official agency for sending relief in disaster in this country and to foreign lands. To all who suffer in fire, flood, hurricane or other calamity, its offers immediate help and consolation. In addition, it at all times carries on a program of public health which alone merits the support of the American people.

"Therefore, as mayor, I call upon all citizens to seek to share in its humanitarian activities by answering the roll call for members. Let us "have our dollars ready and meet the Boy Scouts with a smile" Sunday.

"WALLACE L. FOGO, mayor."

HENRY STEVENS OFFERS ALIBI IN HALL-MILLS CASE

OUTDOORS MAN TESTIFIES IN MURDER TRIAL

Wife Gives Him Encouraging Pat on Shoulder.

CALM ON STAND

Denies Any Connection With De Russey Lane Slayings.

COURT HOUSE, Somerville, N. J., Nov. 20.—Henry Stevens, one of the defendants in the Hall-Mills murder trial, took the witness stand in his own defense when court opened at 10:08 o'clock this morning.

"Henry Stevens!" cried John Bunn, quaint crier of the court. Ruddy faced Henry Stevens, outdoors man and crack shot, walked briskly to the stand.

Stevens, with his brother, Willie, and his sister, Mrs. Frances Stevens-Hall, is accused of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills in De Russey's lane on the night of September 14, 1922.

Mrs. Henry Stevens, sitting just back of the defendants, gave her husband an encouraging pat on the shoulder as he left his seat for the witness stand.

Today His Birthday.

Defense Attorney Clarence Case began questioning Stevens.

"How old are you?" He asked.

"Fifty-seven, today is my birthday."

"Are you difficult of hearing?"

"I am—a little."

Case spoke louder.

"Where do you live?"

"Lavallette, N. J."

Lavallette is 58 miles from De Russey's lane, where Mrs. Jane Gibson, the state's star witness, said she saw Henry Stevens on the night of the murder.

Lavallette is about eight or nine miles south of Point Pleasant, N. J., near Barnegat bay and the ocean and connects with Bayhead, N. J.

Arms Demonstrator.

"What has been your business?"

"I worked for the Dupont company and demonstrated how to shoot clay pigeons on the pier at Atlantic City. I also worked for the Remington Arms company. I demonstrated trap shooting for them. I called on dealers and advertised trap shooting. I was also a salesman for them."

He testified the Remington Arms company made a small two-barrelled revolver.

He had experience with all makes of cartridges so he could sell them, he said.

"Have you ever had any experience with a pistol?"

"Yes—about 25 years ago."

He said as late as 1915 he had a pistol but he gave it away.

Owned Revolver in 1892.

"Prior to 1915 did you have a revolver?"

"In 1892 I had one."

"From 1915 did you have a revolver?"

"No. I haven't fired one in 25 years."

"How could you get to New Brunswick from Lavallette?"

"By way of Seagirt to Monmouth Junction and thence to New Brunswick."

In 1922, he testified the roads were very good over several different routes.

"Did you drive a car in 1922 or prior to that time?"

"Only a Ford."

He had never driven a gear shift car, he testified.

His Ford had a box body with moveable seats, both front and rear, he said. Its color was natural wood.

Stevens testified that after he settled down in Lavallette he did not often visit his relatives in New Brunswick.

His mother died in New Brunswick in 1919 and after that he didn't go back there often, although his sister, Mrs. Hall, lived there.

Q. What were your relations with your sister, Mrs. Hall.

A. Very pleasant.

Q. Where were you on the 14th of September, 1922?

A. Lavallette.

Q. Describe your movements on that day.

A. I was around town practically all day. I drove down to see a friend in Seaside park. Then I looked after my boats along the edge of the bay, a block from my house.

Mrs. Hall Changes Chairs.

While Stevens was on the stand, Mrs. Hall left her accustomed seat between her brothers and moved to a chair at the far end of defense counsel table.

Stevens was calm and self possessed.

"Continue as to your movements on September 14, 1922, Case said.

A.—I fished part of the time in the afternoon and then visited friends in Seaside park, two miles away. I returned after a short time and fished again.

Q.—What did you do after supper that evening.

A.—I went out on the beach and fished on and off till 9 o'clock. I remember returning to the house. I also remember going to Mr. Egger's house, and then I came back and again went fishing on the beach.

Stevens, in his calm, even voice related that after supper he went north of his house to a hole and fished.

Q.—Whom did you meet?

A.—About dusk Arthur Applegate came along with a good sized blue fish. It weighed about six pounds. I remember because I weighed it on my small scales."

Stevens said that after weighing the fish he returned to his fishing on the beach. He couldn't remember the exact time, but he remembered being with Mr. Eggers.

"We both fished together until about 9 o'clock," he said.

Q. What did you do then?

A. I returned to the house to clean the fish I caught. After that I went back to the beach to see if any one made any good catches. I then returned home for a drink of ginger ale or root beer and talked a few minutes with Mr. Eggers, who called. Mr. Eggers went home after a little while.

Q. What time was that?

A. I think it was about 10 o'clock or a little later.

(The time of the double murder in De Russey's lane has been fixed at approximately 10:20 p. m.)

Q. What did you do then?

A. I attended to various little duties around the house such as banking the fires and then I read the paper. I retired about 11 o'clock.

Just before he retired, he said he went out of the house to see if everything was all right.

"I noticed a light next door," he said. "I stepped over to the house of Mrs. Wilson and asked her about some arrangements for Thursday with the Wilsons to go to Point Pleasant. Mrs. Wilson was to go to Point Pleasant. Mrs. Wilson and her two daughters were to compose the party. I then returned home and retired."

Telegram Is Produced.

Q. What time did you get up the next morning.

A. A half hour before sunrise and I went to the beach to catch mullet.

Mrs. Marie Demarest, witness for the state, has testified she saw Henry Stevens in New Brunswick on this Friday morning—the morning after the murder.

Then, Stevens testified, he had breakfast and went to the station to get mail. After getting the mail, he returned home.

Stevens Denies Killings

beach the exact time the shots were fired?"

Stevens was slightly ruffled for the first time.

"I was on the beach until 10:30 and I told what I did to the best of my ability," re replied.

Simpson asked Stevens how long it would take to go from LaValette to New Brunswick in a Ford. Stevens said "from two and one quarter to two and one half hours."

The prosecutor turned and shouted: "Stand up, Pete."

"Pete" did.

"Didn't you tell that man you knew a route that would get you here in an hour and a half?" Simpson cried.

"I told him I knew a short way."

Stevens insisted his relations with Mr. Hall were "very pleasant" that he was shocked to learn he was killed. He admitted, however, he did not go to the undertaker's to look upon the dead man's face.

Simpson drew the admission that Stevens did not attend his sister's wedding. But the reason was not because he hated Dr. Hall, the witness said.

"What did you think of the marriage?" Simpson asked.

"I didn't think much of it."

Prosecutor Speaks Sarcastically.

Stevens said in reply to a question that he never saw a revolver in Dr. Hall's possession. He did believe, however, that Willie had a revolver. He saw this revolver "years before the murder."

"Did you ever carry a fishing knife," Simpson asked.

"I used to carry a knife with my bait. I used it to clean fish on the night of Sept. 14, 1922."

"When your sister was arrested and in jail for 40 hours, why didn't you visit her?"

"Your brother, Willie was in jail for several weeks and told his sister that he wanted you to visit him but you never went?"

"No."

Simpson then said sarcastically:

"I'll tell you why you didn't go to see them. You were afraid to come because you might be identified and were afraid you would get your nose in a jam."

Adjournment for luncheon was then declared.

PACT REVEALS VANDERBILT'S BARTERING FOR DUCAL TITLE

Millionaire Gave Gold in Wedding of Consuelo.

KNOT IS UNTIED

Duke of Marlborough Received $3,100,000 From Trust Fund.

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The 31-year-old contract by which William Kissam Vanderbilt bartered his yankee gold for a British ducal title for his seventeen year-old daughter Consuelo, was revealed today.

The contract, a voluminous indenture between the "most noble Charles Richard John Duke of Marlborough, party of the first part, and William Kissam Vanderbilt, esquire, party of the second part," was found in the musty file of an obscure courthouse here. It was as formal, as cautious and as safe-guarding throughout its lengthy provisions as though the able financier was transferring a valuable piece of real estate for a valuable block of railroad bonds instead of conveying a beautiful heiress into the nobility.

The hitherto unpublished document revealed the shrewd bargaining by which the Duke of Marlborough shared his title with Consuelo Vanderbilt after having wrung concession after concession from her wealthy father. It also disclosed that the Duke and William K. Vanderbilt were mutually distrustful of one another.

The discovery of the marriage contract comes on the heels of the recent annullment of the marriage by the tribunal of the rota at Rome.

Annual Income of $100,000.

By the terms of the contract Vanderbilt settled, outright, on the Duke of Marlborough the proceeds of a trust fund of $2,500,000. From this fund, despite the fact that the couple has been divorced for several years, the Duke of Marlborough has already collected $3,100,000, and continues to receive an income of $100,000 a year from it.

In addition, Vanderbilt agreed to furnish Consuelo with an annual income of $100,000.

To make doubly sure that the duke got his "bit," the contract provided that in case the first trust fund in the duke's favor was voided by Consuelo's Vanderbilt relatives, on the ground that she was not of age, the duke was to receive a second trust fund of $2,500,000 which was left by William Henry Vanderbilt to William K. Vanderbilt, and which the latter promised to turn over to Consuelo.

Second Trust Fund.

In event of Vanderbilt's death Consuelo was to receive this second trust fund, thus insuring her annual income of $100,000.

Vanderbilt's distrust of his titled son-in-law was evidenced in the provision that Consuelo should not be allowed to draw in advance a single dollar of her annual income.

But this was matched by a stipulation in favor of the duke that if Consuelo should draw in excess of ten thousand pounds sterling, or $50,000 in any one year, all such funds in excess of the ten thousand pounds sterling, or $50,000 in any one year, all such funds in excess of the ten thousand pounds sterling should be paid into the ducal trust fund.

Elaborate provisions were made for the investment of the trust funds.

The Marblehead, Mass., pottery has contributed 10 samples, while the Newcomb pottery of New Orleans has three attractive bowls and six beautiful vases. From the Paul Revere pottery of Boston, Mass., there are nine displays, while Charles F. Binns of the New York state school of clay working and ceramics at Alfred university, Alfred, N. Y., has nine pieces. Edmund F. Curtis of New York is the owner of five costly pieces in the exhibit.

Pope Pius Praises Mexican "Martyrdom" In Asking Prayers

ROME, Nov. 20.—Sounding a note of highest praise for the "martyrdom" of "persecuted Catholics" in Mexico, Pope Pius XI today addressed an encyclical to the world episcopate, appealing for prayers reaffirming the "undoubted triumph of justice" in that country.

After lauding the Catholics and clergy and southern republic, Pope Pius examined in detail the anti-religious law passed by the Mexican government, laying strees upon the "vexations and persecutions" caused by the law.

The encyclical was replete with highest praise for the work of Catholic organizations in Mexico during the trying times of the religious conflicts, particularly it praised the Knights of Columbus, who organized the Association for Religious Liberty, and the Association of Mexican Ladies and Mexican Catholic Youths, "who behaved splendidly."

DR. MEL MORRIS LIKENS LIFE OF CHRISTIAN TO RAIL TRIP

"Gospel Road From Earth to Heaven" is Subject.

BAPTIST MEET

Miss Jean Mackey Leaves for Atlanta, Ga.

Likening the Christian life to a railway journey Rev. Mel Morris, with apt Scriptural quotations, delivered a unique discourse at the First Baptist church revival last evening. His subject was: "The Gospel Railroad from Earth to Heaven."

Preceding the sermon a lively testimony meeting was directed oy the pastor, Rev. A. H. O'Brien, and an equally inspiring song service was led by Miss Jean Mackey, of New Cumberland, W. Va., who since the return home of Marion Ball on Monday has taken active charge of the music with Harry Chilton, the regular church leader.

The invocation was made by Rev. W. S. Hamilton, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, of New Cumberland, W. Va.

Because of the necessity of starting today for Atlanta, Ga., to begin an engagement in evangelistic services in a church of that city Miss Mackey made her final appearance at the local revival last evening. "I deem it a privilege to have worked five nights with you," she said, as she sang her concluding solo: "My Soul Is Clinging to Jesus." She went on: "I am glad the eternal God is my refuge and under me are the everlasting arms. I want to leave these word with you as my testimony." These she sang:

"My soul is clinging to Jesus
So close to His wounded side;
Oh, He is the Rock of Ages
In Him I can safely hide."

With two services on Sunday the series will conclude. Rev. Mr. Morris' theme in the morning of the final day of the revival will be: "Satan, Sifting Satan," and in the evening his topic will be: "The Unpardonable Sin."

Rev. Mr. Morris told in detail of the necessities of a railroad which he averred were similarly needed on the gospel train. "You need a book of rules on every rail system. So do you for the gospel railway and it is the Bible," he said. The key to it is "All Scripture is given by inspiration. Through it you find the way to life."

"A railroad needs a roadbed. The gospel railway is straight. Much preparation has made it so. It is an ascending incline. Its ballast is on solid rock which in this system is Christ.

"And the gospel railroad is on the main line which is Salvation. There are no side lines to it. Neither is there salvation in any other. Many think there are other routes but this is the only one—the way of Salvation through Christ.

"There is a right of way to this railway also. Its privilege has been purchased by the 'blood of the Lord Jesus Christ.' There was no compromise in the buying transaction. The title to it is clear.

"Some times there is an uncoupled car on the gospel train. Such are backsliders. They are dangerous and may run into an open switch or be ditched. Those in it are unhappy until coupled to the train again.

"The two rails of this gospel railway are faith and works. These rightly divide the way of truth. None liveth unto himself. We are all our brothers' keeper. These rails make a strong track from earth to glory. They are of standard, and not narrow guage, and comply fully with the specifications of the book of rules.

"The superintendent of the gospel railway is God the Father. He is ever to be consulted. He knows all the details of transportation. All must go to Him through prayer for 'orders' that we may know His way.

"The engine of the gospel train moves by the propelling force of love. God is love who forms its motivating power which makes for a happy, successful journey.

"The train engineer is the Holy Spirit. By it we have divine instruction. 'He will guide you to all truth.' His hand is on the throttle of the gospel train. There will thus be no wrecks or catastrophes and harmony will exist among the passengers and crew.

"The headlight of the engine is God's word. 'Thy word shall be a lamp to my feet.' No one will be afraid to ride on a train whose headlight is God's holy word.

"And there are signals on this gospel train for warnings. Red signifies danger; 'Repent and turn from your evil ways;' green indicates the certain promises of God. 'He leadeth me in paths of righteousness.' White signifies purity. 'Who hath this hope is pure as he is pure.' All these make it a safe road to travel.

"Its switches are the temptations met enroute. These seem attractive by their promise of ease and comfort in stopover privileges. But 'you will not be tempted more than you are capable of enduring.

"There are no curves on this road. God's highway is straight for 'straight is the gate.' It is a straight road for straight people.

"The time table of this road is 'now' for 'now is the accepted time and now is the day of Salvation.' The train is leaving earth's station now. Any one delaying will find it well on its way.

"Its schedule is always on time. 'Sealed until the dayof redemption.'

"The passengers of the train consist of believers, those 'saved by grace' whose 'robes have been washed in the blood of the lamb.' Their tickets have been punched with the words 'born again.' They are not Sunday excursionists and they are not blaspheming and desecrating God's day.

"The cars of the gospel train are the churches. In them the believers ride. Some aim to go on their own account by hand cars. These aver they do not need church worship, the Sunday school and prayer meetings. But they do not go far, because of traveling under their own power.

The railway's stations and depots are the services of the churches. The stops in them are always pleasant and ever a nearer point to the trip's destination.

"The cost of passage is free 'Jesus paid it all.' It is 'without money and without price.'

HENRY STEVENS OFFERS ALIBI IN HALL-MILLS CASE

OUTDOORS MAN TESTIFIES IN MURDER TRIAL

Wife Gives Him Encouraging Pat on Shoulder.

CALM ON STAND

Denies Any Connection With De Russey Lane Slayings.

COURT HOUSE, Somerville, N. J., Nov. 20.—Henry Stevens, one of the defendants in the Hall-Mills murder trial, took the witness stand in his own defense when court opened at 10:08 o'clock this morning.

"Henry Stevens!" cried John Bunn, quaint crier of the court. Ruddy faced Henry Stevens, outdoors man and crack shot, walked briskly to the stand.

Stevens, with his brother, Willie, and his sister, Mrs. Frances Stevens-Hall, is accused of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills in De Russey's lane on the night of September 14, 1922.

Mrs. Henry Stevens, sitting just back of the defendants, gave her husband an encouraging pat on the shoulder as he left his seat for the witness stand.

Today His Birthday.

Defense Attorney Clarence Case began questioning Stevens.

"How old are you?" He asked.

"Fifty-seven, today is my birthday."

"Are you difficult of hearing?"

"I am—a little."

Case spoke louder.

"Where do you live?"

"Lavallette, N. J."

Lavallette is 58 miles from De Russey's lane, where Mrs. Jane Gibson, the state's star witness, said she saw Henry Stevens on the night of the murder.

Lavallette is about eight or nine miles south of Point Pleasant, N. J., near Barnegat bay and the ocean and connects with Bayhead, N. J.

Arms Demonstrator.

"What has been your business?"

"I worked for the Dupont company and demonstrated how to shoot clay pigeons on the pier at Atlantic City. I also worked for the Remington Arms company. I demonstrated trap shooting for them. I called on dealers and advertised trap shooting. I was also a salesman for them."

He testified the Remington Arms company made a small two-barrelled revolver.

He had experience with all makes of cartridges so he could sell them, he said.

"Have you ever had any experience with a pistol?"

"Yes—about 25 years ago."

He said as late as 1915 he had a pistol but he gave it away.

Owned Revolver in 1892.

"Prior to 1915 did you have a revolver?"

"In 1892 I had one."

"From 1915 did you have a revolver?"

"No. I haven't fired one in 25 years."

"How could you get to New Brunswick from Lavallette?"

"By way of Seagirt to Monmouth Junction and thence to New Brunswick."

In 1922, he testified the roads were very good over several different routes.

"Did you drive a car in 1922 or prior to that time?"

"Only a Ford."

He had never driven a gear shift car, he testified.

His Ford had a box body with moveable seats, both front and rear, he said. Its color was natural wood.

Stevens testified that after he settled down in Lavallette he did not often visit his relatives in New Brunswick.

His mother died in New Brunswick in 1919 and after that he didn't go back there often, although his sister, Mrs. Hall, lived there.

Q. What were your relations with your sister, Mrs. Hall.

A. Very pleasant.

Q. Where were you on the 14th of September, 1922?

A. Lavallette.

Q. Describe your movements on that day.

A. I was around town practically all day. I drove down to see a friend in Seaside park. Then I looked after my boats along the edge of the bay, a block from my house.

Mrs. Hall Changes Chairs.

While Stevens was on the stand, Mrs. Hall left her accustomed seat between her brothers and moved to a chair at the far end of defense counsel table.

Stevens was calm and self possessed.

"Continue as to your movements on September 14, 1922, Case said.

A.—I fished part of the time in the afternoon and then visited friends in Seaside park, two miles away. I returned after a short time and fished again.

Q.—What did you do after supper that evening.

A.—I went out on the beach and fished on and off till 9 o'clock. I remember returning to the house. I also remember going to Mr. Egger's house, and then I came back and again went fishing on the beach.

Stevens, in his calm, even voice related that after supper he went north of his house to a hole and fished.

Q.—Whom did you meet?

A.—About dusk Arthur Applegate came along with a good sized blue fish. It weighed about six pounds. I remember because I weighed it on my small scales."

Stevens said that after weighing the fish he returned to his fishing on the beach. He couldn't remember the exact time, but he remembered being with Mr. Eggers.

"We both fished together until about 9 o'clock," he said.

Q. What did you do then?

A. I returned to the house to clean the fish I caught. After that I went back to the beach to see if any one made any good catches. I then returned home for a drink of ginger ale or root beer and talked a few minutes with Mr. Eggers, who called. Mr. Eggers went home after a little while.

Q. What time was that?

A. I think it was about 10 o'clock or a little later.

(The time of the double murder in De Russey's lane has been fixed at approximately 10:20 p. m.)

Q. What did you do then?

A. I attended to various little duties around the house such as banking the fires and then I read the paper. I retired about 11 o'clock.

Just before he retired, he said he went out of the house to see if everything was all right.

"I noticed a light next door," he said. "I stepped over to the house of Mrs. Wilson and asked her about some arrangements for Thursday with the Wilsons to go to Point Pleasant. Mrs. Wilson was to go to Point Pleasant. Mrs. Wilson and her two daughters were to compose the party. I then returned home and retired."

Telegram Is Produced.

Q. What time did you get up the next morning.

A. A half hour before sunrise and I went to the beach to catch mullet.

Mrs. Marie Demarest, witness for the state, has testified she saw Henry Stevens in New Brunswick on this Friday morning—the morning after the murder.

Then, Stevens testified, he had breakfast and went to the station to get mail. After getting the mail, he returned home.

Stevens Denies Killings

beach the exact time the shots were fired?"

Stevens was slightly ruffled for the first time.

"I was on the beach until 10:30 and I told what I did to the best of my ability," re replied.

Simpson asked Stevens how long it would take to go from LaValette to New Brunswick in a Ford. Stevens said "from two and one quarter to two and one half hours."

The prosecutor turned and shouted:

"Stand up, Pete."

"Pete" did.

"Didn't you tell that man you knew a route that would get you here in an hour and a half?" Simpson cried.

"I told him I knew a short way."

Stevens insisted his relations with Mr. Hall were "very pleasant" that he was shocked to learn he was killed. He admitted, however, he did not go to the undertaker's to look upon the dead man's face.

Simpson drew the admission that Stevens did not attend his sister's wedding. But the reason was not because he hated Dr. Hall, the witness said.

"What did you think of the marriage?" Simpson asked.

"I didn't think much of it."

Prosecutor Speaks Sarcastically.

Stevens said in reply to a question that he never saw a revolver in Dr. Hall's possession. He did believe, however, that Willie had a revolver. He saw this revolver "years before the murder."

"Did you ever carry a fishing knife," Simpson asked.

"I used to carry a knife with my bait. I used it to clean fish on the night of Sept. 14, 1922."

"When your sister was arrested and in jail for 40 hours, why didn't you visit her?"

"Your brother, Willie was in jail for several weeks and told his sister that he wanted you to visit him but you never went?"

"No."

Simpson then said sarcastically:

"I'll tell you why you didn't go to see them. You were afraid to come because you might be identified and were afraid you would get your nose in a jam."

Adjournment for luncheon was then declared.

PACT REVEALS VANDERBILT'S BARTERING FOR DUCAL TITLE

Millionaire Gave Gold in Wedding of Consuelo.

KNOT IS UNTIED

Duke of Marlborough Received $3,100,000 From Trust Fund.

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The 31-year-old contract by which William Kissam Vanderbilt bartered his yankee gold for a British ducal title for his seventeen year-old daughter Consuelo, was revealed today.

The contract, a voluminous indenture between the "most noble Charles Richard John Duke of Marlborough, party of the first part, and William Kissam Vanderbilt, esquire, party of the second part," was found in the musty file of an obscure courthouse here. It was as formal, as cautious and as safe-guarding throughout its lengthy provisions as though the able financier was transferring a valuable piece of real estate for a valuable block of railroad bonds instead of conveying a beautiful heiress into the nobility.

The hitherto unpublished document revealed the shrewd bargaining by which the Duke of Marlborough shared his title with Consuelo Vanderbilt after having wrung concession after concession from her wealthy father. It also disclosed that the Duke and William K. Vanderbilt were mutually distrustful of one another.

The discovery of the marriage contract comes on the heels of the recent annullment of the marriage by the tribunal of the rota at Rome.

Annual Income of $100,000.

By the terms of the contract Vanderbilt settled, outright, on the Duke of Marlborough the proceeds of a trust fund of $2,500,000. From this fund, despite the fact that the couple has been divorced for several years, the Duke of Marlborough has already collected $3,100,000, and continues to receive an income of $100,000 a year from it.

In addition, Vanderbilt agreed to furnish Consuelo with an annual income of $100,000.

To make doubly sure that the duke got his "bit," the contract provided that in case the first trust fund in the duke's favor was voided by Consuelo's Vanderbilt relatives, on the ground that she was not of age, the duke was to receive a second trust fund of $2,500,000 which was left by William Henry Vanderbilt to William K. Vanderbilt, and which the latter promised to turn over to Consuelo.

Second Trust Fund.

In event of Vanderbilt's death Consuelo was to receive this second trust fund, thus insuring her annual income of $100,000.

Vanderbilt's distrust of his titled son-in-law was evidenced in the provision that Consuelo should not be allowed to draw in advance a single dollar of her annual income.

But this was matched by a stipulation in favor of the duke that if Consuelo should draw in excess of ten thousand pounds sterling, or $50,000 in any one year, all such funds in excess of the ten thousand pounds sterling, or $50,000 in any one year, all such funds in excess of the ten thousand pounds sterling should be paid into the ducal trust fund.

Elaborate provisions were made for the investment of the trust funds.

ART POTTERY EXHIBIT OPENS

Place $2,500 Display in Ogilvie Annex Windows.

Sixty-two pieces of American art pottery were placed on exhibition in the show windows of the annex of the D. M. Ogilvie store, Washington street, today, through arrangements with the Chamber of Commerce.

The exhibit, valued at more than $2,500 was obtained through the American Federation of Arts, Washington, D. C. Because of its importance as a ceramic center, East Liverpool is the first city on the circuit.

The exhibit includes nine samples of ware made at the Fulper pottery, Flemington, N. J., while 11 pieces of ware represent the Greenwich House of New York. The Marblehead, Mass., pottery has contributed 10 samples, while the Newcomb pottery of New Orleans has three attractive bowls and six beautiful vases. From the Paul Revere pottery of Boston, Mass., there are nine displays, while Charles F. Binns of the New York state school of clay working and ceramics at Alfred university, Alfred, N. Y., has nine pieces. Edmund F. Curtis of New York is the owner of five costly pieces in the exhibit.

The art ware includes vases, bowls, jars and jardinieres in various colors. The owners have placed no valuation on some of the more costly samples, while the valuation of the others range from $40 to $100 each. The exhibit will remain in the Ogilvie store window for one week.

ROME, Nov. 20.—Sounding a note of highest praise for the "martyrdom" of "persecuted Catholics" in Mexico, Pope Pius XI today addressed an encyclical to the world episcopate, appealing for prayers reaffirming the "undoubted triumph of justice" in that country.

After lauding the Catholics and clergy and southern republic, Pope Pius examined in detail the anti-religious law passed by the Mexican government, laying strees upon the "vexations and persecutions" caused by the law.

The encyclical was replete with highest praise for the work of Catholic organizations in Mexico during the trying times of the religious conflicts, particularly it praised the Knights of Columbus, who organized the Association for Religious Liberty, and the Association of Mexican Ladies and Mexican Catholic Youths, "who behaved splendidly."

DR. MEL MORRIS LIKENS LIFE OF CHRISTIAN TO RAIL TRIP

"Gospel Road From Earth to Heaven" is Subject.

BAPTIST MEET

Miss Jean Mackey Leaves for Atlanta, Ga.

Likening the Christian life to a railway journey Rev. Mel Morris, with apt Scriptural quotations, delivered a unique discourse at the First Baptist church revival last evening. His subject was: "The Gospel Railroad from Earth to Heaven."

Preceding the sermon a lively testimony meeting was directed oy the pastor, Rev. A. H. O'Brien, and an equally inspiring song service was led by Miss Jean Mackey, of New Cumberland, W. Va., who since the return home of Marion Ball on Monday has taken active charge of the music with Harry Chilton, the regular church leader.

The invocation was made by Rev. W. S. Hamilton, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, of New Cumberland, W. Va.

Because of the necessity of starting today for Atlanta, Ga., to begin an engagement in evangelistic services in a church of that city Miss Mackey made her final appearance at the local revival last evening. "I deem it a privilege to have worked five nights with you," she said, as she sang her concluding solo: "My Soul Is Clinging to Jesus." She went on: "I am glad the eternal God is my refuge and under me are the everlasting arms. I want to leave these word with you as my testimony." These she sang:

"My soul is clinging to Jesus
So close to His wounded side;
Oh, He is the Rock of Ages
In Him I can safely hide."

With two services on Sunday the series will conclude. Rev. Mr. Morris' theme in the morning of the final day of the revival will be: "Satan, Sifting Satan," and in the evening his topic will be: "The Unpardonable Sin."

Rev. Mr. Morris told in detail of the necessities of a railroad which he averred were similarly needed on the gospel train. "You need a book of rules on every rail system. So do you for the gospel railway and it is the Bible," he said. The key to it is "All Scripture is given by inspiration. Through it you find the way to life."

"A railroad needs a roadbed. The gospel railway is straight. Much preparation has made it so. It is an ascending incline. Its ballast is on solid rock which in this system is Christ.

"And the gospel railroad is on the main line which is Salvation. There are no side lines to it. Neither is there salvation in any other. Many think there are other routes but this is the only one—the way of Salvation through Christ.

"There is a right of way to this railway also. Its privilege has been purchased by the 'blood of the Lord Jesus Christ.' There was no compromise in the buying transaction. The title to it is clear.

"Some times there is an uncoupled car on the gospel train. Such are backsliders. They are dangerous and may run into an open switch or be ditched. Those in it are unhappy until coupled to the train again.

"The two rails of this gospel railway are faith and works. These rightly divide the way of truth. None liveth unto himself. We are all our brothers' keeper. These rails make a strong track from earth to glory. They are of standard, and not narrow guage, and comply fully with the specifications of the book of rules.

"The superintendent of the gospel railway is God the Father. He is ever to be consulted. He knows all the details of transportation. All must go to Him through prayer for 'orders' that we may know His way.

"The engine of the gospel train moves by the propelling force of love. God is love who forms its motivating power which makes for a happy, successful journey.

"The train engineer is the Holy Spirit. By it we have divine instruction. 'He will guide you to all truth.' His hand is on the throttle of the gospel train. There will thus be no wrecks or catastrophes and harmony will exist among the passengers and crew.

"The headlight of the engine is God's word. 'Thy word shall be a lamp to my feet.' No one will be afraid to ride on a train whose headlight is God's holy word.

"And there are signals on this gospel train for warnings. Red signifies danger; 'Repent and turn from your evil ways;' green indicates the certain promises of God. 'He leadeth me in paths of righteousness.' White signifies purity. 'Who hath this hope is pure as he is pure.' All these make it a safe road to travel.

"Its switches are the temptations met enroute. These seem attractive by their promise of ease and comfort in stopover privileges. But 'you will not be tempted more than you are capable of enduring.

"There are no curves on this road. God's highway is straight for 'straight is the gate.' It is a straight road for straight people.

"The time table of this road is 'now' for 'now is the accepted time and now is the day of Salvation.' The train is leaving earth's station now. Any one delaying will find it well on its way.

"Its schedule is always on time. 'Sealed until the dayof redemption.'

"The passengers of the train consist of believers, those 'saved by grace' whose 'robes have been washed in the blood of the lamb.' Their tickets have been punched with the words 'born again.' They are not Sunday excursionists and they are not blaspheming and desecrating God's day.

"The cars of the gospel train are the churches. In them the believers ride. Some aim to go on their own account by hand cars. These aver they do not need church worship, the Sunday school and prayer meetings. But they do not go far, because of traveling under their own power.

The railway's stations and depots are the services of the churches. The stops in them are always pleasant and ever a nearer point to the trip's destination.

"The cost of passage is free 'Jesus paid it all.' It is 'without money and without price.'

DIVORCE CASES HEARD BY COURT

Seven Decrees Issued by Judge W. H. Spence in Busy Session.

Seven divorce cases were disposed of by Judge W. H. Spence in common pleas court during the last session this week, a new record for one day being established for the current term of court. None of these cases were contested.

Beatrice L. Hanna who filed an action against her husband Clyde E. Hanna, who resides on Pleasant Heights, East Liverpool, was granted a decree on the grounds of extreme cruelty. The couple were married Jan. 4, 1923. The court has ordered that the mother shall have the right to visit her child, and she has also been restored to her maiden name Beatrice L. Williams.

Frederick J. Knapp, 249 Aetna street, Salem, has been granted a divorce from his wife, Lillian Knapp, said to be living at Long Island, N. Y. The couple were married May 15, 1906. This decree was granted on the grounds of three years wilful absence of Mrs. Knapp. The action was filed in common pleas court Sept. 23rd.

Ruth McFadden has obtained a divorce from her husband, Howard B. McFadden on the grounds of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. This action was filed Aug. 5th last by Attorney Cecil K. Scott of Salem.

Stephania Grafton, a minor, whose petition was filed by her next friend Josephine Reel, has been granted a divorce from her husband, Charles Grafton of 735 Lexington avenue, Rochester, N. Y. The plaintiff resides at New Salisbury. The petition related the couple were married March 17, 1923. Grafton was charged with gross neglect of duty, in that he had failed to provide and support the plaintiff and furnish her with the necessaries of life since their marriage. The custody of the child was given to the plaintiff and the defendant has been ordered by the court to pay his former wife $5 per week for the support of the minor.

Wilful absence was charged in the divorce petition filed by Mae A. Cress against her husband, Charles H. Cress. This petition was filed in common pleas court Aug. 8, 1924, by the late Charles S. Speaker. The defendant at that time was residing at the Hoffman House, Leetonia. Although alimony only was sought in the original petition, a supplimental petition was filed Nov. 13, 1924 wherein a divorce was also sought. The plaintiff was granted a decree. The couple were married Aug. 5, 1918.

Anna McCoy has been granted a decree of divorce from her husband, David McCoy, on the grounds of three years wilful absence. This couple were married at New Cumberland, W. Va., May 6, 1919. The present whereabouts of McCoy are unknown.

Joseph Dusicska of East Palestine, has been granted a divorce from his wife Mary B. Dusicka. In this cause the plaintiff set up the grounds of gross neglect of duty. The plaintiff is employed by the National Fireproofing company, at East Palestine.

TWO DIVORCE CASES DROPPED

Two divorce actions that have been pending in common pleas court for some weeks have been dismissed on motion filed by the plaintiffs, and at their costs. No record is to follow in either of the suits.

The motion to dismiss the case of Frederick Z. Pritchard against Irma Pritchard has been sustained by Judge W. H. Spence, and a similar entry has been made in the case of Opal Garey against Herbert S. Garey.

The action in the Pritchard case was filed July 22nd last and that in the Garey case was filed Aug. 13th.

AUDITOR WORKING ON TAX RATES

Tax rates for the 70 different taxing districts of the county are now being worked out by County Auditor Elmer E. Walker, and the rate sheet will be filed with County Treasurer Jo Pike within the next 10 days.

Delay in working up these tax rates was occasioned because of several levies voted upon at the last election. Two of these issues were defeated, one for a three mill school levy in Fairfield township and a bond issue for $80,000 for school purposes in Knox township.

In a general way, there will be little if any increases in the different districts from those worked out a year ago.

Judgment Awarded.

The Erwin Feldspar corporation has been given judgment for $6,239.30 in common pleas court against Richard C. Sant. The original petition which was filed Aug. 2nd last sought judgment for $6,057.58 and interest, and in handing down the judgment, the court also granted additional interest charges from the first day of the present term of court.

Alimony Order Issued.

William B. Hindman has been ordered to pay his wife $35 within 10 days, and thereafter $20 per month for the support of his wife, according to an order issued in common pleas court. locality, as well as part of the town of Treadwell. Case workers were notified by national headquarters to report for duty and again chaper workers came to the front.

The latest disaster calling for aid from the Red Cross was not of such magnitude as many of the others, but was perhaps more tragic, in that it cost the lives of so many children. A school house inasmall town in Maryland was struck by a "twister" without warning, and lifted from its foundations, flinging the children about as though they were leaves. Only one escaped uninjured and he accomplished this by jumping from a window and clinging to the roots of a tree. Surrounding farms and homes were also struck and numbers made homeless.

An official at the national headquarters of the Red Cross says that few people of any one section fully realize the amount of damage done by the many floods, tornadoes, and fires during the past three months. At this time Red Cross relief workers are providing for victims in eight different communities and nearly 24,000 families are under its care. In addition to those in this country American Red Cross workers have aided disaster victims in five foreign countries. The Red Cross has had its hands full since August.

The annual roll call, or drive for membership, is now going on and it would seem that the work of the Red Cross during the last few months is in itself sufficient reason for everyone's joining. A great part of the funds used by this organization in its relief work is derived from membership fees. Join the Red Cross before Thanksgiving and thus show in at least a small measure that you are grateful.

FOREVER AFTER AT AMERICAN

"Forever After," First National picture starring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes, which will open a three-day run at the American theatre on Monday.

Their romance lilts through the adolescence of high school, the days of college and finally crashes to a dramatic climax in a battle scarred hospital of war time France.

Mary Astor lends her grace and beauty to the leading feminine role. Lloyd Hughes gives a vigorous portrayal of the ambitious young lover who seeks to win fresh laurels for his love on the football field and battle field.

The supporting cast presents a wealth of well known screen names including Alec Francis, the ever lovable character actor of First National, David Torrence, Hallam Cooley, the charming Eulalie Jensen and Lila Leslie.

In addition, the picture has the unusual distinction of showing the crack University of Southern California football team in action as part of the sequence. Several of these young Californians screened so well and showed such camera presence they were given minor roles in the rest of the story.

F. Harmon Weight directed under the production management of B. F. Fineman.

Stephania Grafton, a minor, whose petition was filed by her next friend Josephine Reel, has been granted a divorce from her husband, Charles Grafton of 735 Lexington avenue, Rochester, N. Y. The plaintiff resides at New Salisbury. The petition related the couple were married March 17, 1923. Grafton was charged with gross neglect of duty, in that he had failed to provide and support the plaintiff and furnish her with the necessaries of life since their marriage. The custody of the child was given to the plaintiff and the defendant has been ordered by the court to pay his former wife $5 per week for the support of the minor.

Wilful absence was charged in the divorce petition filed by Mae A. Cress against her husband, Charles H. Cress. This petition was filed in common pleas court Aug. 8, 1924, by the late Charles S. Speaker. The defendant at that time was residing at the Hoffman House, Leetonia. Although alimony only was sought in the original petition, a supplimental petition was filed Nov. 13, 1924 wherein a divorce was also sought. The plaintiff was granted a decree. The couple were married Aug. 5, 1918.

Anna McCoy has been granted a decree of divorce from her husband, David McCoy, on the grounds of three years wilful absence. This couple were married at New Cumberland, W. Va., May 6, 1919. The present whereabouts of McCoy are unknown.

Joseph Dusicska of East Palestine, has been granted a divorce from his wife Mary B. Dusicka. In this cause the plaintiff set up the grounds of gross neglect of duty. The plaintiff is employed by the National Fireproofing company, at East Palestine.

TWO DIVORCE CASES DROPPED

Two divorce actions that have been pending in common pleas court for some weeks have been dismissed on motion filed by the plaintiffs, and at their costs. No record is to follow in either of the suits.

The motion to dismiss the case of Frederick Z. Pritchard against Irma Pritchard has been sustained by Judge W. H. Spence, and a similar entry has been made in the case of Opal Garey against Herbert S. Garey.

The action in the Pritchard case was filed July 22nd last and that in the Garey case was filed Aug. 13th.

AUDITOR WORKING ON TAX RATES

Tax rates for the 70 different taxing districts of the county are now being worked out by County Auditor Elmer E. Walker, and the rate sheet will be filed with County Treasurer Jo Pike within the next 10 days.

Delay in working up these tax rates was occasioned because of several levies voted upon at the last election. Two of these issues were defeated, one for a three mill school levy in Fairfield township and a bond issue for $80,000 for school purposes in Knox township.

In a general way, there will be little if any increases in the different districts from those worked out a year ago.

Judgment Awarded.

The Erwin Feldspar corporation has been given judgment for $6,239.30 in common pleas court against Richard C. Sant. The original petition which was filed Aug. 2nd last sought judgment for $6,057.58 and interest, and in handing down the judgment, the court also granted additional interest charges from the first day of the present term of court.

Alimony Order Issued.

William B. Hindman has been ordered to pay his wife $35 within 10 days, and thereafter $20 per month for the support of his wife, according to an order issued in common pleas court. The order has been entered in the divorce action now pending in court, and filed by Mrs. Margaret Hindman Nov. 13th. A decree of divorce, alimony and the custody of a minor child is sought by the plaintiff.

Given Schick Test.

Dr. Tate of the state department of health, Columbus, and County Health Commissioner Dr. T. F. Church during the last week gave the Schick test to 2,200 children attending the county rural schools. The immunizing test will next be given.

A warning has been given parents of school children by Dr. Church, that when children complain of sore throat to immediately consult a physician.

locality, as well as part of the town of Treadwell. Case workers were notified by national headquarters to report for duty and again chaper workers came to the front.

The latest disaster calling for aid from the Red Cross was not of such magnitude as many of the others, but was perhaps more tragic, in that it cost the lives of so many children. A school house inasmall town in Maryland was struck by a "twister" without warning, and lifted from its foundations, flinging the children about as though they were leaves. Only one escaped uninjured and he accomplished this by jumping from a window and clinging to the roots of a tree. Surrounding farms and homes were also struck and numbers made homeless.

An official at the national headquarters of the Red Cross says that few people of any one section fully realize the amount of damage done by the many floods, tornadoes, and fires during the past three months. At this time Red Cross relief workers are providing for victims in eight different communities and nearly 24,000 families are under its care. In addition to those in this country American Red Cross workers have aided disaster victims in five foreign countries. The Red Cross has had its hands full since August.

The annual roll call, or drive for membership, is now going on and it would seem that the work of the Red Cross during the last few months is in itself sufficient reason for everyone's joining. A great part of the funds used by this organization in its relief work is derived from membership fees. Join the Red Cross before Thanksgiving and thus show in at least a small measure that you are grateful.

FOREVER AFTER AT AMERICAN

"Forever After," First National picture starring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes, which will open a three-day run at the American theatre on Monday.

Their romance lilts through the adolescence of high school, the days of college and finally crashes to a dramatic climax in a battle scarred hospital of war time France.

Mary Astor lends her graceful beauty to the leading feminine role. Lloyd Hughes gives a vigorous portrayal of the ambitious young lover who seeks to win fresh laurels for his love on the football field and battlefield.

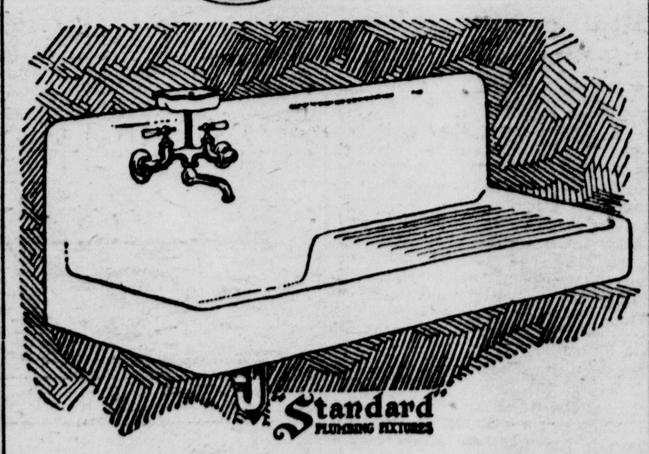

The supporting cast presents a wealth of well known screen names including Alec Francis, the ever lovable character actor of First National; David Torrence, Hallam Cooley, the charming Eulalie Jensen and Lila Leslie.

In addition, the picture has the unusual distinction of showing the crack University of Southern California football team in action as part of the sequence. Several of these young collegians screened so well and showed such camera presence they were given minor roles in the rest of the story.

F. Harmon Weight directed under the production management of B. F. Fineman.

High Grid Rivals Prepare For Thanksgiving Day Contest

Local Reserves See Action At Leetonia; Orange Idle Today

Local Coaches Hope to Get Line on Next Year's Prospects in North-County Engagement; Wellsville Without Game for Two Weeks.

WITH Thanksgiving day (which means to district football fans a resumption of gridiron relations between East Liverpool and Wellsville high schools) just a matter of five days and a few odd hours away, interest of football followers of the two schools is beginning to soar and neither the partisans of the Blue and White nor the Orange and Black find difficulty in waxing enthusiastic as the valley rivals prepare for the 1926 climax.

For a period of three years East Liverpool-Wellsville grid enthusiasts were forced to take their Thanksgiving menu without their big football game and the customary zest that usually attended the outdoor function was missing. The substitute attractions lined up were good, as a general rule, but they lacked the "kick."

Now that the "friendly enemies" are tugging at the leash again, both with exceptionally good elevens, prospects for a hard fought struggle next Thursday afternoon are more than a probability —they are a certainty.

Under the direction of Coach Earl Klinck, the Wellsville team which found itself in more or less of a slump following the wholesale graduation of its stars several years ago, snapped into action this season, and now as the end of the campaign heaves into view, shapes up as a formidable outfit.

Klinck's team was unfortunate in the postponement of the game with Lisbon last Saturday, inasmuch as the Orange ordinarily schedules no game for the Saturday immediately preceding Thanksgiving. The loss of the game deprived the team of the action that it should have in order to prevent it from losing its edge.

School authorities at Wellsville are not certain yet that the contest will be played. If it is it will have to take post season ranking now.

Coaches Kidder and Cox are giving their entire squad a chance in this afternoon's tilt at Leetonia.

Kidder probably will parade his 1927 prospects with the first string men taking a rest. The regulars likely will be used long enough for a good warm-up, but the biggest part of the job will be placed on the shoulders of the reserves. The local coaches hope in this way to get a line on next season's material as a unit.

Beginning Monday both the locals and Wellsville will get down to serious workouts for the Thanksgiving contest. It is possible that the Orange will be given some stiff scrimmage sessions in the absence of the regular games the last two Saturdays.

OHIO-ILLINOIS END CAMPAIGN

Field in Perfect Shape For State's Three Roughriders.

URBANA, Ill., Nov. 20.—Ohio State and Illinois wind up the Big Ten conference football season here today in one of the outstanding games of conference play.

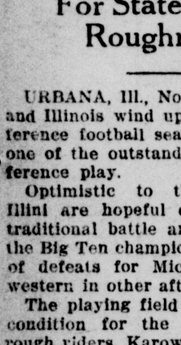

Optimistic to the extreme, the Illini are hopeful of victory in this traditional battle and a triple tie for the Big Ten championship in the event of defeats for Michigan and Northwestern in other afternoon headliners.

The playing field will be in perfect condition for the Buckeye trio of rough riders, Karow, Marek and Grim —the recent heavy snow fall having been kept from the turf by the large tarpaulin.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

One of the unsuspected causes of a lot of bad golf with players who should do much better, with the form they seemingly have, is the tendency of the right arm to pull against the left. This can happen in either or both of two places in the back swing and when the player cures one he may, if he looks, find he is bothered by the other. I have mentioned how to avoid jerking the clubhead away with a right arm pull. Then, half way up in the back swing, the right arm will again step in, if you don't watch it, and again exert a pull against the shaft. This time it pulls downward while the left arm is trying to shove up, and it pulls back and around while the left arm seeks to keep it straight. This often causes the left elbow to break like a jackknife. Let the arms act as one arm and see to it that they go on up with the club, working together.

EAST AND WEST MEET ON GRID

Unbeaten. New York Squad Plays Nebraska Today.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 20.—Eastern football, exemplified by Chick Meehan's undefeated New York University aggregation, and the western brand, represented by the Nebraska Cornhuskers, stepped out on a frozen field here this afternoon to joust for intersectional honors.

The weather was biting cold and the rain soaked turf was frozen hard as pavement from a frost-fringed gale which was scudding out of the north.

Coach Meehan was pitting a team which had compiled eight successive victories in the Atlantic region against a Cornhusker horde which had won five of six contests in its own conference. Twenty thousand spectators, garbed in winter clothing, were in the stands. The lineup:

CASE-RESERVE BATTLE TODAY

Slow Field May Overcome Advantage of Scientists.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 20.—A field made soggy by intermittent snow storms during the past 48 hours has caused a reversal in predictions over the outcome of the annual football game here today between Case and Western Reserve.

The former had been held in high esteem by the dopesters due to its ability to pass and kick but a slow field has dissipated this advantage, most experts placing the squads on even terms, although a few favor Reserve.

While neither team has much to gain, so far as conference standing is concerned, each will battle stubbornly to defend its honor and traditional prestige in this thirty-fourth annual contest.

Tod Morgan Too Good For Duane; Keeps His Title

By Sid Mercer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—As was generally forecast Tod Morgan came down from Seattle to the Bronx last night with a majority that Carl Duane could not overcome even though he packed the fistic convention at Madison Square Garden with Bronx voters and captured most of the Manhattan delegations.

Tod was thus elected to succeed himself as junior lightweight champion by the ballots of Referee Louis Magnolia and Judges Harold Barnes and George Kelly.

Morgan, employing a left jab as his chief defensive weapon, and a right cross to the head, with occasional variations of left hooks and rights to the body, carried 13 of the 15 rounds. Duane took two and three of those he lost were fairly even although Morgan undeniably had the shade.

The fight quickly developed the form lines that were predicted, Morgan winning through superior boxing and footwork. He was seldom able to make Duane take a backward step, however, Carl was a grim aggressor, edging forward to the attack round after round while Morgan danced away and scored his points by expert sharpshooting. He kept a lone left jab dangling in the challenger's face and exploded volleys of rights on Carl's granite jaw without inflicting anything more than superficial damage.

There was nothing approaching a knockdown even when the two gamecocks mixed it furiously in the closing rounds.

Local Lad to Make Barnstorming Trip With Adrian Quint

Adrian college basketballers are planning an extensive barnstorming tour around the holidays that will send them over a lot of territory in this section of the country.

Raymond Weikart, of East Liverpool, is listed as a member of the squad that will make the trip.

BANKERS COP DUCKPIN CLASH

Defeat Altman Quint in Liberty Loop.

The Bankers shot a southpaw, in the person of Bob Harker, at the Altman Clothiers in the Liberty Business Men's league last night and finished ahead by a count of two games to one, although taking a back seat in the matter of total pins.

The Clothiers ran up a 1909 total against 1808 by the Bankers but lost the second and third games. They piled up a commanding lead in the opener with a score of 708 to 549, but the Bankers came back in the second to cop by six pins, and inasmuch as games count in this circuit, the Bankers' victory in the third gave them the edge.

Harker couldn't get going in the second tilt but finished with a strike and a spare that decided the outcome of the contest. Johnny Greene polled a total vote of 450, three pins ahead of Canne, of the Clothiers, with a 447. Sayres, of the Clothiers, also was up in the running with 438.

COSHOCTON HIGH LANDS TROPHY

COSHOCTON, O., Nov. 20.—The Coshoction high school team today is proudly exhibiting the 1926 Central Ohio conference cup which was gained by virtue of its defeat of Mount Vernon here yesterday, 19 to 0. Parrish, who broke through and ran 70 yeards for a touchdown, was the outstanding star. The team lost but one game this season.

Paul English Ends First Grid Season At Glenville With Fine Record; Will Try For Cage Job

ACCOUNTING for six touchdowns in five games, four of which were with college teams, Paul English, former high school athlete who is now a student at Glenville "prep" school, Glenville, W. V., has wound up his first football season in higher circles with a record to be proud of and is now planning to go out for a job on the varsity basketball squad.

The Glenville eleven ended its football season on Armistice day at Potomac State. Glenville was defeated, 9-7, although it was certainly no fault of English's.

State scored the first touchdown but failed to make the kick for the extra point good.

That was in the first quarter. Neither side was able to get within scoring distance then until the third period when English grabbed a pass out of the air and ran 60 yards for a touchdown. Glenville kicked goal and went one point into the lead.

Glenville had them licked then until the last five minutes when State dropkicked one over from the 30-yard line.

"I believe this was the toughest game I ever played," English says.

With four regulars back from last year's quintet, competition for places in the Glenville floor squad this winter is bound to be unusually keen, but English feels confident he can get "on." The veterans include "Buck" Miller, forward; "Slim" Tracy, center, who played with Ki Ki Cuyler's team for a while last year; "Skibo" Lorentz and Bob Markolwitz, guards.

English asserts he is going to make a bid for that vacant forward berth.

Some of the others who will also be out for the job include Orval Maple, who, English says, has played in some of the tournaments refereed by Bill Watkins, of this city; the Rodger boys from Defiance, O., and a number of others from various sections of West Virginia.

In a recent letter to Watkins who is well famaliar with the class of West Virginia athletics in which English is shifting about, the latter expressed disappointment over result of the Salem game but says he'll be rooting for victories in the remaining tilts of the season. He will probably be home for the Thanksgiving engagement.

Beaver County Bans Sunday Grid Games; Threaten Arrests

BEAVER, Pa., Nov. 20.—The lid will be clamped down tight on Sunday football games in Beaver county, according to an announcement today by County Detective Dan M. Baker. Complaints were received of Sunday games at Legionville, Woodlawn, Monaca Heights and Midland.

"No Sunday games will be permitted and spectators, officials and players will be arrested and prosecuted," declared Baker. He said additional officers would be placed on duty to watch for Sunday games in the county. Sunday golf has not fallen under the ban, the authorities stated.

Fight Results

AT NEW YORK—Tod Morgan, of Seattle, retained junior lightweight title by winning decision over Carl Duane, of New York, fifteen rounds. Eddie Anderson, of Wyoming, knocked out Arnold Ryan of Brooklyn in the sixth round. Les Murray of Australia, won decision over Solly Seaman of New York, ten rounds.

AT TAMPA, FLA.—Willie Herman of New York, won decision over Red Cap Wilson, also of New York, ten rounds.

Tony Leto, of Tampa, knocked out Joe Coppadara, of Indianapolis in the second round.

BULLDOG GIVEN SLIGHT EDGE

Harvard-Yale Result Means Little to National Ranking.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20.—Like an old actor who has been cast for pie-throwing but lives in the day when he played Hamlet, the Yale-Harvard football game will make its annual bid this afternoon for the fame which athletic decay must deny it. The old lines will be mounted with the old fervor, the old strut before the public will be as pompous as ever. But these will be gestures, suggestive only of the greatness that is past.

The time is not so long ago when this game was the ultimate in consequence, usually deciding the disposition of all collegiate honors, but today, it had only tradition to lean upon and, what with the succession of defeats experienced by the principals this season, tradition seemed a sickly reed.

No Harvard-Yale game ever has meant less to the final ranking of college teams. In other and better years, at least one of the contenders, sometimes both, came up to the meeting with presentable records. This time, they are a pair of odd lots, marked down from $1.98.

Harvard began the season badly, losing its first two games to Geneva and Holy Cross. It seems to be finishing the same way, only more so, for it has just been knocked off successively by Princeton and Brown without a scoring point. Yale, on the contrary, started with a flourish and is finishing with a flop. The Bulldog, in its last four games, failed to score against Brown, Mary and Maryland, and lost to Princeton, 10 to 7.

In other words, Yale and Harvard will not even play for the championship of the late Big Three, which statement just about comes under the general head of unnecessary roughness.

But the old capacity crowd of 78,000 will be there and maybe some of them will be really depressed if Yale fails to beat Harvard or vice versa. The loser should have justifiable grounds for melancholia, at that.

This New Jewett Brougham

is a Style Car, too!

FORTUNATE, indeed, are those who prefer the 2-door enclosed car! For in this beautiful new Jewett Brougham they can obtain the smartness and luxury and custom-exclusiveness of Paige built cars—at a cost no higher than they would expect to pay for an ordinary car.

Much of the charm of this Brougham is due to its exceptional roominess — its extra-wide doors—its inviting rear seat—to the comfortable chair seats in front, adjustable to the driver's size—to the smart and tasteful trimming.

This new Brougham is powered with a larger Jewett motor. It retains all of Jewett's remarkable ease of handling, quick acceleration and complete reliability. It retains, of course, the perfected Paige-Hydraulic 4-Wheel brakes. But it adds to these features a new smartness and style that you simply must see to appreciate. Come in — a demonstration will entail no obligation whatsoever.

There are in the charming new Paige and Jewett line, fourteen body types and color combinations (style leaders every one!) at factory list prices ranging from $1195 to $2245.

The volume of the payroll of the manufacturers is the important factor in the success of any community.. To make this payroll possible there must be an absorption of the products of the manufacturers.

The buying power of our City and surrounding territory depends upon the success of the potteries and the allied industries. East Liverpool is the center of the Pottery Industry of the World—a position of which we are all proud.

To sustain the Pottery Industry it is necessary for the people of our City and surrounding community to buy and use the products of the American potters.

SYNOPSIS.

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. He is aimless and amiable. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming, rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers, in spite of his natural bashfulness, to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla, in his 'comic little car." After a moment's hesitation she accepts his his offer. As they ride he tries to "explain" himself. He has money—enough—but is suffering from a bad case of "dual personality." He is obviously greatly bothered about something, some conflict within himself. She, for her part, tells that her name is Hester Kemble. She, like Julian, is from the East. They overtake and pass the trucks bearing the rest of the troupe. As they stop for dinner, the others come in. Julian meets Watt, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre"; Sadie, an ex-chorus girl trouper, and the rest of the cast. When the journey is resumed and La Jolla reached, Julian decides to remain with the troupe. It fascinates him. During the evening Julian comes to the rescue of the troupe financially. Watt extols him as a model patron of the arts. Sadie attaches herself to him obviously and frankly captivated by his oddness and his quaint charm. Sadie tells him of Hester, how she is a charming little actress who risked everything to try for the leading role in a movie play written by one "Robert Johns," failed and joined the troupe only as a last resort. Julian and Hester out in the little car after the night's performance find themselves alone on a road by the sea.

CHAPTER SIX.

"Here we are again," said Hester, with what he felt to be quiet amusement. "Just like this morning."

"This morning?" He was puzzled. "Oh . . . . of course . . . .but that seems like last year to me."

She didn't reply to this. She was leaning away from him, watching the ocean. But as the car rounded a promonotory, she said, "The view is nice from here."

He slowed down. She seemed not to mind. Then, with a little uprush of spirit, he turned off the road toward the ocean, stopped the motor and switched off the lights. It seemed very daring. He waited, breathless, for a protest, but none came. She merely continued gazing out into the velvety beauty of the west.

His pulse was bounding. With the sensation of one who risks everything—happiness, honor almost—he found his hand sliding along the back of the seat. Finally it settled around her little shoulder. And still she was silent.

It seemed to him that something must be said. Something. . . .

"I've wanted to talk about your performance."

"I rather thought you didn't like it."

"I've been too excited to say anything."

"Really?"

He became slowly aware that he had pleased her. "I think it has been the most wonderful . . . .well, one of the most wonderful experiences I've ever had in the theater."

She laughed a little. "Only one of them?"

"Well . . . . it wouldn't be easy to make you understand what I meant by that, but . . . . I'll put in this way: I wouldn't have thought it possible for an actress to be as lovely, as exquisite, as you seemed to me tonight."

"That's a pretty nice thing to say."

"It's rather difficult. I mean to put in words the way you've made me feel. I'm pretty inarticulate. What puzzles me is that you should be out here barnstorming like this."

"The luck of the theater, I suppose."

"As near as I can see, from this one performance, you have everything, every necessary quality—beauty . . ."

"Oh, I haven't that!"

"Beauty is a subtle quality. Very subtle." As had happened in the morn his tongue was shaken free. All in a moment, he seemed much less boyish, vastly less the lame puppy. "You have a beautiful body and carriage. Everything you do—walking, turning, the poise of your head, the apepal in your voice—has beauty in it. Your face, too, is a perfect mask. It is exquisite. It is more than that, it is appealing, like your voice. No, you stirred me more than I can tell you. I'm so clumsy at talking."

"You don't seem so very clumsy."

"Another thing that impressed me was the way you work in a scene. You virtually amazed me. You're so quiet offstage. But in the scene you carried everything off with an irresistible buoyancy. And in timing and all that you were perfect."

"You seem to know something about the theater."

"Not much. Not in any practical way. I've never been backstage. And I've never known an actress before." He hesitated. She sensed that he was thinking out what he should say next. She knew that she was now in contact with a wholly unfamiliar side of the man. It was puzzling. This wasn't at all the man who had, within the hour, sat so shyly and forlornly aside in the road house with that pathetic, almost vapid smile in his wan face. She felt a serious honesty in him, and delicacy.

"But the outstanding quality you gave me was youth. The very spirit of youth. I think I can tell you this—you made me cry a little tonight."

"Oh," she flashed out with a sudden passionate bitterness, "but youth is just what I haven't got!"

"That isn't so. What you have is the finest kind. I should say you are lucky!"

"Lucky!"

"It is the youth of body and movement and voice. You simply have it. It's yours. And with it you have the years of experience that make it possible to use it skillfully. Why isn't that the best kind? I don't know that years have anything to do with it"

"I wonder," said she; and she held her breath a moment.

His fingers were tightening nervously about her shoulder. The thought came to her that they'd better start up that foolish motor and get back to La Jolla just as fast as they could. He was reviving the passionate hope that had carried her through many desperate months in New York and through the grinding years in stock. A little more of this sort of glow about her heart, and the starved and stifled emotional being that was surely within her would be rushing to meet him more than half way. That wouldn't do.

But the spell of the still soft night was upon her spirit—that and the surge of the sea and this new stirring sense of warmth about her heart. It was such a moment as she had dreamed of in girlish hours some years ago. But in those years she had never known the hunger that was in her now. Why not let things drift just a little longer? The thought came that it wouldn't be fair to him to let him work himself up too far. She could make him, with a word, drive her back. He wouldn't be difficult, not this gentle spirit, not if she stopped him before he lost his head. But she couldn't quite say that word.

Then she spoke out. Back of the vehement low voice lay a bitterness she had kept, in a measure, even from herself. She'd had to. In the theater a girl must assume cheerfulness, if she have it not. She must give pleasure to others. Her existence hangs on that. But the bitterness was there. And her guard was down.

"I don't know whether you realize what you're doing to me," she said. "I just about struck bottom this winter. Lost my nerve. It was the first time. But you have to have a little success now and then to keep going. You have to, Even just a little praise."

"Of course."

"An actress is so helpless. It doesn't matter how good you may be, if you can't get a chance to show it. The play has got to be there, the part. I made a wild stab at play writing this winter."

He drew her timidly closer.

"I was living in a furnished room in Hollywood. Over a hardware store. I started three plays. Everybody does that, of course, one time or another. But it was no good. I've never envied anybody as I envy the playwrights. You see them come in from nowhere—people nobody ever heard of—and make fortunes. I've thought and thought about Clare Kummer and Rachel Crothers. The women who've done it. And Robert Johns. Who was he? Nobody ever heard of him. Some people say, even now, that he's a woman using that name. He doesn't even go to rehearsals or first nights. He just writes plays, and they're put right on. Three plays running at once on Broadway this year. Two road companies doing 'Hunger.' I could have played that lead. If I could only have got through to Robert Johns himself. He understands women. Finely. Delicately."

"I'm beginning to wonder if I . . ."

It was she now who was full of self. She brushed his hesitant words aside.

"I tried so hard to meet him. But they wouldn't let me. I wrote to him. He didn't answer. Begged for just a chance to read the lines to him. He wouldn't bother, of course. He wouldn't care. Why should he? Look at 'Dottie Dimple!' That's the play about the little factory girl who photographed well and became a picture star and made so much money she owned the country. It's wonderful satire. Have you seen it?"

"Why, yes . . . . I . . . . ."

"Do you know how many 'Dottie Dimple' companies are out this winter? Five! Robert Johns, whoever he is, sits back somewhere and collects the royalties. Probably in a palace in Italy. What's a struggling actress to him? . . . . .I couldn't have played 'Dottie Dimple,' of course. They'd have to have a regular movie doll for that. But I could have done the girl in 'Hunger.' And the girl from Portland boarding house in 'I Wonder If They're True.' I know I could have played her. I have to believe in what I do. I have to! But they wouldn't give me a chance. And now it's too late!"

She stopped, with a break in her voice. Her eyes were fixed on the dim horizon. He could feel her quick breathing. Suddenly, with an odd little sound, he drew up her face and kissed her. She found herself yielding her lips to his. She caught at his shoulder and clung to him.

But then, abruptly, she pushed him away.

"Take me back,' 'she said, unsteadily.

He sat motionless.

"Take me back! We can't do this sort of thing; I won't!"

He seemed to be gathering himself together. Finally he started the motor, backed around, and headed southward along the highway.

She said, without looking at him, "You'd better turn on your lights."

Without replying, he did so.

She sat hanging over the farther side up in a little heap on the seat.

They had passed through La Jolla and were rounding the long curve into the historic Old Town when he finally spoke. It was the hesitant boy of the morning.

"I've been trying to make up my mind whether I'd tell you. . . . ."

"I can't talk! Please!"

When they drove in by the dark stage and stopped, she hurriedly opened the door.

"Suppose I might as well leave the car right here . . . ." he began lamely, but she walked away with only a muffled "Good night," walked beautifully, firmly, on her little heels and disappeared in the shadows by the women's tent. He sat there for an hour fingering the wheel, then stretched out as best he could on the seat and spent what was left of the night there.

Is Cow or Motorcycle Guilty?

Is a motorcyclist or a cow at fault when the two meet, is a question before the magistrate of Te Aroha, N. Z. Robert Troughton, a farmer, sued William Jackson for $500 damages alleged to have been caused when he collided with Jackson's cow. Jackson counter-claimed $260 for his pedigreed heifer killed by the motorcycle. Troughton says Jackson is guilty of negligence in allowing the cow to roam the road, while Jackson claims that Troughton drove the machine carelessly and if he had kept a proper lookout he would have seen the cow. So the magistrate is scratching his head in perplexity.

"GREEN HAT" PACKS PUNCH

Ceramic Theatre Offers Arlen Love Play Next Thursday.

A glowing love story, well acted, is always an event. Such is "The Green Hat," Michael Arlen's brilliant dramatization of his best selling novel of the same name, to be seen at the Ceramic theatre Thanksgiving Day, matinee and night.

There are few plays which pack the punch of this Arlen portrait of a phase of life that caused such a stir when he first revealed it between the pages of his book of the same name.

This story of Iris March, the girl who couldn't control her emotions, has proven to be one of the most colorful of stage heroines.

"The Green Hat" is not baby food. Rather, it is a diet made for feeling men and women, made strong because it pulsates with all the ingredients which go to make up the very foundations of life.

Iris March, the last of the mad Marches, finds herself the butt of suspicion because her husband falls from a window while on his honeymoon. Iris becomes a notorious woman of humor—but she always retains her overwhelming love for Napier Harpenden, whom she loved before she married.

Almost on the eve of Napier marrying a beautiful society girl, Iris comes to his apartment after 10 years' absence. She says she has come to claim her heritage and, after sweeping aside the barriers raised by loyalty to the woman Napier is to marry, Iris gives herself to her former lover. The consequences of that act from the ending of a most unusual play, which deals with the raw materials of which life is made.

"The Green Hat" is too good to miss. Don't fail to see it.

A superb company has been chosen to present the play including Dorothy Overend, Geraldine Browning, Yvonne Dor, Margaret Temple, Rupert Lucas, Arthur Metcalf, W. Boyd and many others.

High Grid Rivals Prepare For Thanksgiving Day Contest

Local Reserves See Action At Leetonia; Orange Idle Today

Local Coaches Hope to Get Line on Next Year's Prospects in North-County Engagement; Wellsville Without Game for Two Weeks.

WITH Thanksgiving day (which means to district football fans a resumption of gridiron relations between East Liverpool and Wellsville high schools) just a matter of five days and a few odd hours away, interest of football followers of the two schools is beginning to soar and neither the partisans of the Blue and White nor the Orange and Black find difficulty in waxing enthusiastic as the valley rivals prepare for the 1926 climax.

For a period of three years East Liverpool-Wellsville grid enthusiasts were forced to take their Thanksgiving menu without their big football game and the customary zest that usually attended the outdoor function was missing. The substitute attractions lined up were good, as a general rule, but they lacked the "kick."

Now that the "friendly enemies" are tugging at the leash again, both with exceptionally good elevens, prospects for a hard fought struggle next Thursday afternoon are more than a probability —they are a certainty.

Under the direction of Coach Earl Klinck, the Wellsville team which found itself in more or less of a slump following the wholesale graduation of its stars several years ago, snapped into action this season, and now as the end of the campaign heaves into view, shapes up as a formidable outfit.

Klinck's team was unfortunate in the postponement of the game with Lisbon last Saturday, inasmuch as the Orange ordinarily schedules no game for the Saturday immediately preceding Thanksgiving. The loss of the game deprived the team of the action that it should have in order to prevent it from losing its edge.

School authorities at Wellsville are not certain yet that the contest will be played. If it is it will have to take post season ranking now.

Coaches Kidder and Cox are giving their entire squad a chance in this afternoon's tilt at Leetonia.

Kidder probably will parade his 1927 prospects with the first string men taking a rest. The regulars likely will be used long enough for a good warm-up, but the biggest part of the job will be placed on the shoulders of the reserves. The local coaches hope in this way to get a line on next season's material as a unit.

Beginning Monday both the locals and Wellsville will get down to serious workouts for the Thanksgiving contest. It is possible that the Orange will be given some stiff scrimmage sessions in the absence of the regular games the last two Saturdays.

OHIO-ILLINOIS END CAMPAIGN

Field in Perfect Shape For State's Three Roughriders.

URBANA, Ill., Nov. 20.—Ohio State and Illinois wind up the Big Ten conference football season here today in one of the outstanding games of conference play.

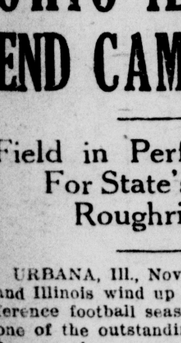

Optimistic to the extreme, the Illini are hopeful of victory in this traditional battle and a triple tie for the Big Ten championship in the event of defeats for Michigan and Northwestern in other afternoon headliners.

The playing field will be in perfect condition for the Buckeye trio of rough riders, Karow, Marek and Grim —the recent heavy snow fall having been kept from the turf by the large tarpaulin.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

One of the unsuspected causes of a lot of bad golf with players who should do much better, with the form they seemingly have, is the tendency of the right arm to pull against the left. This can happen in either or both of two places in the back swing and when the player cures one he may, if he looks, find he is bothered by the other. I have mentioned how to avoid jerking the clubhead away with a right arm pull. Then, half way up in the back swing, the right arm will again step in, if you don't watch it, and again exert a pull against the shaft. This time it pulls downward while the left arm is trying to shove up, and it pulls back and around while the left arm seeks to keep it straight. This often causes the left elbow to break like a jackknife. Let the arms act as one arm and see to it that they go on up with the club, working together.

EAST AND WEST MEET ON GRID

Unbeaten, New York Squad Plays Nebraska Today.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 20.—Eastern football, exemplified by Chick Meehan's undefeated New York University aggregation, and the western brand, represented by the Nebraska Cornhuskers, stepped out on a frozen field here this afternoon to joust for intersectional honors.

The weather was biting cold and the rain soaked turf was frozen hard as pavement from a frost-fringed gale which was scudding out of the north.

Coach Meehan was pitting a team which had compiled eight successive victories in the Atlantic region against a Cornhusker horde which had won five of six contests in its own conference. Twenty thousand spectators, garbed in winter clothing, were in the stands. The lineup:

CASE-RESERVE BATTLE TODAY

Slow Field May Overcome Advantage of Scientists.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 20.—A field made soggy by intermittent snow storms during the past 48 hours has caused a reversal in predictions over the outcome of the annual football game here today between Case and Western Reserve.

The former had been held in high esteem by the dopesters due to its ability to pass and kick but a slow field has dissipated this advantage, most experts placing the squads on even terms, although a few favor Reserve.

While neither team has much to gain, so far as conference standing is concerned, each will battle stubbornly to defend its honor and traditional prestige in this thirty-fourth annual contest.

Tod Morgan Too Good For Duane; Keeps His Title

By Sid Mercer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—As was generally forecast Tod Morgan came down from Seattle to the Bronx last night with a majority that Carl Duane could not overcome even though he packed the fistic convention at Madison Square Garden with Bronx voters and captured most of the Manhattan delegations.

Tod was thus elected to succeed himself as junior lightweight champion by the ballots of Referee Louis Magnolia and Judges Harold Barnes and George Kelly.

Morgan, employing a left jab as his chief defensive weapon, and a right cross to the head, with occasional variations of left hooks and rights to the body, carried 13 of the 15 rounds. Duane took two and three of those he lost were fairly even although Morgan undeniably had the shade.

The fight quickly developed the form lines that were predicted, Morgan winning through superior boxing and footwork. He was seldom able to make Duane take a backward step, however, Carl was a grim aggressor, edging forward to the attack round after round while Morgan danced away and scored his points by expert sharpshooting. He kept a lone left jab dangling in the challenger's [illegible] and exploded volleys of rights on Carl's granite jaw without inflicting anything more than superficial damage.

There was nothing approaching a knockdown even when the two gamecocks mixed it furiously in the closing rounds.

Local Lad to Make Barnstorming Trip With Adrian Quint

BANKERS COP DUCKPIN CLASH

Defeat Altman Quint in Liberty Loop.

The Bankers shot a southpaw, in the person of Bob Harker, at the Altman Clothiers in the Liberty Business Men's league last night and finished ahead by a count of two games to one, although taking a back seat in the matter of total pins.

The Clothiers ran up a 1909 total against 1808 by the Bankers but lost the second and third games. They piled up a commanding lead in the opener with a score of 708 to 549, but the Bankers came back in the second to cop by six pins, and inasmuch as games count in this circuit, the Bankers' victory in the third gave them the edge.

Harker couldn't get going in the second tilt but finished with a strike and a spare that decided the outcome of the contest. Johnny Greene polled a total vote of 450, three pins ahead of Canne, of the Clothiers, with a 447. Sayres, of the Clothiers, also was up in the running with 438.

COSHOCTON HIGH LANDS TROPHY

COSHOCTON, O., Nov. 20.—The Coshoction high school team today is proudly exhibiting the 1926 Central Ohio conference cup which was gained by virtue of its defeat of Mount Vernon here yesterday, 19 to 0. Parrish, who broke through and ran 70 yards for a touchdown, was the outstanding star. The team lost but one game this season.

Paul English Ends First Grid Season At Glenville With Fine Record; Will Try For Cage Job

ACCOUNTING for six touchdowns in five games, four of which were with college teams, Paul English, former high school athlete who is now a student at Glenville "prep" school, Glenville, W. V., has wound up his first football season in higher circles with a record to be proud of and is now planning to go out for a job on the varsity basketball squad.

The Glenville eleven ended its football season on Armistice day at Potomac State. Glenville was defeated, 9-7, although it was certainly no fault of English's.

State scored the first touchdown but failed to make the kick for the extra point good.

That was in the first quarter. Neither side was able to get within scoring distance then until the third period when English grabbed a pass out of the air and ran 60 yards for a touchdown. Glenville kicked goal and went one point into the lead.

Glenville had them licked then until the last five minutes when State dropkicked one over from the 30-yard line.

"I believe this was the toughest game I ever played," English says.

With four regulars back from last year's quintet, competition for places in the Glenville floor squad this winter is bound to be unusually keen, but English feels confident he can get "on." The veterans include "Buck" Miller, forward; "Slim" Tracy, center, who played with Ki Ki Cuyler's team for a while last year; "Skibo" Lorentz and Bob Markolwitz, guards.

English asserts he is going to make a bid for that vacant forward berth.

Some of the others who will also be out for the job include Orval Maple, who, English says, has played in some of the tournaments refereed by Bill Watkins, of this city; the Rodger boys from Defiance, O., and a number of others from various sections of West Virginia.

In a recent letter to Watkins who is well famaliar with the class of West Virginia athletics in which English is shifting about, the latter expressed disappointment over result of the Salem game but says he'll be rooting for victories in the remaining tilts of the season. He will probably be home for the Thanksgiving engagement.

Beaver County Bans Sunday Grid Games; Threaten Arrests

BEAVER, Pa., Nov. 20.—The lid will be clamped down tight on Sunday football games in Beaver county, according to an announcement today by County Detective Dan M. Baker. Complaints were received of Sunday games at Legionville, Woodlawn, Monaca Heights and Midland.

"No Sunday games will be permitted and spectators, officials and players will be arrested and prosecuted," declared Baker. He said additional officers would be placed on duty to watch for Sunday games in the county. Sunday golf has not fallen under the ban, the authorities stated.

Fight Results

AT NEW YORK—Tod Morgan, of Seattle, retained junior lightweight title by winning decision over Carl Duane, of New York, fifteen rounds. Eddie Anderson, of Wyoming, knocked out Arnold Ryan of Brooklyn in the sixth round. Les Murray of Australia, won decision over Solly Seaman of New York, ten rounds.

AT TAMPA, FLA.—Willie Herman of New York, won decision over Red Cap Wilson, also of New York, ten rounds.

Tony Leto, of Tampa, knocked out Joe Coppadara, of Indianapolis in the second round.

BULLDOG GIVEN SLIGHT EDGE

Harvard-Yale Result Means Little to National Ranking.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20.—Like an old actor who has been cast for pie-throwing but lives in the day when he played Hamlet, the Yale-Harvard football game will make its annual bid this afternoon for the fame which athletic decay must deny it. The old lines will be mounted with the old fervor, the old strut before the public will be as pompous as ever. But these will be gestures, suggestive only of the greatness that is past.

The time is not so long ago when this game was the ultimate in consequence, usually deciding the disposition of all collegiate honors, but today, it had only tradition to lean upon and, what with the succession of defeats experienced by the principals this season, tradition seemed a sickly reed.

No Harvard-Yale game ever has meant less to the final ranking of college teams. In other and better years, at least one of the contenders, sometimes both, came up to the meeting with presentable records. This time, they are a pair of odd lots, marked down from $1.98.

Harvard began the season badly, losing its first two games to Geneva and Holy Cross. It seems to be finishing the same way, only more so, for it has just been knocked off successively by Princeton and Brown without a scoring point. Yale, on the contrary, started with a flourish and is finishing with a flop. The Bulldog, in its last four games, failed to score against Brown, Mary and Maryland, and lost to Princeton, 10 to 7.

In other words, Yale and Harvard will not even play for the championship of the late Big Three, which statement just about comes under the general head of unnecessary roughness.

But the old capacity crowd of 78,000 will be there and maybe some of them will be really depressed if Yale fails to beat Harvard or vice versa. The loser should have justifiable grounds for melancholia, at that.

This New Jewett Brougham

is a Style Car, too!

FORTUNATE, indeed, are those who prefer the 2-door enclosed car! For in this beautiful new Jewett Brougham they can obtain the smartness and luxury and custom-exclusiveness of Paige built cars—at a cost no higher than they would expect to pay for an ordinary car.

Much of the charm of this Brougham is due to its exceptional roominess — its extra-wide doors—its inviting rear seat—to the comfortable chair seats in front, adjustable to the driver's size—to the smart and tasteful trimming.

This new Brougham is powered with a larger Jewett motor. It retains all of Jewett's remarkable ease of handling, quick acceleration and complete reliability. It retains, of course, the perfected Paige-Hydraulic 4-Wheel brakes. But it adds to these features a new smartness and style that you simply must see to appreciate. Come in — a demonstration will entail no obligation whatsoever.

There are in the charming new Paige and Jewett line, fourteen body types and color combinations (style leaders every one!) at factory list prices ranging from $1195 to $2245.

STEVENS DENIES KILLINGS

GEORGE MAYER, INJURED IN AUTO CRASH, DIES

Today

He Got It.
By Poison and Gas.
Ask Herbert Hoover.
May We Have Canals.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

IT WAS mentioned here yesterday the Italian flyer, Bernardi, would go after the three-kilometer record, held by an American officer, and get it. Bernardi did go after it and got it. His average was about 252 miles an hour, covering the course four times.

THIS is a good thing for the United States. In some way the government of this country must be made to realize flying is a reality, and that the airplane, invented in America, really flies. Bernardi, flying under the administration's nose at Norfolk, may help to make known the fact that flying is real.

GEORGE STERLING, brilliant poet, killed himself with poison, having written "Deeper into the darkness can I peer than most, yet find the darkness still beyond."

HE HAS looked, perhaps, a little deeper than usual now, and we ought to wonder what he saw. But we don't wonder, or care much. Nature keeps us so busy with little things that we forget we are all going to live until the time comes, and then, usually, we are too weak to care.

IF YOU want to know about property and the future ask Herbert Hoover. He continually travels about the country and actually sees what he looks at. As secretary of commerce he has full business information, and he says that 1927 should at least equal, if not surpass 1925 and 1926. If the country will attend to business, instead of guessing about future conditions, there will be nothing to worry about.

THE Westinghouse Co. has built an electric locomotive to pull 200 freight cars, a load of 10,000 tons, not counting the cars. At a tenth of the expense, with no costly upkeep of road beds, rails and equipment, a canal tug will haul 10,000 tons on 10 barges. Europe builds canals and utilizes cheap transportation.

MRS. FRANCES DELARUE weighed 200 pounds, a year ago, and decided the weight must come off. It did. Now she weighs 98 pounds, and the doctors say she is too weak to stand an operation required by her emaciated condition. She may die.

THOUSANDS of young girls are starving themselves almost as dangerously without any 200 weight as an excuse. For this and other foolishness among young people, the fathers and mothers are responsible, not the foolish children of this foolish age.

STOLEN ROADSTER IS RECOVERED

A Ford roadster, 1926 model, belonging to William Kind, 951 Ephraim street, stolen while parked on Washington street, last night, was found today in a field near the road between Calcutta and Cannon's Mills. One wheel on the car was demolished.

A Chevrolet coupe, belonging to James McNutt of the McNutt Printing company, was stolen near the corner of Sixth street and Broadway, last night. The license number was 246-518.

RUMANIAN KING, SERIOUSLY ILL, AWAITS RETURN OF HIS QUEEN

CALL SPECIALIST

Her Majesty Will Sail on Berengaria November 24.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 20.—While official statements continue to declare that the condition of King Ferdinand is not serious, reports were current today that the king's illness has taken a more serious turn.

A French specialist who had been in attendance upon the king and who had departed for Paris, is reported to have been recalled by telegraph.

The queen of Jugo-Slavia, daughter of the king, who had planned to return to Belgrade today, has cancelled her plans and will remain with her father.

The court is anxiously awaiting the return of Queen Marie from the United States.

Cable From Daughter.

ABOARD QUEEN MARIE SPECIAL TRAIN (in West Virginia enroute to New York), Nov. 20.—Queen Marie of Rumania, who started out so gaily a month ago for her tour of America, returns to New York today a tired and worried woman. The 10,000 mile transcontinental trip with its internal bickerings, not entirely subsided, the reported illness of King Ferdinand, the collapse of Princess Ileana through over-exertion, and the strenuous program of banquets and receptions, have taken their toll. Dark circles underline the eyes of her majesty and the vivacity for which she is famous is diminished.

The royal train arrives in Jersey City at 4:35 o'clock this afternoon. Her majesty immediately will motor to Tuxedo, N. Y., where she will rest at the home of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City bank, until she sails on the liner Berengaria November 24, for home.

Queen Marie admitted today that she had received no official request from her government to return home. She stated through the "observation car spokesman," that conflicting reports of King Ferdinand's health had made her decide to sail as soon as possible.

Her majesty received a cable from Queen Marie of Serbia, her daughter today, which read: "Paper better. Don't be anxious."

Tour Shenandoah Valley.

A farewell dinner was given Queen Marie in the dining car last night. "I wish to thank you for a very happy journey," said her majesty to Col. John H. Carroll, official host to the queen. "This train has become like a home to us. Our hearts are sad tonight at the thought of leaving America."

Among the guests were Judge Robert W. Bingham, publisher of the Courier-Jaurnal and Times of Louisville, Ky.

Her majesty distributed pictures of herself and presented Col. Carroll with a cigarette case. Col. Walter V. Shipley also received a cigarette case.

Spanish-American War Vet Jumps 555 Feet To Death

Screaming in Spanish, "Let Us Go," He Leaps From Top of Washington Monument Near White House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. — A discouraged and apparently unbalanced veteran of the Spanish-American war committed suicide dramatically today by leaping from the top of the Washington monument, which towers 555 feet. He was identified later as Henry C. Anderson, an inmate of the U. S. Soldiers' Home here.

With a shout of "vamos," Spanish for "away" or "let us go," Anderson made the fatal leap from the north side of the shaft, facing the White House. The screams were heard by guards and a small party of tourists, but no one actually saw him dive into space.

COUNTY SCOUT EXECUTIVE WILSON RESIGNS; C. E. FELTON FILLS PLACE

"Chief" Relinquishes Work Because of Business Interests in Florida —Lisbon Man is Temporary Appointee.

Resignation of Harry Wilson, Columbiana County Boy Scout executive for the last year, has been accepted by the county council, it developed today. C. E. Felton, Lisbon scoutmaster, has been named acting executive.

Wilson, who went to Florida, where he has "business interests," about a week ago, sent his written resignation to the county council meeting in Lisbon Thursday night. The scout office in the Betz building here has been closed until Wilson's successor has been named.

Wilson came to East Liverpool after the county organization was formed. Prior to that he had been stationed in Salem. He conducted the Scout camp at Lake Placentia, near North Georgetown, last summer.

At a reorganization meeting of the county council, Rev. Peter W. Macauley, pastor of the Lisbon Presbyterian church, was elected chairman to succeed I. F. Mellinger, Leetonia. Attorney W. S. Stevenson, of East Liverpool, was re-elected first vice-president; Dr. R. R. Bode, East Liverpool, second vice-president, and Probate Judge Lodge Riddle, Lisbon, third vice-president. Frank Gardner, East Liverpool, was re-elected treasurer.

A committee was appointed to name a county "chief."

SENATE SLUSH FUND COMMITTEE TURNS SPOTLIGHT ON MISSOURI

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The senate slush fund committee, which spent the summer under the direction of Senator James A. Reed, (D) of Missouri, investigating senatorial primaries from one end of the country to the other, was asked today to turn its spotlight upon the recent senatorial election in Reed's home state.

Charges of fraud, ballot stuffing, corruption, and the use of a slush fund, variously estimated at from $250,000 to $750,000, were made against the Democratic machine in Kansas City in a written appeal to the committee for a federal inquiry into the Democratic victory of Harry Bam Hawes. The request was made by a man who signed himself H. R. Walmsley.

The charges went right to Reed's front door as he waged a vigorous campaign for the election of Hawes. They did not involve either Reed or Hawes, however, in the use of the alleged slush fund.

The appeal for a senate investigation was sent to Senator George W. Norris, Republican of Nebraska, leader of the insurgent bloc, who immediately turned it over to members of the committee. Copies of the charges, it was learned, also were sent by Walmsley to Senator George Wharton Pepper, Republican of Pennsylvania, Senator-elect Frank R. Smith, Republican, of Illinois, and Senator-elect William S. Vare, Republican, of Pennsylvania, all of whom were concerned in previous fund inquiries.

JURY IN GEORGIA BANK FAILURE CAST BALLOTS, THEN GOES TO BED

W. D. Manley, Head of Defunct Trust Company Chain, Awaits Fate After He is Declared Sane.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 20.—The case of W. D. Manley, former president of the defunct Bankers Trust company chain, was in the hands of a jury today.

The jury took one ballot after it received the case early this morning and then when to bed, deciding to wait until later to consider the verdict.

Manley was tried on the first of 18 indictments against him, that of "fraudulent insolvency." He was accused of being responsible for the collapse of 83 chain banks in Florida and Georgia.

The banker pleaded insanity, but after a trial lasting more than a week, he was declared sane by a jury.

Justice McKenna is 83 years old.

BRIDE INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Eva Wenz, of Buffalo, N. Y., a recent bride, suffered lacerations to her face and other minor injuries when the car in which she and her husband were driving struck a telephone pole at the end of the concrete road east of Smith's Ferry late last night.

Mrs. Menz and her husband, who were married about 10 days ago, were on their way to Chester for a visit with the bride's brother, Rev. W. J. McKnight, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church. Mr. Wenz, who was driving the car, said he was blinded by the headlight of an approaching street car.

Mrs. Wenz was removed to the City hospital where she was attended by Dr. R. J. Marshall. Her husband was not hurt. The car was badly damaged.

OFFERS ALIBI IN HALL-MILLS CRIME TRIAL AT SOMERVILLE

Widow's Brother Says He Was Not in De Russey's Lane.

58 MILES AWAY

Declares He Was Fishing at Home in Lavallette, N. J.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

COURTHOUSE, SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 20.—Henry Stevens, one of three defendants accused of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Eleanor Mills, denied on the witness stand today, while testifying in his own behalf, that he "had directly or indirectly" participated in the double murder. He asserted he was not in De Russey's lane on the night of the crime, Sept. 14, 1922.

Denies Pistol Use in 25 Years.

His alibi was that he was fishing at his home in LaVallette, 58 miles away at the approximate time of the murder. He said he stayed in his home in LaVallette that night and that he did not leave it until he was summoned by a telegram from a relative notifying him of the death of the Rev. Hall.

Stevens, a ruddy faced outdoors man and a "crack-shot" with a rifle, testified he had not fired a revolver for 25 years. It was a .32 calibre automatic that was used in the killing.

The witness talked in an assured manner and was self-possessed on the stand. His direct examination had taken one hour and eighteen minutes. He was then taken over by Prosecutor Alexander Simpson for cross-examination.

Defendant Cross-Examined.

Cross-examining Henry Stevens, the prosecutor asked him if Willie Stevens was his "full brother." The witness said yes.

"Do you know the Church of the South has no record of his birth?"

"No."

"Do you swear he is a son of your mother and not a mulatto?"

"Yes."

Simpson shot several questions at the witness who insisted he didn't know anything about automatic pistols.

"I never once fired an automatic," the witness said.

"It would take a pretty good marksman to put three bullets in a woman's head in the dark?" Simpson asked.

"It would depend on distance?"

"Say six feet. It would take a pretty good marksman?"

"I wouldn't think it would take a marksman at all."

Witness Slightly Ruffled.

Simpson asked the witness if he know the time the shots were fired that killed Mrs. Mills. Stevens said he did not.

"Then," demanded Simpson, "Why did you tell Captain Harry Walsh you were on the beach at LaValette at 10:30, so as to put yourself on the

NINE ARE KNOWN DEAD AND 40 INJURED, TOLL EXACTED BY EXPLOSION ON NORWEGIAN OIL TANKER AT BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 20.—Eight horribly mutilated bodies had been recovered this morning from the smoldering ruins of the Norwegian oil tanker Mantilla, another man died from burns and from eight to a dozen workmen believed to have been aboard have not yet been accounted for by rescuers and firemen gingerly poking about the ship in momentary fear of another explosion.

Irana Herason, a member of the crew, died today.

The exact death list may never be known. Officials do not know how many of the missing were aboard the boat when the blast came, and has rendered difficult an accurate check. The injured numbered 40, and a few of these are so seriously hurt their deaths are expected.

Gas Caused Blast.

The explosion is believed to have been caused by gas generated in one of the ship's storage tanks.

The Mantilla has been in drydock at Sparrows Point for several weeks, undergoing repairs. She was to have gone into the service of the Mexican Petroleum company, on Monday. W. Wilhelmson, Ponberg, Norway is the owner.

The big tanker was alive with workmen at the time of the explosion. Burning oil was scattered over a wide area and firemen had to fight for hours to prevent the spread of a serious conflagration. They had to work carefully, too, in momentary expectation of a second blast from another tank.

Ship Blown Apart.

Capt. Nils Danielsen, commanding the Mantilla, said the ship was literally blown apart. He was on the dock when the explosion occurred.

"The air was full of flying steel and burning oil," said Capt. Danielsen. "Men were running around with their clothing afire, screaming with pain. I saw several with arms blown off. It was the most terrible thing I ever saw."

An accurate casualty list will not be possible until some time today when officials complete a check-up of the injured who were rushed to hospitals by every available automobile.

PLAN GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY PROGRAM DEC. 5

W. C. T. U. Will Sponsor Observance of Day in Ohio.

Movement in Behalf of Children in Near East.

Observance of Golden Rule Sunday, December 5, will have the ardent sponsorship of the Ohio Women's Christian Temperance union, according to announcement from Columbus headquarters of the organization.

The support of young people's societies in all communities will be sought by the W. C. T. U. women in pledging observance of the day in behalf of the orphan tots of the Near East. A letter issued by Mrs. Florence D. Richard, president of the temperance organization, and Mrs. H. D. Van Kirk, secretary, asks local unions to take an active part in the campaign.

In a recent overseas tour, Mrs. Richard met the Bible land tots face to face, returning to America with an enthusiastic appreciation of this country's colossal child welfare task. In becoming sponsor for Golden Rule Sunday the W. C. T. U. has departed from its custom of gathering its funds for its own work, Mrs. Richard explains, for the child need of Bible lands is too urgent to be ignored by red-blooded women.

"They have as much right to love, happiness and laughter as your own children in your home,' says the president in speaking of the Near East orphans. "Their parents are dead. They are not asking for much—only a bit of bread and a place to sleep. There are more of them than the Near East Relief has funds to care for. 'Faith without works is dead.'"

"It is hoped that all local unions in Ohio will respond in their usual splendid spirit and in remembrance of the needy little children, says Mrs. Richard in a letter to the W. C. T. U. membership.

SYNOPSIS.

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. He is aimless and amiable. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming, rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers, in spite of his natural bashfulness, to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla, in his 'comic little car." After a mement's hesitation she accepts his his offer. As they ride he tries to "explain" himself. He has money—enough—but is suffering from a bad case of "dual personality." He is obviously greatly bothered about something, some conflict within himself. She, for her part, tells that her name is Hester Kemble. She, like Julian, is from the East. They overtake and pass the trucks bearing the rest of the troupe. As they stop for dinner, the others come in. Julian meets Watt, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre"; Sadie, an ex-chorus girl trouper, and the rest of the cast. When the journey is resumed and La Jolla reached, Julian decides to remain with the troupe. It fascinates him. During the evening Julian comes to the rescue of the troupe financially. Watt extols him as a model patron of the arts. Sadie attaches herself to him obviously and frankly captivated by his oddness and his quaint charm. Sadie tells him of Hester, how she is a charming little actress who risked everything to try for the leading role in a movie play written by one "Robert Johns," failed and joined the troupe only as a last resort. Julian and Hester out in the little car after the night's performance find themselves alone on a road by the sea.

CHAPTER SIX.

"Here we are again," said Hester, with what he felt to be quiet amusement. "Just like this morning."

"This morning?" He was puzzled. "Oh . . . . of course . . . .but that seems like last year to me."

She didn't reply to this. She was leaning away from him, watching the ocean. But as the car rounded a promonotory, she said, "The view is nice from here."

He slowed down. She seemed not to mind. Then, with a little uprush of spirit, he turned off the road toward the ocean, stopped the motor and switched off the lights. It seemed very daring. He waited, breathless, for a protest, but none came. She merely continued gazing out into the velvety beauty of the west.

His pulse was bounding. With the sensation of one who risks everything—happiness, honor almost—he found his hand sliding along the back of the seat. Finally it settled around her little shoulder. And still she was silent.

It seemed to him that something must be said. Something. . . . .

"I've wanted to talk about your performance."

"I rather thought you didn't like it."

"I've been too excited to say anything."

"Really?"

He became slowly aware that he had pleased her. "I think it has been the most wonderful . . . .well, one of the most wonderful experiences I've ever had in the theater."

She laughed a little. "Only one of them?"

"Well . . . . it wouldn't be easy to make you understand what I meant by that, but . . . . I'll put in this way: I wouldn't have thought it possible for an actress to be as lovely, as exquisite, as you seemed to me tonight."

"That's a pretty nice thing to say."

"It's rather difficult. I mean to put in words the way you've made me feel. I'm pretty inarticulate. What puzzles me is that you should be out here barnstorming like this."

"The luck of the theater, I suppose."

"As near as I can see, from this one performance, you have everything, every necessary quality—beauty . . ."

"Oh, I haven't that!"

"Beauty is a subtle quality. Very subtle." As had happened in the morn his tongue was shaken free. All in a moment, he seemed much less boyish, vastly less the lame puppy. "You have a beautiful body and carriage. Everything you do—walking, turning, the poise of your head, the apepal in your voice—has beauty in it. Your face, too, is a perfect mask. It is exquisite. It is more than that, it is appealing, like your voice. No, you stirred me more than I can tell you. I'm so clumsy at talking."

"You don't seem so very clumsy."

"Another thing that impressed me was the way you work in a scene. You virtually amazed me. You're so quiet offstage. But in the scene you carried everything off with an irresistible buoyancy. And in timing and all that you were perfect."

"You seem to know something about the theater."

"Not much. Not in any practical way. I've never been backstage. And I've never known an actress before." He hesitated. She sensed that he was thinking out what he should say next. She knew that she was now in contact with a wholly unfamiliar side of the man. It was puzzling. This wasn't at all the man who had, within the hour, sat so shyly and forlornly aside in the road house with that pathetic, almost vapid smile in his wan face. She felt a serious honesty in him, and delicacy.

"But the outstanding quality you gave me was youth. The very spirit of youth. I think I can tell you this—you made me cry a little tonight."

"Oh," she flashed out with a sudden passionate bitterness, "but youth is just what I haven't got!"

"That isn't so. What you have is the finest kind. I should say you are lucky!"

"Lucky!"

"It is the youth of body and movement and voice. You simply have it. It's yours. And with it you have the years of experience that make it possible to use it skillfully. Why isn't that the best kind? I don't know that years have anything to do with it"

"I wonder," said she; and she held her breath a moment.

His fingers were tightening nervously about her shoulder. The thought came to her that they'd better start up that foolish motor and get back to La Jolla just as fast as they could. He was reviving the passionate hope that had carried her through many desperate months in New York and through the grinding years in stock. A little more of this sort of glow about her heart, and the starved and stifled emotional being that was surely within her would be rushing to meet him more than half way. That wouldn't do.

But the spell of the still soft night was upon her spirit—that and the surge of the sea and this new stirring sense of warmth about her heart. It was such a moment as she had dreamed of in girlish hours some years ago. But in those years she had never known the hunger that was in her now. Why not let things drift just a little longer? The thought came that it wouldn't be fair to him to let him work himself up too far. She could make him, with a word, drive her back. He wouldn't be difficult, not this gentle spirit, not if she stopped him before he lost his head. But she couldn't quite say that word.

Then she spoke out. Back of the vehement low voice lay a bitterness she had kept, in a measure, even from herself. She'd had to. In the theater a girl must assume cheerfulness, if she have it not. She must give pleasure to others. Her existence hangs on that. But the bitterness was there. And her guard was down.

"I don't know whether you realize what you're doing to me," she said. "I just about struck bottom this winter. Lost my nerve. It was the first time. But you have to have a little success now and then to keep going. You have to. Even just a little praise."

"Of course."

"An actress is so helpless. It doesn't matter how good you may be, if you can't get a chance to show it. The play has got to be there, the part. I made a wild stab at play writing this winter."

He drew her timidly closer.

"I was living in a furnished room in Hollywood. Over a hardware store. I started three plays. Everybody does that, of course, one time or another. But it was no good. I've never envied anybody as I envy the playwrights. You see them come in from nowhere—people nobody ever heard of—and make fortunes. I've thought and thought about Clare Kummer and Rachel Crothers. The women who've done it. And Robert Johns. Who was he? Nobody ever heard of him. Some people say, even now, that he's a woman using that name. He doesn't even go to rehearsals or first nights. He just writes plays, and they're put right on. Three plays running at once on Broadway this year. Two road companies doing 'Hunger.' I could have played that lead. If I could only have got through to Robert Johns himself. He understands women. Finely. Delicately."

"I'm beginning to wonder if I . . ."

It was she now who was full of self. She brushed his hesitant words aside.

"I tried so hard to meet him. But they wouldn't let me. I wrote to him. He didn't answer. Begged for just a chance to read the lines to him. He wouldn't bother, of course. He wouldn't care. Why should he? Look at 'Dottie Dimple!' That's the play about the little factory girl who photographed well and became a picture star and made so much money she owned the country. It's wonderful satire. Have you seen it?"

"Why, yes . . . . I . . . ."

"Do you know how many 'Dottie Dimple' companies are out this winter? Five! Robert Johns, whoever he is, sits back somewhere and collects the royalties. Probably in a palace in Italy. What's a struggling actress to him? .. . . .I couldn't have played 'Dottie Dimple,' of course. They'd have to have a regular movie doll for that. But I could have done the girl in 'Hunger.' And the girl from Portland boarding house in 'I Wonder If They're True.' I know I could have played her. I have to believe in what I do. I have to! But they wouldn't give me a chance. And now it's too late!"

She stopped, with a break in her voice. Her eyes were fixed on the dim horizon. He could feel her quick breathing. Suddenly, with an odd little sound, he drew up her face and kissed her. She found herself yielding her lips to his. She caught at his shoulder and clung to him.

But then, abruptly, she pushed him away.

"Take me back,' 'she said, unsteadily.

He sat motionless.

"Take me back! We can't do this sort of thing; I won't!"

He seemed to be gathering himself together. Finally he started the motor, backed around, and headed southward along the highway.

She said, without looking at him, "You'd better turn on your lights."

Without replying, he did so.

She sat hanging over the farther side up in a little heap on the seat.

They had passed through La Jolla and were rounding the long curve into the historic Old Town when he finally spoke. It was the hesitant boy of the morning.

"I've been trying to make up my mind whether I'd tell you. . . . ."

"I can't talk! Please!"

When they drove in by the dark stage and stopped, she hurriedly opened the door.

"Suppose I might as well leave the car right here . . . ." he began lamely, but she walked away with only a muffled "Good night," walked beautifully, firmly, on her little heels and disappeared in the shadows by the women's tent. He sat there for an hour fingering the wheel, then stretched out as best he could on the seat and spent what was left of the night there.

Is Cow or Motorcycle Guilty?

Is a motorcyclist or a cow at fault when the two meet, is a question before the magistrate of Te Aroba, N. Z. Robert Troughton, a farmer, sued William Jackson for $500 damages alleged to have been caused when he collided with Jackson's cow. Jackson counter-claimed $260 for his pedigreed heifer killed by the motorcycle. Troughton says Jackson is guilty of negligence in allowing the cow to roam the road, while Jackson claims that Troughton drove the machine carelessly and if he had kept a proper lookout he would have seen the cow So the magistrate is scratching his head in perplexity.

"GREEN HAT" PACKS PUNCH

Ceramic Theatre Offers Arlen Love Play Next Thursday.

A glowing love story, well acted, is always an event. Such is "The Green Hat," Michael Arlen's brilliant dramatization of his best selling novel of the same name, to be seen at the Ceramic theatre Thanksgiving Day, matinee and night.

There are few plays which pack the punch of this Arlen portrait of a phase of life that caused such a stir when he first revealed it between the pages of his book of the same name.

This story of Iris March, the girl who couldn't control her emotions, has proven to be one of the most colorful of stage heroines.

"The Green Hat" is not baby food. Rather, it is a diet made for feeling men and women, made strong because it pulsates with all the ingredients which go to make up the very foundations of life.

Iris March, the last of the mad Marches, finds herself the butt of suspicion because her husband falls from a window while on his honeymoon. Iris becomes a notorious woman of humor—but she always retains her overwhelming love for Napier Harpenden, whom she loved before she married.

Almost on the eve of Napier marrying a beautiful society girl, Iris comes to his apartment after 10 years' absence. She says she has come to claim her heritage and, after sweeping aside the barriers raised by loyalty to the woman Napier is to marry, Iris gives herself to her former lover. The consequences of that act from the ending of a most unusual play, which deals with the raw materials of which life is made.

"The Green Hat" is too good to miss. Don't fail to see it.

A superb company has been chosen to present the play including Dorothy Overend, Geraldine Browning, Yvonne Dor, Margaret Temple, Rupert Lucas, Arthur Metcalf, W. Boyd and many others.

Power from Sweet Potato.

Motor fuel is to be made from sweet potatoes and molasses in a plant now under construction in Queensland, Australia, in the first large-scale attempt in the world to produce power alcohol. The plant will have a capacity of 2,000,000 gallons a year.

ASKS CHILDREN TO SEND DOLLS TO JAPANESE

Council of Churches Urges Demonstration of Good Will.

LEADER NAMED

Appeal to Sunday Schools and Other Organizations.

An invitation to the children of East Liverpool to participate this fall in a nation-wide demonstration of good will for Japan by sending thousands of "doll messengers of friendship" to that country was brought here today by Rev. H. E. Beckler, field secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches.

He came to confer with local church leaders in the interest of the program. Plans are under way to organize a local committee of church women to secure the participation of Sunday school classes, public school groups, neighborhood groups and various church and social organizations of children.

Mrs. C. R. Reese, Ambrose avenue, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, will have charge of the work here.

Buy and Dress a Doll.

Each group taking part, Beckler explained, will buy and dress a doll, write a good will message to go with it and send it off after a farewell reception to join with those of thousands of other children on the long journey to Japan.

Arriving in Japan, the American dolls will be distributed to all parts of the country through the public schools, with the official co-operation of the government, and each of them will go into a Japanese home at the time of the national "Festival of Dolls" on March 3.

This festival is the great national home holiday of the Japanese, when attention is centered on the family life and when the children hold a prominence in the household similar to that of American children at Christmas time. Ancestral doll treasures handed down in the family for generations are placed on display at this time. The American dolls will take their place in these collections, to stand in future years as a reminder of the good will of the mass of the American people for those of Japan.

Message of Good Will.

"The value of the doll messengers as a force for world peace will thus be twofold." Beckler pointed out. "They will carry the message of good will to the Japanese not only now but for year after year in the future, and in addition they will afford an opportunity for acquainting American children with the Japanese and giving them an understanding of the fine qualities of that nation."

The national movement to send doll messengers to Japan is led by the Committee on World Friendship Among Children, which is allied with the Federal Council of Churches. In Ohio the Woman's Committee of the Ohio Council of Churches has assumed full responsibility for the undertaking and is seeking to organize county committees throughout the state.

Each doll that goes to Japan will carry a passport. The passport fee is one cent and the cost of the transportation ticket which must be provided for each is 99 cents. New and attractively dressed dolls are to be sent.

Ministers and other local church leaders have been provided with detailed information about the project and others desiring such information can obtain it by writing to the Ohio Council of Churches, 415 Outlook building, Columbus, Beckler said.

But—He "Felt No Better For That"

A man from Nebraska tells this: "For three nights I was kept awake by a bothersome persistent cough, and so were others of the family; and I felt no better for that. The very first doses of Foley's Honey and Tar relieved me and in two days' time my cough was entirely gone." Think of the saving of distress to himself and others, had he taken Foley's Honey and Tar Compound at the start. It pays to keep it on hand. The large family size is a real economical buy. Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

Hapsburg Castle for Sale to American; Duke Needs Money

SALZBURG.—The finest of the Hapsburg castles is for sale and preferably to an American. The castle is Hohenwerfen, near here, belonging to the Archduke Eugene of Hapsburg and has been placed on the market because the war-ruined Hapsburg has not enough money to make the needed repairs on his estate.

Like all of the Royal house, the Archduke Eugene lost his properties in the former Austrian domain, now Czecho-Slovakia, Italy, Roumania and Jugo-Slavia. These confiscated estates were the most rumenerative of Archduke and at present he finds himself with only Hohenwerfen, his summer seat, in his possession and no income.

The castle is the most beautiful and one of the most historical in the country. It commands the finest position in the beautiful country surrounding Salzburg, and dates in parts to the tenth century when the early Hapsburgs were yet only seeking to gain a foothold in the land they later ruled for six centuries.

The Archduke must have money and is making efforts to dispose of the relics, paintings and furniture if he cannot find anyone in America rich enough to buy his castle.

Warm Comfort in Every Room With the Improved Anchor Hot-Blast Heater

Wherever heating stoves are used the Anchor Hot Blast proves its superiority—proves that in downright efficiency, in convenience, in actual economy, it is without an equal.

This superiority is not an accident, but is the result of many years of practical and scientific heating stove manufacture and practical tests.

The features of construction the Anchor Hot Blast Heater meet every requirement of heating-stove efficiency and long-time service. Highest quality materials, expert workmanship and scientific design combine to give a heating result unequalled in this type of heater.

The Anchor Hot Blast will burn any fuel—hard coal, soft coal, lignite wood or coke, giving a uniform heat under perfect control, and slow economical combustion. Because ofthe hot-blast feature, the gases from soft coal are completely burned, making a ton of soft coal equal to a tonor more of expensive hard coal.

Careful attention has been applied to every detail of construction. And it is mounted absolutely airtight and remains airtight, because these details have been perfected and made practical.

In addition to a fine appearance that will ast the life of the stove, the Anchor Hot Blast offers real home comfort and a saving of 25 per cent on your fuel bill.

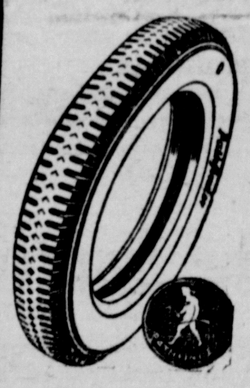

Study these construction features. Know that your Anchor Hot Blast will save its cost out of the coal bin and pay dividends for years to come in warm home comfort and satisfaction.

Buy Christmas Seals

With the closing of the tenth annual Red Cross roll call, in which East Liverpool is participating, on Thanksgiving Day, the Christmas seal campaign will be launched in Ohio. And during the following month, people of the Buckeye state will see three carolers singing every day, everywhere, for they are painted on the 1926 message of health.

These carolers are garbed in scarlet cowls and tights, and bright yellow jerkins—the costume of minstrels. One touches the strings of a lute; another sounds the clear notes of a trumpet, and between them a third holds a show-white shield bearing the double-barred cross, world-wide emblem of the tuberculosis association.

Symbolical, indeed, of the purpose of the Christmas seal is the use of the minstrels on the Yuletide seal, for the magic word is derived from the old Latin noun, "minister," which means "one who serves." And the Christmas seals do serve in the campaign to reduce the white plague toll.

Since the fight against the disease, through the sale of Christmas seals, the tuberculosis death rate in Ohio has been cut in half. The state rate per 100,000 population for 1925 was 76.1 as compared with 150.7 in 1910.

The sale of the penny messages of health and Christmas cheer provide the funds for carrying on the fight against the malady.

Federal Taxes

There is a great deal of confused argument and temper over what shall be done with that United States treasury surplus. As far as the public is concerned, there is little to get excited about.

It is pleasant to have a surplus of $250,000,000 or $300,000,000 accumulating in this fiscal year. It is substantial evidence of national prosperity. And it will be pleasant to have it applied to any legitimate purpose.

If it is applied to a reduction of the national debt, that will put the nation just that much ahead and, by reducing the interest payments, make less taxes necessary hereafter. If it is returned to the taxpayers in the form of a rebate this year or next year, why, that will be pleasant for the people who get it. As long as congress doesn't start right in to spend the surplus foolishly, just because it is burning a hole in the governmental pocket, nobody will have any serious kick coming.

The really important thing, however, is to keep on reducing taxes to whatever extent the accumulating surpluses show it is possible, collecting from year to year only the amount for operating the government thriftily and paying off the national debt systematically. And as matters stand, there is pretty general agreement that the next place for a slash is in the corporation income taxes, which were raised last year when personal taxes were lowered.

That will benefit immediately a lot of corporations which possibly can afford the taxes. But they, as well as individual taxpayers, have a reduction coming to them, and indirectly everybody should benefit by such procedure. As matters stand, the high corporation taxes are simply passed along to the public in high prices.

First American Cathedral

We are rapidly getting acquainted, nowadays, with a lot of Ameican pioneers formerly overlooked or diregarded. The latest revelation brings truly remakable news of one of the famous old Norse explorers, Eric the Red.

It was long known that Eric had headed a colony of Norsemen who settled in Greenland and had explored a large part of the Atlantic coast, but the extent of the Greenland settlement was not realized. Dr. Noerland, who has been conducting archeological researches in that forbidding northern land, has returned to Copenhagen with an account of a regular city built by those old Norsemen at Ivigo. He has discovered the foundation of a large cathedral and many other buildings, among them a bishop's palace of red sandstone that is said to have covered five and a half acres.

Think of a Christian cathedral in America in the twelfth century. We shall have to revise some of our historical ideas and give due credit to pioneers far earlier and more daring than our own New England and Virginian settlers.

Modern Saints

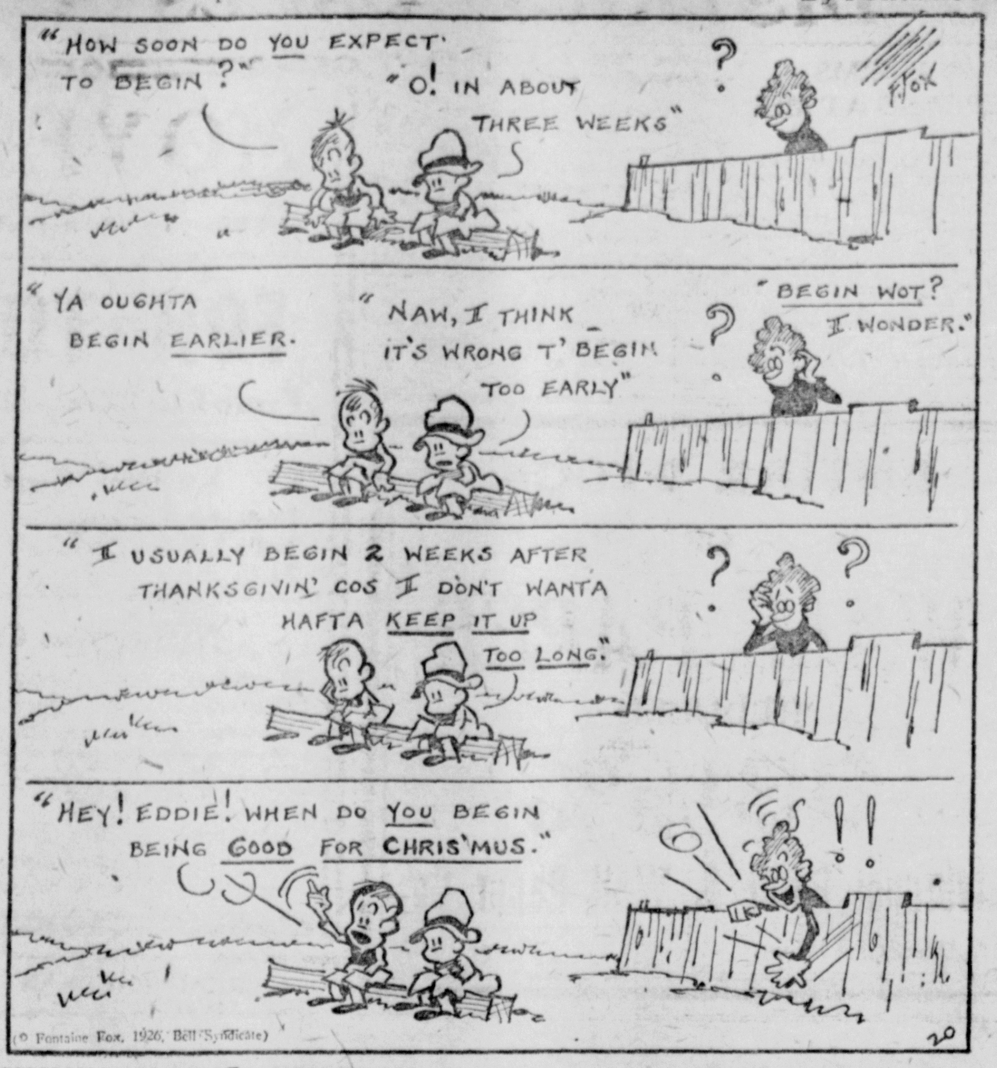

A Swiss peasant has got himself into trouble. He was wealthy, as his class reckons wealth. He wanted to rid himself of his property for the sake of heavenly riches. So he gave his farm to his brother and distributed his money, amounting to $10,000, among the poor, and planned to earn enough for his simple wants as an insurance agent.

Thereupon a local orphan asylum asked the court to appoint somebody to look after him, on the ground that his actions showed him to be mentally deranged and in danger of becoming a public charge.

When Leo Tolstoy likewise sought salvation in voluntary poverty, people said he was in need of a guardian.

Long ago St. Francis of Assisi set the historic example for that sort of procedure, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness. He became a notable example for the ages. But the present generation looks at such things differently.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

One of my older favorites—I may have repeated it here in this column deals with the man who met a man. And the first man said to the second man: "Is your wife entertaining this winter?" And the second man replied briefly but bitterly: "Not very."

Now there bobs up an elaboration of this popular theme which in my opinion also deserves a place in our symposium.

A haggard-looking individual encounters an acquaintance on the street. The following dialogue then ensues:

'So you were at the meeting of the Civic Improvement Forum yesterday? My wife was there. Did she speak?

"Well, I don't know your wife, but there was one tall, slender lady with a very intent expression who arose—"

"That must have been my wife. Go on."

"She arose and said she could not find the words to express her feelings."

"That couldn't have been my wife!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—It has been estimated that 10,000 women in Manhattan have permanently despoiled natural beauty by tampering with their hair. The efforts of blondes and brunettes to change with the season exacted this alarming toll.

A coiffure expert is also authority for the statement that several thousand women are now wearing wigs to "hide scars of vanity." In these instances the chemical process has shorn the hair of gloss and left it brittle and unmanageable.

In every gathering are "dyehards" who are paying the price — henna turning to stagnant green, straw blonde dark at the roots and gray, the sickly stain of walnut juice. Hair dressers defend their art by saying the victims were inexpertly treated. Whatever the cause, results are ghastly.

Under brilliant and penetrating lights are to be found young women of amazing beauty with hair revealing several grotesque shades. In some instances the damage can never be remedied and in others it will take years to blot out the transformation.

There are innumerable ladies of the stage who have found themselves jobless because of the appearance of their hair under spotlights. And several producers have banned blondined and hennaed choristers from the ensemble.

Following the prevalent idea last summer that gentlemen preferred blondes it is recorded several thousand provocative ladies whose habitat was the moist dales of Broadway appeared in sudden and peroxided splendor almost over night.

They seemed impressed with the notion like attracted like—gold would bring gold. Now they are trying to unscramble the result with no great success. As one lady of the evening expressed it: "I certainly dealt myself a mess of misery when I tried to outsmart nature."

I am told New York street cleaners are called "White Wings" because they express the energetic spirit of a popular song in the Nineties: "White wings—they never grow weary."

Five years ago a New Yorker married a beautiful and prominent girl. Every day since he has received a post card in the same hand reading, "How's the bride?" The cards are rarely mailed from the same station and often they come from distant cities and far away countries. At first he considered it a mere joke of friends but the insistance has caused him annoyances and I was told he had offered a $10,000 reward to the private detective agency solving the mystery. While the writer is disobeying no law, he is proving a provoking nuisance.

Today a man and his wife came to call. He had been a bricklayer who had given up his trade to devote his efforts to winning a $5,000 short-story prize. There is no particular reason why a bricklayer cannot write—but it happened this one couldn't. His manuscript was painfully ungrammatic and plotless and while he explained the high light of his story his faithful wife beamed and nodded her approval. They were already making plans for a trip to Europe with the prize and it required a more courageous person than I to tell them their hope was futile. I know they left me with a little lump in my throat.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Three Months of Disasters.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 20.—Early in August the American Red Cross made the announcement that for the first time in many years of disaster relief work a fiscal year had ended on June 30, without the occurrence of a major disaster. Seemingly coming almost as a direct challenge to this boast the month of August ushered in a series of disasters, until now it is said that never before in the history of the Red Cross has there been visited upon the North American continent such a disaster period.

The first wrath of the elements struck along the South Atlantic and Gulf Coasts when one or two vessels disappeared mysteriously from the ocean's face, and others scurried to the nearest harbors. And then on August 27, a hurricane struck Terrebone Parish, Louisiana. Twenty-two persons were killed in Houma, crops were destroyed, and scores of buildings were demolished. The economic loss was estimated at approximately $5,000,000. Four hundred families were homeless and were in dire need of the help which was immediately rushed to the spot by the Red Cross. The stricken ones were fed, clothed, and housed, and general vaccinating was carried on in cooperation with the state board of health in an attempt to forestall a possible outbreak of typhoid.

In the meantime the waters of the Illinois river were rising and on September 8, they overflowed their banks at Jacksonville, Illinois, flooding the homes of 135 families. Local chapters of the Red Cross in nearby communities hurried relief and the nation's organizations advanced funds to assist in the work.

A few days later a call for help came from Eastern Kansas where a flood had centered at Burlington putting the business district of that town under several feet of water. There 90 families were affected and in the rural districts more than 200 families, the economic loss being placed at $2,000,000.

The Florida Hurricane.

Then followed the greatest disaster of all—the one which left a nation stunned and brought to ruins many "shining palaces built upon the sands." The Florida hurricane shook the country, both because of the amount of havoc wrough and because the losses touched people from practically every section. This catastrophe left 20,000 families homeless, killed nearly 400 persons, and injured 6375.

Practically everyone is familiar by this time with the relief work done by the Red Cross, as well as by other agencies in Florida. The Red Cross alone sent approximately 400 workers to aid during the emergency. These included not only doctors and nurses, but experienced case workers, accountants, and clerks. It is said that not since the great San Francisco earthquake and fire in 1906 has the organization been called upon to face a relief task of such magnitude.

The official records show that in the week from October 2 to October 9, in Florida, the Red Cross gave medical and nursing aid to 113,209 persons, many of whom were inoculated against infectious diseases; that food was distributed to 6,500 persons and clothing to 4,650. In addition, materials for the repair of homes were furnished to 3,000 families and tents erected to house 1,900 homeless persons.

This was all in addition to the work necessary to carry on the permanent progress of rehabilitation.

The Red Cross health workers, the local doctors, and the local health officials of the devastated area are proud of the fact that, in the face of conditions ideal for the appearance of virulent epidemics, excellent health conditions have existed throughout the hurricane zone. In most communities the number of cases of contagious diseases has actually been smaller than usual. An outstanding achievement is represented by the absence of tetanus and other complications among the thousands injured. There was but one tetanus case and that was a mild one which responded quickly to threatment.

The fact that it was necessary to concentrate such a large number of Red Cross workers in the Florida devastated area has not deterred that organization from rendering efficient aid in other districts where it has been needed. Floods have continued in various sections of the Middle West and in Sioux City 300 cases were reported as needing help, while in the Hawarden area 200 were aided. Most of this work was very efficiently handled by chapter workers.

Another Illinois Flood.

Later in September the Illinois again became unruly and the waters rose, steadily inundating the country for miles, until suddenly the levee broke, and the havoc was complete. The mid-western branch office of the American Red Cross stated that the flood situation in the Illinois river valley was a very serious one and represented the largest flood operation which that office had been called upon to handle. It was conservatively estimated that 2,000 families were affected in the valley and along the Mississipi river between Alton and Quincy, Illinois.

But nature was still on the rampage. Sandusky, Ohio, had a tornado late in September, and in October Wagoner county, Oklahoma, had a similar visitor, with the added complication of a flood. In Alaska a series of fires broke out, destroying four villages in one section, two in another.

and we are sitting all alone
To our hearts there come a longing
If she only would come home.
We think of her in silence,
No eye can see us weep
And many a tear is shed
While others are asleep.
More and more each day we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But little do they know the sorrow
That lies within our heart concealed.

DAMAGE VERDICT IS RETURNED

A verdict of $2,006.30 for the plaintiff was returned by the jury in the case of E. C. Ray of Green township, against John C. Boyd of near Hookstown, in the Beaver county courts Thursday. The suit which was tried before Judge William A. McConnel started last Friday afternoon, occupying the greater part of five days.

The suit for damages brought by Mr. Ray grew out of an alleged false representation of the value of the goods and fixtures in a store in Hookstown, formerly owned by the defendant, Mr. Boyd, and traded by him to Ray for a farm in Greene township. According to the terms of the contract between the two men, most of which was oral, Ray was to pay $1,500 for the store building and $10,000 for the stock and fixtures. Mr. Boyd was to pay Mr. Ray $6,000 for the farm. The livestock and machinery was to be paid for according to the appraisement, which amounted to $2,757.70. The store goods and fixtures were also to be appraised, but the deal was closed before the appraisement had been completed, according to witnesses. When the appraisement was finished the goods and fixtures were found to be worth only approximately $5,700.

Ray alleged that Boyd misrepresented the value of the stock in the store, and sued him for damages. The defendant claimed that he never told Ray that the value of goods was $10,000 or over.

According to witnesses, Ray took possession of the store, on September 4, and the inventory of the stockwas not completed until about September 12.

DOCTOR'S MURDER CHARGED TO FEUD

Activity in politics may have resulted in the murder of Dr. Diego Delfino, 51, in Brooke county, Wednesday night. Sheriff Robert M. Lowe and Coroner J. B. Wilkinshaw yesterday made public that they are working at present under this belief.

Bits of evidence have been uncovered, one of which was that Dr. Delfino had written his own obituary and had a body guard with him almost constantly. This man, known only as Tony, came to the physician's home ten minutes after Delfino started on the fatal automobile ride with a stranger who shot him six times as he drove along the river highway. The sheriff stated that it has been learned that Delfino was an organizer for an Italian political and secret society known as the Sons of Garibaldi and standing in favor of Mussolini. Bills for telegraph and cable tolls found in his office indicated that he kept in close touch with organizers throughout the world.

He is said to have received large envelopes of registered mail from Italy. In 1918, while a resident of Columbus, he was sent by the governor of Ohio to Italy in connection with affairs out of the World War. In 1924 he was made a chevalier of the sovereign military order of Constantini and St. George.

Its charter from congress designates it as the official agency for sending relief in disaster in this country and to foreign lands. To all who suffer in fire, flood, hurricane or other calamity, its offers immediate help and consolation. In addition, it at all times carries on a program of public health which alone merits the support of the American people.

HENRY STEVENS OFFERS ALIBI IN HALL-MILLS CASE

OUTDOORS MAN TESTIFIES IN MURDER TRIAL

Wife Gives Him Encouraging Pat on Shoulder.

CALM ON STAND

Denies Any Connection With De Russey Lane Slayings.

COURT HOUSE, Somerville, N. J., Nov. 20.—Henry Stevens, one of the defendants in the Hall-Mills murder trial, took the witness stand in his own defense when court opened at 10:08 o'clock this morning.

"Henry Stevens!" cried John Bunn, quaint crier of the court. Ruddy faced Henry Stevens, outdoors man and crack shot, walked briskly to the stand.

Stevens, with his brother, Willie, and his sister, Mrs. Frances Stevens-Hall, is accused of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills in De Russey's lane on the night of September 14, 1922.

Mrs. Henry Stevens, sitting just back of the defendants, gave her husband an encouraging pat on the shoulder as he left his seat for the witness stand.

Today His Birthday.

Defense Attorney Clarence Case began questioning Stevens.

"How old are you?" He asked.

"Fifty-seven, today is my birthday."

"Are you difficult of hearing?"

"I am—a little."

Case spoke louder.

"Where do you live?"

"Lavallette, N. J."

Lavallette is 58 miles from De Russey's lane, where Mrs. Jane Gibson, the state's star witness, said she saw Henry Stevens on the night of the murder.

Lavallette is about eight or nine miles south of Point Pleasant, N. J., near Barnegat bay and the ocean and connects with Bayhead, N. J.

Arms Demonstrator.

"What has been your business?"

"I worked for the Dupont company and demonstrated how to shoot clay pigeons on the pier at Atlantic City. I also worked for the Remington Arms company. I demonstrated trap shooting for them. I called on dealers and advertised trap shooting. I was also a salesman for them."

He testified the Remington Arms company made a small two-barrelled revolver.

He had experience with all makes of cartridges so he could sell them, he said.

"Have you ever had any experience with a pistol?"

"Yes—about 25 years ago."

He said as late as 1915 he had a pistol but he gave it away.

Owned Revolver in 1892.

"Prior to 1915 did you have a revolver?"

"In 1892 I had one."

"From 1915 did you have a revolver?"

"No. I haven't fired one in 25 years."

"How could you get to New Brunswick from Lavallette?"

"By way of Seagirt to Monmouth Junction and thence to New Brunswick."

In 1922, he testified the roads were very good over several different routes.

"Did you drive a car in 1922 or prior to that time?"

"Only a Ford."

He had never driven a gear shift car, he testified.

His Ford had a box body with moveable seats, both front and rear, he said. Its color was natural wood.

Stevens testified that after he settled down in Lavallette he did not often visit his relatives in New Brunswick.

His mother died in New Brunswick in 1919 and after that he didn't go back there often, although his sister, Mrs. Hall, lived there.

Q. What were your relations with your sister, Mrs. Hall.

A. Very pleasant.

Q. Where were you on the 14th of September, 1922?

A. Lavallette.

Q. Describe your movements on that day.

A. I was around town practically all day. I drove down to see a friend in Seaside park. Then I looked after my boats along the edge of the bay, a block from my house.

Mrs. Hall Changes Chairs.

While Stevens was on the stand, Mrs. Hall left her accustomed seat between her brothers and moved to a chair at the far end of defense counsel table.

Stevens was calm and self possessed.

"Continue as to your movements on September 14, 1922, Case said.

A.—I fished part of the time in the afternoon and then visited friends in Seaside park, two miles away. I returned after a short time and fished again.

Q.—What did you do after supper that evening.

A.—I went out on the beach and fished on and off till 9 o'clock. I remember returning to the house. I also remember going to Mr. Egger's house, and then I came back and again went fishing on the beach.

Stevens, in his calm, even voice related that after supper he went north of his house to a hole and fished.

Q.—Whom did you meet?

A.—About dusk Arthur Applegate came along with a good sized blue fish. It weighed about six pounds. I remember because I weighed it on my small scales."

Stevens said that after weighing the fish he returned to his fishing on the beach. He couldn't remember the exact time, but he remembered being with Mr. Eggers.

"We both fished together until about 9 o'clock," he said.

Q. What did you do then?

A. I returned to the house to clean the fish I caught. After that I went back to the beach to see if any one made any good catches. I then returned home for a drink of ginger ale or root beer and talked a few minutes with Mr. Eggers, who called. Mr. Eggers went home after a little while.

Q. What time was that?

A. I think it was about 10 o'clock or a little later.

(The time of the double murder in De Russey's lane has been fixed at approximately 10:20 p. m.)

Q. What did you do then?

A. I attended to various little duties around the house such as banking the fires and then I read the paper. I retired about 11 o'clock.

Just before he retired, he said he went out of the house to see if everything was all right.

"I noticed a light next door," he said. "I stepped over to the house of Mrs. Wilson and asked her about some arrangements for Thursday with the Wilsons to go to Point Pleasant. Mrs. Wilson was to go to Point Pleasant. Mrs. Wilson and her two daughters were to compose the party. I then returned home and retired."

Telegram Is Produced.

Q. What time did you get up the next morning.

A. A half hour before sunrise and I went to the beach to catch mullet.

Mrs. Marie Demarest, witness for the state, has testified she saw Henry Stevens in New Brunswick on this Friday morning—the morning after the murder.

Then, Stevens testified, he had breakfast and went to the station to get mail. After getting the mail, he returned home.

beach the exact time the shots were fired?"

Stevens was slightly ruffled for the first time.

"I was on the beach until 10:30 and I told what I did to the best of my ability," re replied.

Simpson asked Stevens how long it would take to go from LaValette to New Brunswick in a Ford. Stevens said "from two and one quarter to two and one half hours."

The prosecutor turned and shouted: "Stand up, Pete."

"Pete" did.

"Didn't you tell that man you knew a route that would get you here in an hour and a half?" Simpson cried.

"I told him I knew a short way."

Stevens insisted his relations with Mr. Hall were "very pleasant" that he was shocked to learn he was killed. He admitted, however, he did not go to the undertaker's to look upon the dead man's face.

Simpson drew the admission that Stevens did not attend his sister's wedding. But the reason was not because he hated Dr. Hall, the witness said.

"What did you think of the marriage?" Simpson asked.

"I didn't think much of it."

Prosecutor Speaks Sarcastically.

Stevens said in reply to a question that he never saw a revolver in Dr. Hall's possession. He did believe, however, that Willie had a revolver. He saw this revolver "years before the murder."

"Did you ever carry a fishing knife," Simpson asked.

"I used to carry a knife with my bait. I used it to clean fish on the night of Sept. 14, 1922."

"When your sister was arrested and in jail for 40 hours, why didn't you visit her?"

"Your brother, Willie was in jail for several weeks and told his sister that he wanted you to visit him but you never went?"

"No."

Simpson then said sarcastically:

"I'll tell you why you didn't go to see them. You were afraid to come because you might be identified and were afraid you would get your nose in a jam."

Adjournment for luncheon was then declared.

PACT REVEALS VANDERBILT'S BARTERING FOR DUCAL TITLE

Millionaire Gave Gold in Wedding of Consuelo.

KNOT IS UNTIED

Duke of Marlborough Received $3,100,000 From Trust Fund.

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., Nov. 20.—The 31-year-old contract by which William Kissam Vanderbilt bartered his yankee gold for a British ducal title for his seventeen year-old daughter Consuelo, was revealed today.

The contract, a voluminous indenture between the "most noble Charles Richard John Duke of Marlborough, party of the first part, and William Kissam Vanderbilt, esquire, party of the second part," was found in the musty file of an obscure courthouse here. It was as formal, as cautious and as safe-guarding throughout its lengthy provisions as though the able financier was transferring a valuable piece of real estate for a valuable block of railroad bonds instead of conveying a beautiful heiress into the nobility.

The hitherto unpublished document revealed the shrewd bargaining by which the Duke of Marlborough shared his title with Consuelo Vanderbilt after having wrung concession after concession from her wealthy father. It also disclosed that the Duke and William K. Vanderbilt were mutually distrustful of one another.

The discovery of the marriage contract comes on the heels of the recent annullment of the marriage by the tribunal of the rota at Rome.

Annual Income of $100,000.

By the terms of the contract Vanderbilt settled, outright, on the Duke of Marlborough the proceeds of a trust fund of $2,500,000. From this fund, despite the fact that the couple has been divorced for several years, the Duke of Marlborough has already collected $3,100,000, and continues to receive an income of $100,000 a year from it.

In addition, Vanderbilt agreed to furnish Consuelo with an annual income of $100,000.

To make doubly sure that the duke got his "bit," the contract provided that in case the first trust fund in the duke's favor was voided by Consuelo's Vanderbilt relatives, on the ground that she was not of age, the duke was to receive a second trust fund of $2,500,000 which was left by William Henry Vanderbilt to William K. Vanderbilt, and which the latter promised to turn over to Consuelo.

Second Trust Fund.

In event of Vanderbilt's death Consuelo was to receive this second trust fund, thus insuring her annual income of $100,000.

Vanderbilt's distrust of his titled son-in-law was evidenced in the provision that Consuelo should not be allowed to draw in advance a single dollar of her annual income.

But this was matched by a stipulation in favor of the duke that if Consuelo should draw in excess of ten thousand pounds sterling, or $50,000 in any one year, all such funds in excess of the ten thousand pounds sterling, or $50,000 in any one year, all such funds in excess of the ten thousand pounds sterling should be paid into the ducal trust fund.

Elaborate provisions were made for the investment of the trust funds.

The Marblehead, Mass., pottery has contributed 10 samples, while the Newcomb pottery of New Orleans has three attractive bowls and six beautiful vases. From the Paul Revere pottery of Boston, Mass., there are nine displays, while Charles F. Binns of the New York state school of clay working and ceramics at Alfred university, Alfred, N. Y., has nine pieces. Edmund F. Curtis of New York is the owner of five costly pieces in the exhibit.

Pope Pius Praises Mexican "Martyrdom" In Asking Prayers

ROME, Nov. 20.—Sounding a note of highest praise for the "martyrdom" of "persecuted Catholics" in Mexico, Pope Pius XI today addressed an encyclical to the world episcopate, appealing for prayers reaffirming the "undoubted triumph of justice" in that country.

After lauding the Catholics and clergy and southern republic, Pope Pius examined in detail the anti-religious law passed by the Mexican government, laying strees upon the "vexations and persecutions" caused by the law.

The encyclical was replete with highest praise for the work of Catholic organizations in Mexico during the trying times of the religious conflicts, particularly it praised the Knights of Columbus, who organized the Association for Religious Liberty, and the Association of Mexican Ladies and Mexican Catholic Youths, "who behaved splendidly."

DR. MEL MORRIS LIKENS LIFE OF CHRISTIAN TO RAIL TRIP

"Gospel Road From Earth to Heaven" is Subject.

BAPTIST MEET

Miss Jean Mackey Leaves for Atlanta, Ga.

Likening the Christian life to a railway journey Rev. Mel Morris, with apt Scriptural quotations, delivered a unique discourse at the First Baptist church revival last evening. His subject was: "The Gospel Railroad from Earth to Heaven."

Preceding the sermon a lively testimony meeting was directed oy the pastor, Rev. A. H. O'Brien, and an equally inspiring song service was led by Miss Jean Mackey, of New Cumberland, W. Va., who since the return home of Marion Ball on Monday has taken active charge of the music with Harry Chilton, the regular church leader.

The invocation was made by Rev. W. S. Hamilton, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, of New Cumberland, W. Va.

Because of the necessity of starting today for Atlanta, Ga., to begin an engagement in evangelistic services in a church of that city Miss Mackey made her final appearance at the local revival last evening. "I deem it a privilege to have worked five nights with you," she said, as she sang her concluding solo: "My Soul Is Clinging to Jesus." She went on: "I am glad the eternal God is my refuge and under me are the everlasting arms. I want to leave these word with you as my testimony." These she sang:

"My soul is clinging to Jesus
So close to His wounded side;
Oh, He is the Rock of Ages
In Him I can safely hide."

With two services on Sunday the series will conclude. Rev. Mr. Morris' theme in the morning of the final day of the revival will be: "Satan, Sifting Satan," and in the evening his topic will be: "The Unpardonable Sin."

Rev. Mr. Morris told in detail of the necessities of a railroad which he averred were similarly needed on the gospel train. "You need a book of rules on every rail system. So do you for the gospel railway and it is the Bible," he said. The key to it is "All Scripture is given by inspiration. Through it you find the way to life."

"A railroad needs a roadbed. The gospel railway is straight. Much preparation has made it so. It is an ascending incline. Its ballast is on solid rock which in this system is Christ.

"And the gospel railroad is on the main line which is Salvation. There are no side lines to it. Neither is there salvation in any other. Many think there are other routes but this is the only one—the way of Salvation through Christ.

"There is a right of way to this railway also. Its privilege has been purchased by the 'blood of the Lord Jesus Christ.' There was no compromise in the buying transaction. The title to it is clear.

"Some times there is an uncoupled car on the gospel train. Such are backsliders. They are dangerous and may run into an open switch or be ditched. Those in it are unhappy until coupled to the train again.

"The two rails of this gospel railway are faith and works. These rightly divide the way of truth. None liveth unto himself. We are all our brothers' keeper. These rails make a strong track from earth to glory. They are of standard, and not narrow guage, and comply fully with the specifications of the book of rules.

"The superintendent of the gospel railway is God the Father. He is ever to be consulted. He knows all the details of transportation. All must go to Him through prayer for 'orders' that we may know His way.

"The engine of the gospel train moves by the propelling force of love. God is love who forms its motivating power which makes for a happy, successful journey.

"The train engineer is the Holy Spirit. By it we have divine instruction. 'He will guide you to all truth.' His hand is on the throttle of the gospel train. There will thus be no wrecks or catastrophes and harmony will exist among the passengers and crew.

"The headlight of the engine is God's word. 'Thy word shall be a lamp to my feet.' No one will be afraid to ride on a train whose headlight is God's holy word.

"And there are signals on this gospel train for warnings. Red signifies danger; 'Repent and turn from your evil ways;' green indicates the certain promises of God. 'He leadeth me in paths of righteousness.' White signifies purity. 'Who hath this hope is pure as he is pure.' All these make it a safe road to travel.

"Its switches are the temptations met enroute. These seem attractive by their promise of ease and comfort in stopover privileges. But 'you will not be tempted more than you are capable of enduring.

"There are no curves on this road. God's highway is straight for 'straight is the gate.' It is a straight road for straight people.

"The time table of this road is 'now' for 'now is the accepted time and now is the day of Salvation.' The train is leaving earth's station now. Any one delaying will find it well on its way.

"Its schedule is always on time. 'Sealed until the dayof redemption.'

"The passengers of the train consist of believers, those 'saved by grace' whose 'robes have been washed in the blood of the lamb.' Their tickets have been punched with the words 'born again.' They are not Sunday excursionists and they are not blaspheming and desecrating God's day.

"The cars of the gospel train are the churches. In them the believers ride. Some aim to go on their own account by hand cars. These aver they do not need church worship, the Sunday school and prayer meetings. But they do not go far, because of traveling under their own power.

The railway's stations and depots are the services of the churches. The stops in them are always pleasant and ever a nearer point to the trip's destination.

"The cost of passage is free 'Jesus paid it all.' It is 'without money and without price.'

DIVORCE CASES HEARD BY COURT

Seven Decrees Issued by Judge W. H. Spence in Busy Session.

Seven divorce cases were disposed of by Judge W. H. Spence in common pleas court during the last session this week, a new record for one day being established for the current term of court. None of these cases were contested.

Beatrice L. Hanna who filed an action against her husband Clyde E. Hanna, who resides on Pleasant Heights, East Liverpool, was granted a decree on the grounds of extreme cruelty. The couple were married Jan. 4, 1923. The court has ordered that the mother shall have the right to visit her child, and she has also been restored to her maiden name Beatrice L. Williams.

Frederick J. Knapp, 249 Aetna street, Salem, has been granted a divorce from his wife, Lillian Knapp said to be living at Long Island, N. Y. The couple were married May 15, 1906. This decree was granted on the grounds of three years wilful absence of Mrs. Knapp. The action was filed in common pleas court Sept. 23rd.

Ruth McFadden has obtained a divorce from her husband, Howard B. McFadden on the grounds of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. This action was filed Aug. 5th last by Attorney Cecil K. Scott of Salem.

Stephania Grafton, a minor, whose petition was filed by her next friend Josephine Reel, has been granted a divorce from her husband, Charles Grafton of 735 Lexington avenue, Rochester, N. Y. The plaintiff resides at New Salisbury. The petition related the couple were married March 17, 1923. Grafton was charged with gross neglect of duty, in that he had failed to provide and support the plaintiff and furnish her with the necessaries of life since their marriage. The custody of the child was given to the plaintiff and the defendant has been ordered by the court to pay his former wife $5 per week for the support of the minor.

Wilful absence was charged in the divorce petition filed by Mae A. Cress against her husband, Charles H. Cress. This petition was filed in common pleas court Aug. 8, 1924, by the late Charles S. Speaker. The defendant at that time was residing at the Hoffman House, Leetonia. Although alimony only was sought in the original petition, a supplimental petition was filed Nov. 13, 1924 wherein a divorce was also sought. The plaintiff was granted a decree. The couple were married Aug. 5, 1918.

Anna McCoy has been granted a decree of divorce from her husband, David McCoy, on the grounds of three years wilful absence. This couple were married at New Cumberland, W. Va., May 6, 1919. The present whereabouts of McCoy are unknown.

Joseph Dusicska of East Palestine, has been granted a divorce from his wife Mary B. Dusicka. In this cause the plaintiff set up the grounds of gross neglect of duty. The plaintiff is employed by the National Fireproofing company, at East Palestine.

TWO DIVORCE CASES DROPPED

Two divorce actions that have been pending in common pleas court for some weeks have been dismissed on motion filed by the plaintiffs, and at their costs. No record is to follow in either of the suits.

The motion to dismiss the case of Frederick Z. Pritchard against Irma Pritchard has been sustained by Judge W. H. Spence, and a similar entry has been made in the case of Opal Garey against Herbert S. Garey.

The action in the Pritchard case was filed July 22nd last and that in the Garey case was filed Aug. 13th.

AUDITOR WORKING ON TAX RATES

Tax rates for the 70 different taxing districts of the county are now being worked out by County Auditor Elmer E. Walker, and the rate sheet will be filed with County Treasurer Jo Pike within the next 10 days.

Delay in working up these tax rates was occasioned because of several levies voted upon at the last election. Two of these issues were defeated, one for a three mill school levy in Fairfield township and a bond issue for $80,000 for school purposes in Knox township.

In a general way, there will be little if any increases in the different districts from those worked out a year ago.

Judgment Awarded.

The Erwin Feldspar corporation has been given judgment for $6,239.30 in common pleas court against Richard C. Sant. The original petition which was filed Aug. 2nd last sought judgment for $6,057.58 and interest, and in handing down the judgment, the court also granted additional interest charges from the first day of the present term of court.

Alimony Order Issued.

William B. Hindman has been ordered to pay his wife $35 within 10 days, and thereafter $20 per month for the support of his wife, according to an order issued in common pleas court. The order has been entered in the divorce action now pending in court, and filed by Mrs. Margaret Hindman Nov. 13th. A decree of divorce, alimony and the custody of a minor child is sought by the plaintiff.

locality, as well as part of the town of Treadwell. Case workers were notified by national headquarters to report for duty and again chaper workers came to the front.

The latest disaster calling for aid from the Red Cross was not of such magnitude as many of the others, but was perhaps more tragic, in that it cost the lives of so many children. A school house inasmall town in Maryland was struck by a "twister" without warning, and lifted from its foundations, flinging the children about as though they were leaves. Only one escaped uninjured and he accomplished this by jumping from a window and clinging to the roots of a tree. Surrounding farms and homes were also struck and numbers made homeless.

An official at the national headquarters of the Red Cross says that few people of any one section fully realize the amount of damage done by the many floods, tornadoes, and fires during the past three months. At this time Red Cross relief workers are providing for victims in eight different communities and nearly 24,000 families are under its care. In addition to those in this country American Red Cross workers have aided disaster victims in five foreign countries. The Red Cross has had its hands full since August.

The annual roll call, or drive for membership, is now going on and it would seem that the work of the Red Cross during the last few months is in itself sufficient reason for everyone's joining. A great part of the funds used by this organization in its relief work is derived from membership fees. Join the Red Cross before Thanksgiving and thus show in at least a small measure that you are grateful.

FOREVER AFTER AT AMERICAN

"Forever After," First National picture starring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes, which will open a three-day run at the American theatre on Monday.

Their romance lilts through the adolescence of high school, the days of college and finally crashes to a dramatic climax in a battle scarred hospital of war time France.

Mary Astor lends her graceful beauty to the leading feminine role. Lloyd Hughes gives a vigorous portrayal of the ambitious young lover who seeks to win fresh laurels for his love on the football field and battlefield.

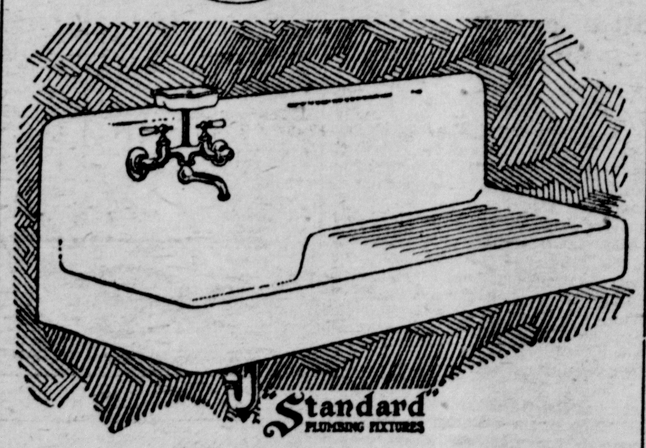

The supporting cast presents a wealth of well known screen names, including Alec Francis, the ever lovable character actor of First National; David Torrence, Hallam Cooley, the charming Eulalie Jensen and Lila Leslie.

In addition, the picture has the unusual distinction of showing the crack University of Southern California football team in action as part of the sequence. Several of these young collegians screened so well and showed such camera presence they were given minor roles in the rest of the story.

High Grid Rivals Prepare For Thanksgiving Day Contest

Local Reserves See Action At Leetonia; Orange Idle Today

Local Coaches Hope to Get Line on Next Year's Prospects in North-County Engagement; Wellsville Without Game for Two Weeks.

WITH Thanksgiving day (which means to district football fans a resumption of gridiron relations between East Liverpool and Wellsville high schools) just a matter of five days and a few odd hours away, interest of football followers of the two schools is beginning to soar and neither the partisans of the Blue and White nor the Orange and Black find difficulty in waxing enthusiastic as the valley rivals prepare for the 1926 climax.

For a period of three years East Liverpool-Wellsville grid enthusiasts were forced to take their Thanksgiving menu without their big football game and the customary zest that usually attended the outdoor function was missing. The substitute attractions lined up were good, as a general rule, but they lacked the "kick."

Now that the "friendly enemies" are tugging at the leash again, both with exceptionally good elevens, prospects for a hard fought struggle next Thursday afternoon are more than a probability —they are a certainty.

Under the direction of Coach Earl Klinck, the Wellsville team which found itself in more or less of a slump following the wholesale graduation of its stars several years ago, snapped into action this season, and now as the end of the campaign heaves into view, shapes up as a formidable outfit.

Klinck's team was unfortunate in the postponement of the game with Lisbon last Saturday, inasmuch as the Orange ordinarily schedules no game for the Saturday immediately preceding Thanksgiving. The loss of the game deprived the team of the action that it should have in order to prevent it from losing its edge.

School authorities at Wellsville are not certain yet that the contest will be played. If it is it will have to take post season ranking now.

Coaches Kidder and Cox are giving their entire squad a chance in this afternoon's tilt at Leetonia.

Kidder probably will parade his 1927 prospects with the first string men taking a rest. The regulars likely will be used long enough for a good warm-up, but the biggest part of the job will be placed on the shoulders of the reserves. The local coaches hope in this way to get a line on next season's material as a unit.

Beginning Monday both the locals and Wellsville will get down to serious workouts for the Thanksgiving contest. It is possible that the Orange will be given some stiff scrimmage sessions in the absence of the regular games the last two Saturdays.

OHIO-ILLINOIS END CAMPAIGN

Field in Perfect Shape For State's Three Roughriders.

URBANA, Ill., Nov. 20.—Ohio State and Illinois wind up the Big Ten conference football season here today in one of the outstanding games of conference play.

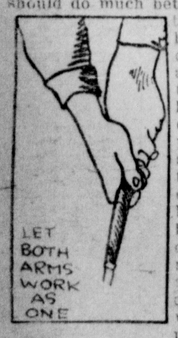

Optimistic to the extreme, the Illini are hopeful of victory in this traditional battle and a triple tie for the Big Ten championship in the event of defeats for Michigan and Northwestern in other afternoon headliners.

The playing field will be in perfect condition for the Buckeye trio of rough riders, Karow, Marek and Grim —the recent heavy snow fall having been kept from the turf by the large tarpaulin.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

One of the unsuspected causes of a lot of bad golf with players who should do much better, with the form they seemingly have, is the tendency of the right arm to pull against the left. This can happen in either or both of two places in the back swing and when the player cures one he may, if he looks, find he is bothered by the other. I have mentioned how to avoid jerking the clubhead away with a right arm pull. Then, half way up in the back swing, the right arm will again step in, if you don't watch it, and again exert a pull against the shaft. This time it pulls downward while the left arm is trying to shove up, and it pulls back and around while the left arm seeks to keep it straight. This often causes the left elbow to break like a jackknife. Let the arms act as one arm and see to it that they go on up with the club, working together.

EAST AND WEST MEET ON GRID

Unbeaten. New York Squad Plays Nebraska Today.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 20.—Eastern football, exemplified by Chick Meehan's undefeated New York University aggregation, and the western brand, represented by the Nebraska Cornhuskers, stepped out on a frozen field here this afternoon to joust for intersectional honors.

The weather was biting cold and the rain soaked turf was frozen hard as pavement from a frost-fringed gale which was scudding out of the north.

Coach Meehan was pitting a team which had compiled eight successive victories in the Atlantic region against a Cornhusker horde which had won five of six contests in its own conference. Twenty thousand spectators, garbed in winter clothing, were in the stands. The lineup:

CASE-RESERVE BATTLE TODAY

Slow Field May Overcome Advantage of Scientists.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 20.—A field made soggy by intermittent snow storms during the past 48 hours has caused a reversal in predictions over the outcome of the annual football game here today between Case and Western Reserve.

The former had been held in high esteem by the dopesters due to its ability to pass and kick but a slow field has dissipated this advantage, most experts placing the squads on even terms, although a few favor Reserve.

While neither team has much to gain, so far as conference standing is concerned, each will battle stubbornly to defend its honor and traditional prestige in this thirty-fourth annual contest.

Tod Morgan Too Good For Duane; Keeps His Title

By Sid Mercer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—As was generally forecast Tod Morgan came down from Seattle to the Bronx last night with a majority that Carl Duane could not overcome even though he packed the fistic convention at Madison Square Garden with Bronx voters and captured most of the Manhattan delegations.

Tod was thus elected to succeed himself as junior lightweight champion by the ballots of Referee Louis Magnolia and Judges Harold Barnes and George Kelly.

Morgan, employing a left jab as his chief defensive weapon, and a right cross to the head, with occasional variations of left hooks and rights to the body, carried 13 of the 15 rounds. Duane took two and three of those he lost were fairly even although Morgan undeniably had the shade.

The fight quickly developed the form lines that were predicted, Morgan winning through superior boxing and footwork. He was seldom able to make Duane take a backward step, however, Carl was a grim aggressor, edging forward to the attack round after round while Morgan danced away and scored his points by expert sharpshooting. He kept a lone left jab dangling in the challenger's [illegible] and exploded volleys of rights on Carl's granite jaw without inflicting anything more than superficial damage.

There was nothing approaching a knockdown even when the two gamecocks mixed it furiously in the closing rounds.

Local Lad to Make Barnstorming Trip With Adrian Quint

Raymond Weikart, of East Liverpool, is listed as a member of the squad that will make the trip.

BANKERS COP DUCKPIN CLASH

Defeat Altman Quint in Liberty Loop.

The Bankers shot a southpaw, in the person of Bob Harker, at the Altman Clothiers in the Liberty Business Men's league last night and finished ahead by a count of two games to one, although taking a back seat in the matter of total pins.

The Clothiers ran up a 1909 total against 1808 by the Bankers but lost the second and third games. They piled up a commanding lead in the opener with a score of 708 to 549, but the Bankers came back in the second to cop by six pins, and inasmuch as games count in this circuit, the Bankers' victory in the third gave them the edge.

Harker couldn't get going in the second tilt but finished with a strike and a spare that decided the outcome of the contest. Johnny Greene polled a total vote of 450, three pins ahead of Canne, of the Clothiers, with a 447. Sayres, of the Clothiers, also was up in the running with 438.

COSHOCTON HIGH LANDS TROPHY

COSHOCTON, O., Nov. 20.—The Coshocton high school team today is proudly exhibiting the 1926 Central Ohio conference cup which was gained by virtue of its defeat of Mount Vernon here yesterday, 19 to 0. Parrish, who broke through and ran 70 yeards for a touchdown, was the outstanding star. The team lost but one game this season.

Paul English Ends First Grid Season At Glenville With Fine Record; Will Try For Cage Job

ACCOUNTING for six touchdowns in five games, four of which were with college teams, Paul English, former high school athlete who is now a student at Glenville "prep" school, Glenville, W. V., has wound up his first football season in higher circles with a record to be proud of and is now planning to go out for a job on the varsity basketball squad.

The Glenville eleven ended its football season on Armistice day at Potomac State. Glenville was defeated, 9-7, although it was certainly no fault of English's.

State scored the first touchdown but failed to make the kick for the extra point good.

That was in the first quarter. Neither side was able to get within scoring distance then until the third period when English grabbed a pass out of the air and ran 60 yards for a touchdown. Glenville kicked goal and went one point into the lead.

Glenville had them licked then until the last five minutes when State dropkicked one over from the 30-yard line.

"I believe this was the toughest game I ever played," English says.

With four regulars back from last year's quintet, competition for places in the Glenville floor squad this winter is bound to be unusually keen, but English feels confident he can get "on." The veterans include "Buck" Miller, forward; "Slim" Tracy, center, who played with Ki Ki Cuyler's team for a while last year; "Skibo" Lorentz and Bob Markolwitz, guards.

English asserts he is going to make a bid for that vacant forward berth.

Some of the others who will also be out for the job include Orval Maple, who, English says, has played in some of the tournaments refereed by Bill Watkins, of this city; the Rodger boys from Defiance, O., and a number of others from various sections of West Virginia.

In a recent letter to Watkins who is well famaliar with the class of West Virginia athletics in which English is shifting about, the latter expressed disappointment over result of the Salem game but says he'll be rooting for victories in the remaining tilts of the season. He will probably be home for the Thanksgiving engagement.

Beaver County Bans Sunday Grid Games; Threaten Arrests

BEAVER, Pa., Nov. 20.—The lid will be clamped down tight on Sunday football games in Beaver county, according to an announcement today by County Detective Dan M. Baker. Complaints were received of Sunday games at Legionville, Woodlawn, Monaca Heights and Midland.

"No Sunday games will be permitted and spectators, officials and players will be arrested and prosecuted," declared Baker. He said additional officers would be placed on duty to watch for Sunday games in the county. Sunday golf has not fallen under the ban, the authorities stated.

Fight Results

AT NEW YORK—Tod Morgan, of Seattle, retained junior lightweight title by winning decision over Carl Duane, of New York, fifteen rounds. Eddie Anderson, of Wyoming, knocked out Arnold Ryan of Brooklyn in the sixth round. Les Murray of Australia, won decision over Solly Seaman of New York, ten rounds.

AT TAMPA, FLA.—Willie Herman of New York, won decision over Red Cap Wilson, also of New York, ten rounds.

Tony Leto, of Tampa, knocked out Joe Coppadara, of Indianapolis in the second round.

BULLDOG GIVEN SLIGHT EDGE

Harvard-Yale Result Means Little to National Ranking.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20.—Like an old actor who has been cast for pie-throwing but lives in the day when he played Hamlet, the Yale-Harvard football game will make its annual bid this afternoon for the fame which athletic decay must deny it. The old lines will be mounted with the old fervor, the old strut before the public will be as pompous as ever. But these will be gestures, suggestive only of the greatness that is past.

The time is not so long ago when this game was the ultimate in consequence, usually deciding the disposition of all collegiate honors, but today, it had only tradition to lean upon and, what with the succession of defeats experienced by the principals this season, tradition seemed a sickly reed.

No Harvard-Yale game ever has meant less to the final ranking of college teams. In other and better years, at least one of the contenders, sometimes both, came up to the meeting with presentable records. This time, they are a pair of odd lots, marked down from $1.98.

Harvard began the season badly, losing its first two games to Geneva and Holy Cross. It seems to be finishing the same way, only more so, for it has just been knocked off successively by Princeton and Brown without a scoring point. Yale, on the contrary, started with a flourish and is finishing with a flop. The Bulldog, in its last four games, failed to score against Brown, Mary and Maryland, and lost to Princeton, 10 to 7.

In other words, Yale and Harvard will not even play for the championship of the late Big Three, which statement just about comes under the general head of unnecessary roughness.

But the old capacity crowd of 78,000 will be there and maybe some of them will be really depressed if Yale fails to beat Harvard or vice versa. The loser should have justifiable grounds for melancholia, at that.

SYNOPSIS.

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. He is aimless and amiable. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming, rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers, in spite of his natural bashfulness, to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla, in his 'comic little car." After a mement's hesitation she accepts his his offer. As they ride he tries to "explain" himself. He has money—enough—but is suffering from a bad case of "dual personality." He is obviously greatly bothered about something, some conflict within himself. She, for her part, tells that her name is Hester Kemble. She, like Julian, is from the East. They overtake and pass the trucks bearing the rest of the troupe. As they stop for dinner, the others come in. Julian meets Watt, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre"; Sadie, an ex-chorus girl trouper, and the rest of the cast. When the journey is resumed and La Jolla reached, Julian decides to remain with the troupe. It fascinates him. During the evening Julian comes to the rescue of the troupe financially. Watt extols him as a model patron of the arts. Sadie attaches herself to him obviously and frankly captivated by his oddness and his quaint charm. Sadie tells him of Hester, how she is a charming little actress who risked everything to try for the leading role in a movie play written by one "Robert Johns," failed and joined the troupe only as a last resort. Julian and Hester out in the little car after the night's performance find themselves alone on a road by the sea.

CHAPTER SIX.

"Here we are again," said Hester, with what he felt to be quiet amusement. "Just like this morning."

"This morning?" He was puzzled. "Oh . . . . of course . . . . but that seems like last year to me."

She didn't reply to this. She was leaning away from him, watching the ocean. But as the car rounded a promonotory, she said, "The view is nice from here."

He slowed down. She seemed not to mind. Then, with a little uprush of spirit, he turned off the road toward the ocean, stopped the motor and switched off the lights. It seemed very daring. He waited, breathless, for a protest, but none came. She merely continued gazing out into the velvety beauty of the west.

His pulse was bounding. With the sensation of one who risks everything—happiness, honor almost—he found his hand sliding along the back of the seat. Finally it settled around her little shoulder. And still she was silent.

It seemed to him that something must be said. Something. . . . .

"I've wanted to talk about your performance."

"I rather thought you didn't like it."

"I've been too excited to say anything."

"Really?"

He became slowly aware that he had pleased her. "I think it has been the most wonderful . . . . well, one of the most wonderful experiences I've ever had in the theater."

She laughed a little. "Only one of them?"

"Well . . . . it wouldn't be easy to make you understand what I meant by that, but . . . . I'll put in this way: I wouldn't have thought it possible for an actress to be as lovely, as exquisite, as you seemed to me tonight."

"That's a pretty nice thing to say."

"It's rather difficult. I mean to put in words the way you've made me feel. I'm pretty inarticulate. What puzzles me is that you should be out here barnstorming like this."

"The luck of the theater, I suppose."

"As near as I can see, from this one performance, you have everything, every necessary quality—beauty . . ."

"Oh, I haven't that!"

"Beauty is a subtle quality. Very subtle." As had happened in the morn his tongue was shaken free. All in a moment, he seemed much less boyish, vastly less the lame puppy. "You have a beautiful body and carriage. Everything you do—walking, turning, the poise of your head, the apepal in your voice—has beauty in it. Your face, too, is a perfect mask. It is exquisite. It is more than that, it is appealing, like your voice. No, you stirred me more than I can tell you. I'm so clumsy at talking."

"You don't seem so very clumsy."

"Another thing that impressed me was the way you work in a scene. You virtually amazed me. You're so quiet offstage. But in the scene you carried everything off with an irresistible buoyancy. And in timing and all that you were perfect."

"You seem to know something about the theater."

"Not much. Not in any practical way. I've never been backstage. And I've never known an actress before." He hesitated. She sensed that he was thinking out what he should say next. She knew that she was now in contact with a wholly unfamiliar side of the man. It was puzzling. This wasn't at all the man who had, within the hour, sat so shyly and forlornly aside in the road house with that pathetic, almost vapid smile in his wan face. She felt a serious honesty in him, and delicacy.

"But the outstanding quality you gave me was youth. The very spirit of youth. I think I can tell you this—you made me cry a little tonight."

"Oh," she flashed out with a sudden passionate bitterness, "but youth is just what I haven't got!"

"That isn't so. What you have is the finest kind. I should say you are lucky!"

"Lucky!"

"It is the youth of body and movement and voice. You simply have it. It's yours. And with it you have the years of experience that make it possible to use it skillfully. Why isn't that the best kind? I don't know that years have anything to do with it"

"I wonder," said she; and she held her breath a moment.

His fingers were tightening nervously about her shoulder. The thought came to her that they'd better start up that foolish motor and get back to La Jolla just as fast as they could. He was reviving the passionate hope that had carried her through many desperate months in New York and through the grinding years in stock. A little more of this sort of glow about her heart, and the starved and stifled emotional being that was surely within her would be rushing to meet him more than half way. That wouldn't do.

But the spell of the still soft night was upon her spirit—that and the surge of the sea and this new stirring sense of warmth about her heart. It was such a moment as she had dreamed of in girlish hours some years ago. But in those years she had never known the hunger that was in her now. Why not let things drift just a little longer? The thought came that it wouldn't be fair to him to let him work himself up too far. She could make him, with a word, drive her back. He wouldn't be difficult, not this gentle spirit, not if she stopped him before he lost his head. But she couldn't quite say that word.

Then she spoke out. Back of the vehement low voice lay a bitterness she had kept, in a measure, even from herself. She'd had to. In the theater a girl must assume cheerfulness, if she have it not. She must give pleasure to others. Her existence hangs on that. But the bitterness was there. And her guard was down.

"I don't know whether you realize what you're doing to me," she said. "I just about struck bottom this winter. Lost my nerve. It was the first time. But you have to have a little success now and then to keep going. You have to. Even just a little praise."

"Of course."

"An actress is so helpless. It doesn't matter how good you may be, if you can't get a chance to show it. The play has got to be there, the part. I made a wild stab at play writing this winter."

He drew her timidly closer.

"I was living in a furnished room in Hollywood. Over a hardware store. I started three plays. Everybody does that, of course, one time or another. But it was no good. I've never envied anybody as I envy the playwrights. You see them come in from nowhere—people nobody ever heard of—and make fortunes. I've thought and thought about Clare Kummer and Rachel Crothers. The women who've done it. And Robert Johns. Who was he? Nobody ever heard of him. Some people say, even now, that he's a woman using that name. He doesn't even go to rehearsals or first nights. He just writes plays, and they're put right on. Three plays running at once on Broadway this year. Two road companies doing 'Hunger.' I could have played that lead. If I could only have got through to Robert Johns himself. He understands women. Finely. Delicately."

"I'm beginning to wonder if I . . ."

It was she now who was full of self. She brushed his hesitant words aside.

"I tried so hard to meet him. But they wouldn't let me. I wrote to him. He didn't answer. Begged for just a chance to read the lines to him. He wouldn't bother, of course. He wouldn't care. Why should he? Look at 'Dottie Dimple!' That's the play about the little factory girl who photographed well and became a picture star and made so much money she owned the country. It's wonderful satire. Have you seen it?"

"Why, yes . . . . I . . . ."

"Do you know how many 'Dottie Dimple' companies are out this winter? Five! Robert Johns, whoever he is, sits back somewhere and collects the royalties. Probably in a palace in Italy. What's a struggling actress to him? . . . . I couldn't have played 'Dottie Dimple,' of course. They'd have to have a regular movie doll for that. But I could have done the girl in 'Hunger.' And the girl from Portland boarding house in 'I Wonder If They're True.' I know I could have played her. I have to believe in what I do. I have to! But they wouldn't give me a chance. And now it's too late!"

She stopped, with a break in her voice. Her eyes were fixed on the dim horizon. He could feel her quick breathing. Suddenly, with an odd little sound, he drew up her face and kissed her. She found herself yielding her lips to his. She caught at his shoulder and clung to him.

But then, abruptly, she pushed him away.

"Take me back,' 'she said, unsteadily.

He sat motionless.

"Take me back! We can't do this sort of thing; I won't!"

He seemed to be gathering himself together. Finally he started the motor, backed around, and headed southward along the highway.

She said, without looking at him, "You'd better turn on your lights."

Without replying, he did so.

She sat hanging over the farther side up in a little heap on the seat.

They had passed through La Jolla and were rounding the long curve into the historic Old Town when he finally spoke. It was the hesitant boy of the morning.

"I've been trying to make up my mind whether I'd tell you. . . . ."

"I can't talk! Please!"

When they drove in by the dark stage and stopped, she hurriedly opened the door.

"Suppose I might as well leave the car right here . . . ." he began lamely, but she walked away with only a muffled "Good night," walked beautifully, firmly, on her little heels and disappeared in the shadows by the women's tent. He sat there for an hour fingering the wheel, then stretched out as best he could on the seat and spent what was left of the night there.

Is Cow or Motorcycle Guilty?

Is a motorcyclist or a cow at fault when the two meet, is a question before the magistrate of Te Aroba, N. Z. Robert Troughton, a farmer, sued William Jackson for $500 damages alleged to have been caused when he collided with Jackson's cow. Jackson counter-claimed $260 for his pedigreed heifer killed by the motorcycle. Troughton says Jackson is guilty of negligence in allowing the cow to roam the road, while Jackson claims that Troughton drove the machine carelessly and if he had kept a proper lookout he would have seen the cow. So the magistrate is scratching his head in perplexity.

"GREEN HAT" PACKS PUNCH

Ceramic Theatre Offers Arlen Love Play Next Thursday.

A glowing love story, well acted, is always an event. Such is "The Green Hat," Michael Arlen's brilliant dramatization of his best selling novel of the same name, to be seen at the Ceramic theatre Thanksgiving Day, matinee and night.

There are few plays which pack the punch of this Arlen portrait of a phase of life that caused such a stir when he first revealed it between the pages of his book of the same name.

This story of Iris March, the girl who couldn't control her emotions, has proven to be one of the most colorful of stage heroines.

"The Green Hat" is not baby food. Rather, it is a diet made for feeling men and women, made strong because it pulsates with all the ingredients which go to make up the very foundations of life.

Iris March, the last of the mad Marches, finds herself the butt of suspicion because her husband falls from a window while on his honeymoon. Iris becomes a notorious woman of humor—but she always retains her overwhelming love for Napier Harpenden, whom she loved before she married.

Almost on the eve of Napier marrying a beautiful society girl, Iris comes to his apartment after 10 years' absence. She says she has come to claim her heritage and, after sweeping aside the barriers raised by loyalty to the woman Napier is to marry, Iris gives herself to her former lover. The consequences of that act from the ending of a most unusual play, which deals with the raw materials of which life is made.

"The Green Hat" is too good to miss. Don't fail to see it.

A superb company has been chosen to present the play including Dorothy Overend, Geraldine Browning, Yvonne Dor, Margaret Temple, Rupert Lucas, Arthur Metcalf, W. Boyd and many others.
